STORM SCHOOL OFFICE FOR PAY; UPROAR HALTED

City Salary Cut Runs Into Snag.

With the school board and the city administration financing schemes are cut on new plans yesterday.

Five hundred union school janitors stormed the business office of the board of education demanding scrip for their wages. When they were told that their scrip certificates were not ready, they refused to leave and started a disturbance which stopped work in the office until police ejected them.

CHARLES GILBERT.

The city ran into pay roll difficulties when Controller Szymczak refused five pay rolls which failed to comply with Mayor Cermak's economy plan of docking all city employes two weeks' wages. Four of the pay rolls were from municipal court judges and employes, and the question arose as to whether it legally is possible for the city council to include them in the pay deduction schema. The fifth was that of members of the city council, which passed the ordinance putting the economies into effect.

Scrip School Office.

The school janitors, most of them clad in their working clothes, called first at the office on the first floor of the Builders Club building at Randolph and Wells streets, where the scrip is being dispensed. When they found that there was not ready they jammed the elevators and rode to the office of Secretary Charles E. Gilbert on the seventeenth floor of the building. Gilbert is trustee of the tax warrants on which the scrip is based.

There they grew noisy, and in some cases abusive, when the scrip was again denied them. Work was stopped in the office when they pushed their way into the place, picking up and inspecting papers which were lying on desks, and jostling clerks.

"I walked all the way here from 87th street because I didn't have car fare. I didn't have any breakfast or lunch. I'm not going to leave until I get my scrip," one of the men said.

"It won't be ready tonight," a clerk told him.

"Then I'm going to lie down here and sleep. I won't leave until I get it," he announced.

Police Get on Job.

With his office paralyzed by the intrusion and a number of women clerks plainly frightened, Secretary Gilbert called the police. Two traffic policemen answered the call. They entered the room with clubs in hand, and at their order most of the men left. Those who did not were pushed out to the elevators and forced to descend.

Only 139 of more than 2,500 school board employes who have applied for the scrip got it yesterday, the first day of its issue. These 150 received 1,139 certificates with a total face value of approximately $50,000. There were 4,850 certificates ready for delivery, but persons for whom they were made out called for only 1,350 of them. All employes who filed their applications on Monday or Tuesday will find their scrip waiting for them today, Secretary Gilbert said.

Funder Action in Courts.

Miss Margaret Haley, business agent of the Chicago teachers' federation, issued a call last night for a special meeting of the group Tuesday evening. The scrip situation will be discussed, she said, and the teachers who attend will be asked whether, in case of accepting scrip, they wish to start court action and get a judgment against the school board.

Aaron A. Meade, president of the men teachers' union, issued a statement demanding why the fees which former school teachers have collected from their pupils and turned into the school board treasury cannot be used to pay those teachers' salaries. He said Superintendent of Schools Bogan estimated those collections at $200,000.

Henry Brackett, auditor of the board, stated that because of the depression, collections this year amount to date to only $60,000. The money is being kept in the educational fund "for emergencies," he said.

2 OF 3 ROBBERS ARE WOUNDED IN RUNNING BATTLE

Plane Aids Pursuit of Fugitives.

Buckley, Ill., July 17.—[Special.]—A deputy sheriff was killed and two members of a band of three robbers who held up the Buckley State bank were wounded today in a running gun battle with police and possemen who pursued them in a wild chase over 20 miles of country roads in Iroquois and Ford counties. The third robber also was captured and all of the $5,200 loot recovered.

The robbery and the killing of the deputy so roused the citizens of Buckley that an especially heavy guard was placed around the deputy's slayer, when he was rescued from a threatening mob here this evening and driven to Watseka, the county seat, where he was placed in jail.

Deputy Asks Mercy in Vain.

The slain officer was Deputy Sheriff Henry Ennen, 45 years old. He was shot down by a bandit he had wounded, as he stood with gun empty and hands raised, asking for mercy.

Joseph Mulchowski, 32, of Chicago was Ennen's slayer. At an inquest here tonight he and his two accomplices were held to the grand jury charged with murder. State's Attorney Fred Kendall announced that he would request a special session of the grand jury to hear the cases against the bandit gang.

The leader of the gang is Pierce J. Lanigan, 38 years old, of New York, who is wanted for postoffice robberies at Garden City, N. Y.; Miami Beach, Fla., and Clemenson College, N. C. In his cell at the county jail in Watseka last night Lanigan said he had committed so many robberies he couldn't remember them all.

Third Man Identified.

His companion, wounded in the battle, is Edward (Jake) Byrnes, 32, also of New York, who has served as right hand man to Lanigan in most of his robberies. Mulchowski joined them only recently in Chicago, Lanigan said. All three bandits were in the Watseka county jail, having been taken there from Buckley and Piper City tonight.

Police found that the bandits' wrecked car bore a license issued to Joseph Jacorak, 3325 Ogden avenue, Chicago.

Mulchowski was captured as he lay wounded in a corn field two miles north of Buckley, where the bandits' fleeing auto crashed into a ditch and interrupted their flight. His two companions were chased by possemen in autos and an airplane to Piper City, where a second auto commandeered by the bandits was wrecked and the pair was finally surrounded in a corncrib.

Other pursuers from Buckley arrived a moment later, traced the bandit into a nearby cornfield, and disarmed him, recovering the loot.

Story of the Holdup.

The trio arrived in front of the Buckley bank at 10 o'clock this morning, wearing overalls and straw hats and appearing to be farmers. Lanigan wore a wig which he said was lost in flight.

One stayed at the wheel while the other two entered the bank. These two separated, one remaining at the door while the other approached Miss Margaret Singleton and Miss Lea Stroup, assistant cashiers, and displayed a gun.

"We want your cash," he demanded. "Where is it?"

From the teller's drawer he scooped the $5,200 in currency, placed it in a black shopper's bag, ordered the two women into the vault and returned to the door, where the Singleton girl's brother, Floyd, who had just entered, was forced to lie on the floor.

The Pursuit Begins.

As the robbers stepped into their car and sped away the women cashiers ran to the street and spread the alarm. From the next door restaurant Clarence Smith and Mrs. Ennen, brother-in-law and wife of the deputy (who was slain later) came running. In Smith's car they took up the pursuit, overtaking the bandit auto when it reeled around a corner two miles north of Buckley and careened into a ditch.

"Get out and give us your car," shouted the robbers as they leveled guns at Mrs. Ennen and Smith. Smith, at the driver's wheel, refused to stop, however, and turned sharply about. At this moment Deputy En-

AMNESIA VICTIM HUNTS IDENTITY LOST SINCE WAR

Unable to remember anything previous to the year 1919, when he was mustered out of the Canadian expeditionary force at Quebec, a well dressed man, about 55 years old, was confined last night at the Woodlawn station. He is suffering from amnesia.

The man walked into the station late yesterday. "I do not know my name," he told Sergt. William Egan. Detectives prompted him with questions, but could not refresh his recollection. Three photographs, one each of a woman, a boy and a girl, were found in the man's pockets. He said they "must be his wife and family." A scar on his face was mentioned. The man remembered it to be from a wound received by shrapnel at Cambrai in 1918.

"I'll be the happiest man alive when I am returned to my family," said the amnesia victim last night. "I'm sure I have a job. I know I have a wife and daughter. But as hard as I try I can't remember anything beyond being mustered out of the army."

The man is tall and has a military bearing. His hair is thinly gray. He is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs about 150 pounds. His suit is gray. On his arm is a tattooed word—"Winona."

YOUTH RESCUES GIRL TRYING TO DIE IN RIVER

A young woman, red haired and well dressed, climbed the railing of the Madison street bridge late last night and plunged into the river.

Passing by was a slim youth. Without hesitation he climbed also to the railing and dived after the girl. In a few strokes he reached her and compelled her to hold her head above water, although she still struggled to accomplish her death.

Bridgetenders D. W. Holmes and Joseph Kloubounick, who a short time before had advised the young woman not to jump into the dark waters of the river, arrived in a boat in time to save both.

At the Iroquois hospital the girl said she was Margie Odell, 19 years old, of 1306 South Kent street, St. Louis. She wanted to die, she said, because she was disappointed in love. The 120 pound hero who saved her is Kenneth Morey, 21 years old, who came from a little town in Virginia a few days ago and is stopping at the Y. M. C. A. hotel. He is on his way to Hollywood, where he hopes to get a job as a cameraman or to sell some motion picture plays.

Mr. Bargmann Learns a New Kind of Poker

Dewey Kelley and Harold G. Fisher, youthful residents of Detroit, arrived in Chicago yesterday with a new game and high hopes.

They wore red suspenders, silk shirts and underwear, neat summer suits, and snappy straw hats. They carried baggage, so the Hotel Sherman let them have a room.

After they had settled themselves comfortably Mr. Fisher went out to an employment agency, but not to look for a job. He was looking for a Chicagoan. The one he found was William Bargmann, 50 years old, 641 Oakdale avenue, an accountant. Mr. Bargmann was looking for a job.

A Little Game of Stud.

Mr. Bargmann readily consented to go with Mr. Fisher on the promise of a job. So a few minutes later the Detroiters and the Chicagoan were in room 1455 of the Sherman. A telephone call was made about the job, but the man who could hire Mr. Bargmann was reported out. Then Mr. Kelley suggested that there be a poker game for small stakes.

Although Mr. Bargmann demurred on the ground that he had only $4.80, Mr. Kelley persuaded him that the new game of Canadian stud poker was just right for that amount of capital. He explained carefully that only pairs counted in this game; that straights, flushes, full houses, and little dogs and big dogs were all barred.

Mr. Bargmann Is Lucky.

The game started and Mr. Bargmann was backed up with aces. He bet $2 on the second card and $2.80 on the third. Mr. Kelley, who was backed up with kings, called. On the fourth card Mr. Bargmann, who was in the driver's seat, announced he would bet $50.

"I call," said Mr. Kelley.

He tossed a roll of bills, surrounded by a rubber band, on the table.

"But where," he asked of his opponent, "is your money. It is regrettable, but I cannot play jawbone poker with a stranger."

At this point the helpful Mr. Fisher suggested that the hands and the rest of the deck be sealed separately in envelopes while they all went to Mr. Bargmann's home for his money. The trip was made in a taxicab and Mr. Bargmann borrowed the necessary $50 from his sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Bargmann, who seemed a bit skeptical about the strangers' intentions.

In Walk Two Detectives.

Back in the hotel room, Mr. Bargmann was demanding that the envelopes be opened when in walked Detectives Daniel Moriarity and Ralph McKenna. Mrs. Bargmann had sent them to take care of her brother-in-law. The detectives opened the envelopes. The pair of aces and the pair of kings were there. An examination of the deck showed that Mr. Kelley was going to have two pair and Mr. Bargmann only one pair after the fifth card.

Then Mr. Kelley's roll was examined. There was a $1 bill on the outside and the rest was stage money. A search of the pockets of the Detroiters disclosed that Mr. Kelley had another 6 cents and Mr. Fisher a dime.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourselves," said Detective McKenna, "trying to get in a poker game with $1.16."

W. S. Dunham, Stockman, Dies in Auto Crash

Wirth Stuart Dunham, Chicago clubman, member of an old and socially prominent Illinois family and one-time breeder of fine Percheron horses, was killed late yesterday afternoon when the automobile he was driving collided at Golf and Elmhurst roads, south of Arlington Heights, with another driven by a man believed to have been a racketeer.

The driver of the second car also was fatally injured and died without regaining consciousness. There were no other passengers in either car and the county highway police were unable to find any witnesses to the accident. Mr. Dunham was on his way from Evanston to his home at Wayne, a short distance northeast of St. Charles.

Retired from Active Business.

His father, Mark Dunham, founded the Oak Lawn farm at Wayne years ago, and until recently Mr. Dunham had carried on the breeding of Percheron horses. Since the war he had sold nearly all of the 2,000 acres in the estate and retired from active business. His home was noted as a place for social gatherings.

He was about 50 years old. A graduate of Harvard, Mr. Dunham belonged to the University club. He was also a member of the Casino, the Saddle and Cycle and the Chicago clubs. His widow, Mrs. Mary Ward Dunham, and two daughters, Miss Jane Dunham and Mrs. John L. Dole, survive.

The discovery of the fatal accident was made by a county highway policeman. Mr. Dunham was dead when he was lifted from the ditch in which the wreckage of the two cars was piled.

Other Victim Carries Gun.

In the pockets of the second victim, a man about 40 years old, were discovered a .45 caliber pistol, a badge purporting to show that the wearer was a deputy sheriff of De Kalb county, and a small notebook in which had been jotted down listings of orders for different kinds of liquors.

His pockets also contained documents showing that an automobile license had been issued to Charles Delmore, 1417 South Halsted street. There was also an automobile bill of sale that had been issued to Charles Robinson of Genoa, Ill.

Sheriff Isaac George of De Kalb county said that he had no deputy named Delmore or Robinson, and that his possession of the star was unauthorized. The Halsted street address is that of a garage. Employes said that a Charles Delmore kept a car there and had given the street number when he applied for a license. His residence address was not known.

Several years ago a Charles Delmore was arrested as a member of a bootlegging ring that supposedly had outlets in Cleveland and Minneapolis as well as Chicago. Government authorities are said to have been seeking this Delmore as an aide of Frank Parker, so-called millionaire bootlegger.

'MIRACLE IMAGE' APPEARS AGAIN; YOUTH STABBED

Curiosity aroused by the stories of the "miracle image" appearing on the wall of a building at Ashland and Elburn avenues attracted Rego Ciorlieri, 17 years old, of 7311 South Hermitage avenue to the scene last night.

All around the building milled a mob of about 2,000 men, women, and children. Sure enough, there was the image. Rego hadn't heard the apparent solution of the mystery, which was that it wasn't anything more than a reflection from the window of the home of Sam Genna at 1027 South Ashland avenue. Most of the others had, however, and they looked frequently at the Genna home. The home was dark. The window from which it was believed the image was reflected also was dark.

So the crowd remained, satisfied the police solution was wrong. Rego also stayed until nearly midnight. He started to edge his way out. In doing so he trod on the toes of a Negro about 18 years old. A dispute arose. The Negro slashed Rego in the abdomen with a knife. At Mother Cabrini hospital physicians said Rego probably would die.

BERLIN, July 17.—"We are going to Paris—not to Versailles."

Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius made this declaration at 10 o'clock tonight as the Nord express rolled out of Friedrichstrasse station for the French capital, where the head of the German government and his foreign minister will tomorrow lay before the representatives of France, Great Britain, and the United States their plea for financial assistance to save the fatherland from bankruptcy.

The cryptic utterance was considered an answer to Nationalist, Fascist and communist outcries that the German delegates were rushing to Paris to further sacrifice Germany's independence and sovereignty by accepting political conditions set down by France as the price for a $500,000,000 loan.

Will Refuse French Shackles.

Both statesmen insist they are determined to reject any terms which further shackle the nation's absolute sovereignty over her own affairs and to refuse to reaffirm the fetters binding Germany which were incorporated in the Versailles treaty.

On the eve of the departure of the German delegates, disquieting rumors were circulating like wildfire regarding the dangerous condition of the Dresdner bank—one of the six big financial institutions of the country, with interests equally ramified and similar to those of the Darmstaedter und National bank, which was closed Monday.

Gags Radical Press.

Following communist rioting during the last two nights in many cities throughout the country, President von Hindenburg slapped down a vigorous censorship on the radical press, both communist and Fascist.

The decree empowers the government to suppress all newspapers which "endanger public safety," and makes it compulsory for all newspapers throughout the country, regardless of their political complexion, to publish in full all emergency measures decreed by the government, and all urgent appeals to the public.

New Decrees to Curb Flight.

Two new emergency decrees will be promulgated tomorrow to curb the flight of capital from the country.

The first is a drastic regulation requiring every taxpayer in Germany, regardless of whether he is a German citizen or a foreigner domiciled here, to make a complete statement to the government detailing his possessions of foreign monies and securities held abroad, and also any bank balances in foreign lands. Failure to comply with this measure will be punished with heavy fines and imprisonment.

The second decree was framed to give satisfaction to American criticism that Germany is not taking adequate means to prevent the flight of capital, and puts the remedy squarely up to the foreign banks. The decree provides that the Reichsbank is entitled to inquire from any foreign banking institution the amount of cash and securities on deposit abroad by any persons domiciled in Germany.

It is recognized that the New York banks, for instance, will refuse to divulge information concerning depositors, whether they live in America or in Germany, but the Germans consider that the restriction covers the objections raised.

An additional regulation is a provision that every German citizen going abroad shall pay a "passport tax" of 100 marks [about $25] as a penalty for being wealthy enough to travel in foreign countries.

A measure governing the operation and partial opening of the banks next week was also signed today. It is aimed to extend relief to small depositors who are destitute. Under the new ruling a maximum of $5 daily may be withdrawn from savings accounts and $25 daily from checking accounts.

Reveal Reichsbank's Condition.

The official weekly statement of the Reichsbank, published tonight, reveals a further reduction in the gold supply and the fact that the foreign exchange reserve has been raided to the extent of 80 per cent during the week.

The statement disclosed a sharp increase in paper circulation. An additional 466,000,000 marks [about $116,500,000] worth of new notes was issued, bringing the total to 4,576,000,000 marks [about $1,440,000,000]. The bullion reserve shrunk $5,000,000 marks [about $13,750,000] to 1,386,000,000 marks [about $341,500,000].

Foreign exchange dropped from 870,000,000 marks [$92,500,000] to 124,000,000 marks [$31,500,000]—a loss of about $61,500,000.

Gold Coverage Now 35.8 Per Cent.

These figures revealed that the gold coverage for currency has been lowered from 40 per cent to 35.8 per cent. This reduction was considerably less than had been estimated.

With the treasury cupboards bare—swept almost clean by the wholesale recall of foreign short term loans and credits during the fateful seventeen days of uncertainty over the Hoover moratorium plan, Dr. Bruening and Dr. Curtius face the grim task of seeking means to extricate the fatherland from default without bowing to France's demands for political conditions.

The temper of the press, people, and politicians indicates that any weakness to France will inevitably mean the overthrow of the Bruening cabinet by popular demand, which would automatically lead the belligerent Adolf Hitler and his Fascists to power.

Vote Against Extra Session.

The council of elders—delegates from the sixteen parties represented in the reichstag—today voted by a two-thirds majority against a motion by the Fascists and communists to reconvene the reichstag next week. The vote was influenced by a letter from Chancellor Bruening, which was read to the council by Paul Loebe, president of the house. The letter said:

"Having regard to the gravity of the situation, concerning which I need not go into detail, I must, in the interest of the fatherland, urgently request that the council of elders reject demands to convene the reichstag. An extra session at this time would only do serious harm."

Stressing the gravity of the situation, reports came from all parts of the country today of tremendous damage to crops owing to bad weather. A huge area of wheat has been ruined by "black foot," as rust is called here. Day after day, showers have rotted wheat lying on the ground and storms have flattened rye, oats, and other crops.

Bourses to Stay Closed.

The government today indicated that the bourses would remain closed until Aug. 1, although an interim service to keep track of certain securities will be devised.

An ironic note was added to the situation today when the people found the mails swamped with demands from tax collectors for immediate payment of imposts due. Income taxes are payable the first week in July, and the finance ministry reports extreme slowness of receipts.

The gas company announced today that all bills must be paid immediately, but the electricity concern announced a moratorium until the end of the month.

Great crowds reassembled outside all the banks again today, vainly seeking to withdraw small sums, but officials to the institutions are standing solidly behind the government decrees, which regulate strictly the nature of all permissible withdrawals.

Police Keep Crowds Quiet.

In certain cases of real distress, however, small help was granted in the form of special payments, signed and stipulating the nature of the case. Strong contingents of police were on hand everywhere to preserve order and keep the crowds quiet every time they surged forward to storm the entrances to the banks.

Utilising great piles of brand new currency, stacked inside the tellers' cages, the banks continued to pay out for certified pay rolls and other authorized reasons, and tonight the situation was considerably ameliorated.

Only a few sporadic clashes occurred with police today when communists, unemployed or maddened poor people, unable to obtain funds, attempted to disregard orders and hold demonstrations.

Big Firms Cut Wages.

Everywhere complaints are made that the big concerns are using the moratorium as a pretext for reducing wages. Innumerable cases are reported of employés opening their pay envelopes to find only one-half to three-fourths the usual salary inside. Protests elicit the information from their superiors that it is impossible to obtain funds to pay off on the previous scales, so the reductions must suffice. Even unionized concerns are paying off considerably under the scale.

The financial crisis is reflected by returns on liquor sales, which reveal that the consumption of beer has fallen off 50 per cent in the last week, and that sales of wines are off 33 per cent. Even coffee sales are seriously reduced. Waiters complain that isolated customers sit for hours over a single stein of beer.

DIES OF POISON DOSE.

Hails Self as Victor; Britain Drubbed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 18.—(Saturday.)—The Daily Herald, official organ of the Labor party, says the British government will range itself alongside of the United States and Germany against France's demands for control of German customs receipts as security for the loan which Germany is seeking.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 17.—With the order to "cease fire," restoring tranquillity to the stock exchanges of the world, the French stepped out today to claim themselves victors in the first big scale financial war of modern times.

To the vanquished—which is Germany, of course, although the British took a good drubbing, too, in this "white war"—the French say they are prepared to offer generous terms, but they are adamant on insisting that the Germans come to Paris to make peace. This stand led to a fight today in the three way conversations between American Secretary of State Stimson, Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, and Premier Laval.

Paris or London to Settle It.

Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius are already on their way to Paris for what is to be the real peace conference, but the British insist that the gathering here be merely a preliminary exchange of views and that the actual negotiations for an accord be launched in London.

The Germans, too, want to save the serious discussion for London, as the parallel between this conference and the Versailles conference of 1919 is too close for their taste. If they come here it is as the vanquished talking to their victors, whereas in London they will be on neutral, if not on friendly, grounds.

French Oppose Plan.

This the French oppose. They have not definitely turned down the British invitation for a general conference in London on Monday, but they insist that an agreement in principle must be reached here first.

In face of the French obstinacy, the British spokesmen confess they may be obliged to abandon the London conference in event of a complete agreement or breakup here. They will do their best to prevent the latter from happening.

Meantime, the French are quietly going ahead laying their plans for making a French peace. In order to enlarge the scope of the conference they have invited Italy, and Foreign Secretary Dino Grandi will arrive on Sunday.

Americans in the Dark.

The Americans seem to have no idea where they stand, if anywhere, except that they are determined that an agreement must be reached, and that America cannot be politically engaged in its process.

Information today indicates that THE TRIBUNE'S dispatch last night, telling of the hush hush atmosphere with which Secretary Stimson is surrounding the proceedings, was perhaps unfair. It appears, rather, that the Americans are simply in the dark about the whole business and are trusting to the future.

They do not know, for instance, just how definite the French attitude really is. No text has been issued and Mr. Stimson is ignorant as to whether the French will put down their ideas on paper or not.

Reveal Run in Britain.

It is the opinion of well informed financial circles today that the events of the last few days, if not the last few weeks, constituted a financial war just as real as a war fought with men and guns instead of with men and gold.

There is little doubt now that the French deliberately organized a run on the Bank of England early in the week, and for several days they have been pounding away mercilessly at the British pound sterling.

A serious slump was suffered by the pound sterling, as was generally known, but now it is revealed for the first time that the situation had become really critical on Wednesday. The pound was relatively small gold coverage and it keeps its value only through confidence in British stability.

Confidence Is Shaken.

For the first time in many years the French succeeded by massive withdrawals and investments in shaking this confidence and the pound dropped to a point where the exportation of gold on a big scale was inevitable.

London bankers were terrified at the prospects of a panic, like the one in Germany, and they brought political pressure to bear on the government. Prime Minister MacDonald was forced to abandon his trip to Berlin and to agree to the Germans visiting Paris.

HANGS SELF IN HOTEL ROOM.

Frank Gannon, 73 years old, hanged himself yesterday from a door jamb in his room at the Clayton hotel, 2026 North Clark street. He had been ill, police were told.

Tells How Moratorium Delay Started Germany to Crash

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 17.—The collapse of the Credit Anstalt bank in Vienna six weeks ago, and the resultant uneasiness of Germans whose interests were involved, first focused outside world attention sharply on the financial stringency prevailing in the reich.

Lack of sufficient capital to operate their giant industries, perfected and reinforced since the war; the dearth of orders following the world-wide depression since the autumn of 1929; the orgy of waste and reckless internal spending which has been going on in Germany along Socialistic lines, and huge weekly outlays in dole for the unemployed, had a cumulative effect to make the German finances intensely sympathetic to the Vienna crash when the Credit Anstalt failed for 200,000,000 schillings [about $28,140,000].

Banks Unable to Meet Crisis.

Despite the most desperate efforts, German bankers were unable to come to the rescue, although rumblings of the failure rocked institutions and businesses throughout the fatherland.

Seeing an opportunity to strike at a vulnerable spot—against the proposed Austro-German customs union, which was considered by Paris as a forerunner of a political union—the French began pourparlers with Vienna with a view of extending credits to refloat the Credit Anstalt and to take care of a part of its obligations.

But the French fettered their offer with such important political considerations—first and foremost being a solemn undertaking by the Austrian government to renounce the customs union with Germany—that delay occurred.

British Take a Hand.

A consortium of British bankers then opened negotiations and helped refinance the Credit Anstalt under the very noses of the French. The London bankers saddled no political requirements on their aid, confining their agreement to fiscal terms purely.

But already foreign capital had been aroused by the delicacy of the situation in central Europe and began withdrawing their short term loans and credits from Germany. Uneasiness appeared in Berlin, and government spokesmen began to mention the possibility of requesting a moratorium on reparations payments.

These utterances added fresh fuel to the fire, and fanned the worries of foreign creditors into a bright blaze, resulting in increased demands on Germany to pay up her short term credits as fast as they matured.

Cat Is Let Out of Bag.

Then followed Chancellor Bruening's visit to Prime Minister MacDonald of England. That let the cat out of the bag and the world realized that the German government was in exceedingly difficult straits financially.

Acquainted with the seriousness of the situation, the American ambassador, Frederic M. Sackett, reported fully to Washington. The White House then informed the leading New York banks confidentially that their positions would be seriously jeopardized if Germany was forced to default its reparations payments. More than two billion dollars is invested in Germany through these banks.

The gravity of such a development, with the possibility that several Wall street banks might be affected, resulted in President Hoover's preparation of his moratorium proposal, which was announced to the world on June 20.

France Holds Back.

An immediate and unqualified acceptance of the scheme by all the powers involved would have gone far toward the rehabilitation of the situation, but the 17 days' delay due to the negotiations with France caused irreparable damage and practically wrecked all the good which might have come through the debt holiday.

However, the breathing spell permitted the American banks involved to withdraw certain commitments, consolidate their positions and advance credits.

The most impartial observers here, including certain Americans who have studied the situation, believe that only sincere renunciation by Germany of its former policy of campaigning to outlaw the Versailles treaty and reparations payments can achieve lasting reform and security.

See Revision of Treaty.

They consider that eventually certain rancorous provisions in the Versailles treaty will be eliminated or waived, and that inevitably the Young plan schedule for payments will be revised downward, easing the reich's burden.

But they insist that Germany can well afford to discharge its reparations obligations over a long period, and point out that any serious reduction in these commitments will, in another few years, place Germany in such an advantageous position economically that she can compete with an ever widening margin of superiority over the rest of the world.

The post-war inflation of the mark obliterated most of Germany's internal debt, and the reparations represent the bulk of its external debt. If this major item is canceled, it leaves Germany with its fiscal burdens immensely lighter, proportionately, than those of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, and other countries.

It is pointed out that Germany's favorable trade balance abroad more than covers the reparations payments, especially when it is borne in mind that one-third of the indemnity takes the form of deliveries in kind, instead of in gold.

It is recalled, too, that Germany assumed second place in the world's trade last year, surpassing Great Britain for the first time in history and following right behind the United States.

Despite its ever weakening financial situation since last autumn, German industry has proven its ability to compete and underbid its American and British rivals, and, through subsidies from a government that is broke, it has extended long credit terms to soviet Russia, South America, and the far east on contracts which foreign firms were frankly unable to meet.

"I consider that reparations has less than 25 per cent to do with Germany's present crisis, and that 75 per cent is grounded on the popular determination to throw down the Versailles treaty, and to outlaw their indemnity," a prominent man declared today.

"Since the war Germany has made enormous progress in every direction. The standard of living has increased at least 40 per cent. Hundreds of thousands of new lodgings—individual houses or apartments—have been constructed everywhere, with modern improvements and facilities."

Criticise Bank Laws.

Many unbiased observers also criticise the lax banking laws prevailing, which permit unscrupulous trustees and directors of institutions to gamble and speculate with depositors' money without incurring appreciable risk of prosecution when they lose.

It is recalled how the powerful banking groups were lined up with industrial leaders who fattened on post-war inflation, rolling up giant fortunes on illegal operations in marks.

"The danger of Germany going Red passed definitely with the inflation," said my informant. "At first, during the post-war years, there was a slight chance that bolshevism might become a menace if the monarchists' attempts to restore the former kaiser seemed likely to succeed, but with the abandonment of these aims, the Red scare subsided."

NEW YORK BANKS RENEW GERMAN SHORT CREDITS

New York, July 17.—(AP)—New York banking houses, in coöperation with London institutions, are renewing German short term credits as they mature in a coöperative effort to avoid placing any additional strain upon the critical financial situation in central Europe. Wall street bankers, however, were still somewhat dubious over the prospect of extending any additional credit to Germany. No plans are now under development in Wall street for such action, it was said in high banking quarters.

U. S. FACES WAR DEBT SNARES AT LONDON PARLEY

Stimson and Mellon on Dangerous Ground.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—Reports that the London conference to which the United States is sending Secretaries Stimson and Mellon is going to be of a strong political nature were confirmed today by Mr. Stimson in a trans-Atlantic phone conversation with President Hoover.

Acting Secretary of State Castle announced that Mr. Stimson's call had dealt in detail with the French proposals by which the United States would be drawn into an alliance with Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium to guarantee a 500 million dollar credit to Germany. In return, according to the French program, Germany would promise to resume payments on the Young plan at the end of the Hoover plan debt holiday, would pledge her customs receipts as security for the loan, would guarantee not to increase her military establishment, and to maintain a political status quo for the next ten years.

Dangerous Ground Ahead.

While opinion here regards the French proposal as something in the nature of a trial balloon, it also looks upon the program as indicating that Mr. Stimson and Mr. Mellon are going to have a difficult time if they are successfully to steer clear of discussions involving purely European and purely political problems.

Still further light was thrown upon the conference when conversations here made it clear that the London meeting is to be only half the picture. The other half is composed of the international bankers and it is only by putting the two together that there emerges the complete machinery which it is hoped will restore Europe's financial stability.

It was reported that financial negotiations between American bankers, the Bank of England and the Bank of France might be looked for as a parallel to the discussions between the representatives of the powers at which the American secretaries will sit in.

Political Job First.

As some observers chose to view it, the London conference would iron out the questions of political difficulties and guarantees, thus building up a foundation upon which the bankers might erect their financial structure.

It was intimated by Mr. Castle that Secretary Mellon's function at the conference would be to pass on any arrangements made from the point of a financial expert. This was taken to mean that a plan with the Mellon O. K. on it would stand a good chance of getting the approval of the American bankers.

In addition to Secretaries Mellon and Stimson, the United States will have a third representative in London, provided he can get there before the conference breaks up. This will be Ambassador Dawes, whom President Hoover requested to return from Chicago to his London post as quickly as possible. The ambassador is expected to sail on the Mauretania on the 22d.

Ambassador Dawes, it was stated officially, would be useful in London because of his intimate knowledge of problems concerning the German reparations. In this statement was seen confirmation of the understanding that the American representatives will be free to discuss reparations, a question heretofore regarded by the administration as a matter from which the United States ought to hold strictly aloof.

Senators Heard From.

From three of his party's spokesmen in the senate—Senators Watson of Indiana, majority leader; Bingham of Connecticut, and Reed of Pennsylvania — President Hoover received words of approval for his action in having America represented at the London meeting.

But to these sentiments there was attached a codicil of warning. The three senators were unanimous in declaring that this country and its representatives, though they might properly deal in matters economic, would have no business intruding in the politics of Europe.

It was a warning backed up with more than a gesture, for any agreement committing the United States to a definite program with respect to other nations would assuredly have to be embodied in a treaty and the treaty would have to be ratified by the senate.

VIENNA, July 17.—The Hungarian government today decided that the three day financial holiday imposed Wednesday must be succeeded by a transitional régime lasting until July 23.

Only 5 per cent of deposits, and then only to the maximum of $200, can be paid out by banks unless withdrawals are to pay wages, rents, pensions, insurance policies, taxes and all official demands, including freights and tariffs. Debtors unable to pay because of these regulations cannot be proceeded against for seven days. Payments in foreign money or exchange of pengoes for foreign currency can be carried out only through the Hungarian National bank.

In connection with the imposition of these regulations, Premier Bethlen emphatically denied reports that the state would make use of impounded bank deposits.

DAWES TO LONDON

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, at the personal request of President Hoover, will cut short his stay in Chicago and leave on Monday for London, it was announced yesterday.

Washington dispatches indicated that the President desired to have Ambassador Dawes in England to act with Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in the conferences on the German moratorium. It is understood that the President and the ambassador have discussed the European situation by telephone frequently in the last few days.

At his Evanston home the former Vice President said that he could not comment on his return other than to say he had intended leaving only a week or two later. He is to sail for Great Britain on the Mauretania July 22.

MOTHER GAW DOESN'T CARE FOR PUBLICITY

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

"You see," she said quietly, with a smile of apology, "I just never was much of a one for notoriety, and I'm not now."

Mrs. L. M. Gaw of Owensboro, Ky., 63 years old, mother of City Greeter George D. Gaw, smoothed her skirt over her lap, folded her hands and looked out the window of her spacious suite on the eleventh floor of the Belmont hotel, where the blue waters of Lake Michigan seemed to meet her window sill.

She was explaining just how she felt when she was greeted at the La Salle street station early in the morning by the city's official greeter in the official manner.

"I can't help it," said Mrs. Gaw, "I didn't like it. I knew George D. would meet me. But I had no idea that all those people would be there, so early in the morning—particularly the photographers. And when they said, 'Just stay there on that step, Mrs. Gaw, till we get your picture,' I—well, I didn't mean to be rude, but I said I didn't want my picture made.

"Then George D. just laughed at me and held up his arms. I said, 'No, don't put your arms around me with all those people looking on.'

"I may be old fashioned, and I know this is Chicago, and that things are different than in a small town, but I just resented it a little. But they went right on and took a picture.

"I'm afraid I was rude to those boys," she reflected gently.

Rides With Police Escort.

Then, with the memory of an even more public part of her official greeting, she seemed to wince.

"O," she exclaimed, "I didn't know what to do when we had to get in a car and go down all the streets with motorcycle policemen on both sides making that screaming noise.

"George D. had written me he wanted me to be the first to ride in the big white car he was to get to greet Chicago's guests in, but the other day he called up and said to come on anyway, not to wait any longer, that the white car hadn't arrived, but I'd be the first to ride in it when it got here. So I thought, as long as George didn't have the white car I wouldn't have to have policemen along, stopping traffic and everything. But they did, just the same.

"When we started away from the station I said to George D.: 'Son, it isn't that I don't appreciate this, but I declare, it makes me feel right foolish.'

"But there," she said, "I'm just that way. And George D., he's always been the other way. It suits him.

A Public Speaker at 10.

"I felt just like I did when he was 10 years old and he got up and made a presentation speech in school. I hadn't known anything about it. It seems his class had decided to present the pastor with 25 silver dollars and a basket of flowers on the 25th anniversary of the school, and there was George, making the speech.

"Then they gave a play, and he sang a song, 'I Haven't Got Any Mother to Love Me.' Well, there wasn't a dry eye in the house but mine. And afterward folks said, 'Why didn't you cry?' And I said that I was too astonished to cry.

"George D. is a born actor. And he always loved meeting folks—really seemed to love them. His heart's just too big—it gets him into trouble some times and people aren't grateful. Well, anyway, I never encouraged that acting streak in George D., and when he wanted to go on the stage I said he was mine until he was 21.

He Goes on the Stage.

"Then when he got to be 21 he decided he would go on the stage. He was in vaudeville in a sketch he wrote. He played the young man, Jack Darling, who spends his money on horses and drink, but in the end the horse he thought had lost won, and he is thankful and says, 'Back home to mother; no more gambling or drink.' Seems like he always was thinking of me, I don't know why. He seemed to think if something great that I sent him three years to St. Mary's college in Marion county. You see, his father died when he was 4 months old and I went to work in a millinery department and later was manager of the whole store. But I gave all my children equal opportunities—his three sisters had the same chance he had.

"Anyway, when George D. was playing in a Kansas town George Cohan's company 'Little Johnnie Jones' was playing there. And something happened to their leading man and their manager came to see George D.

Goes on as Johnnie Jones.

"He was light on his feet and a good little dancer and singer, and they told him they wanted him to go on that night as Johnnie Jones. He told me later he had one rehearsal, and he kept saying to himself, 'This is all for mother.' I don't know just what he meant but he said it acted as an inspiration to him.

"After a year of it, though, he took my advice and went to Chicago. I'd been to Chicago, sight-seeing, lots of times, and had told him what a great place it was. I remember the first time I came here, 28 or 30 years ago. I had to see everything—the art institute, the old Field museum and even the stockyards."

"I've never seen the stockyards," put in Mrs. Alice S. Gaw, wife of George D. Gaw, "and I was born here. No, I just don't want to see them."

She's Proud of Him.

"Well, I saw everything," said Mrs. Gaw, "and I knew Chicago was the place for George D. I can't help being proud of him now. But I don't know why he wants to bring me up here and make a fuss over me.

"George D. looks just like his grandfather Gaw, who was a tobacconist in Kentucky and a successful business man like George D.," she mused. "But his grandfather was different. He was very dignified and when he met strangers he kept a distance. But to George D., no one's a stranger."

Relief from the extreme heat of the last few days arrived in Chicago shortly after mid-afternoon yesterday, several hours ahead of the schedule fixed by the weather bureau.

It came in the form of local showers, which were followed by cool breezes from the west. At 3 p. m. the day's maximum of 98 degrees was registered at the University of Chicago observatory. By 4 p. m. there had been a drop to 92 and by 5 o'clock the mercury had fallen to the moderate reading of 82.

At the Chicago airport the change was even more abrupt and of greater extent. Between 3 p. m., when 98 was recorded, and 4 p. m., a heavy hailstorm occurred. The 4 p. m. reading there was 74.

Thundershowers Cool Loop.

Under the influence of later thundershowers which drenched the loop in the early evening the temperature fell to 81 at 7 o'clock. There was another rise after that, however, and the reading at 9 and 10 p. m. was 86. But shortly after 11 o'clock a breeze off the lake forced the temperatures down again, bringing midnight readings below 80 in the downtown section. At the coast guard station at the mouth of the Chicago river the temperature was 78 at midnight.

The official forecast indicated that the final rout of the heat wave would come early today. Skies are to be partly cloudy, and the cooling winds from the north may be preceded by more showers, according to the prediction. Tomorrow is to be fair with moderate temperature.

High temperatures prevailed from the early hours yesterday. The lowest mark recorded was 80 at 6 a. m. By 9 there had been a rise to 88 and at noon the mercury stood at 95.

Several deaths in Chicago were attributed in part to the heat. Among the victims were Asie Taylor, colored, 35 years old, who collapsed near his home at 3447 Prairie avenue and died soon afterward; Alphonse Christian, 48 years old, a wanderer, who collapsed on Wednesday and died at the county hospital yesterday; John Abraham, 60 years old, who died after he collapsed at 13th and Indiana avenue, and George Jicha, 44 years old, 1841 Allport street, who was prostrated on Wednesday and died yesterday.

There was one death by drowning during the day. E. J. Scheur, 25 years old, 1246 West Congress street, became exhausted while swimming in the lake off 14th street and sank. This was the only accident reported among the 353,000 bathers who visited the beaches during the day.

The death of John Repholz, 45 years old, 840 Taylor avenue, Highland Park, was attributed to the heat and heart disease. He died in the Highland Park police station, where he was discussing the weather with Chief of Police Edward Maroney.

Nearly all county employes working in the county building were sent home at 3 p. m. Several girls had fainted.

Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston went into his own pocket to purchase sun umbrellas for two policemen assigned to traffic duty at Davis street and Sherman avenue.

105 Degrees in Wisconsin.

The northwest and the great plains obtained their relief a little earlier, although some high records were reported in many sections. In Wisconsin there was a maximum of 105 at Sheboygan, 103 at Stoughton and 100 at Fond du Lac.

Indiana's high mark for the day was 108 at South Bend. At Quincy, Ill., 101 was reached, and at Aurora a mark of 100 was established before the afternoon rains.

Timothy Westfield, 44 years old, colored, 3451 Federal street. Died in the county hospital from injuries sustained July 5 when he was struck by an automobile at 39th street and Michigan avenue.

James J. Lamb Jr., 19 years old, 7746 South Green street, died yesterday at Elkhart, Ind., of injuries sustained when he was driving crashed into a truck in Elkhart. Lamb's grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Morrison, 7714 Lowe avenue, was seriously injured.

Charged with driving while intoxicated, Andrew Hayes, 29 years old, 6007 Kenmore avenue, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell and fined $1,000, and George Gabrielson, 31 years old, 4025 Van Buren street, was fined $200 on a charge of disorderly conduct when they were arraigned before Judge Leon Edelman in the Town Hall court. Both penalties are the maximum for the offenses.

The men ran down two boys riding a bicycle at Broadway and Balmoral avenue on June 16. Robert Sisler, 4 years old, 5442 Winthrop avenue, is in a serious condition. His companion, William Williams, 13 years old, of the same address, was not seriously injured.

TWO WORLD FLYERS UNABLE TO TAKE OFF; JETTISON THEIR GAS

New York, July 17.—[Special.]—Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon Jr. gambled with death this morning when they tried to take off from Roosevelt field on their round the world flight, and only Pangborn's skill saved them from a crash.

Not even his finesse at the controls could lift their Bellanca monoplane into the air with its 8,600 pound load, and he was forced to jettison most of his gasoline in order to clear a row of hangars, a telephone and a high tension line as a hundred spectators breathlessly watched the struggle to avoid disaster.

Returning to the field the flyers, cool after the most thrilling takeoff Roosevelt field has ever seen, decided to fly to Harbor Grace, N. F., tonight, starting about midnight, and start their flight over the Atlantic from there.

Later, weather reports were bad and the flyers decided reluctantly they would have to wait more than 24 hours before attempting a second start.

C. H. MACKAY TO WED ANNA CASE, SOPRANO, TODAY

Millionaire and Singer Met Through Opera.

New York, July 17.—[Special.]—Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of the Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation, and Miss Anna Case, former soprano of the Metropolitan opera, will be married tomorrow morning at Mr. Mackay's Roslyn, L. I., estate, Harbor Hill.

No information was forthcoming from Mr. Mackay or any of his associates, but it was said at Harbor Hill that a statement would be issued tomorrow.

Miss Case could not be reached at her home. Servants said she had "gone to the country."

It was said that the wedding party would be kept to relatives and intimate friends. Mr. Mackay's daughter, Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, left her Southampton estate today for her father's home. His son, John W. Mackay, was to be present, it was reported, and his other daughter, Mrs. Irving Berlin, is expected to motor to Roslyn in the morning.

Both Music Lovers.

Mr. Mackay is a director of the Metropolitan company and it was in this association that he met Miss Case. He is fifty-seven years old and his bride-to-be is forty-two.

Mr. Mackay was born in San Francisco, the son of John William Mackay and Marie Louise Hungerford-Bryant Mackay. His father, an Irish immigrant, had joined the Forty-niners in the gold rush to California. He and three other men sank a shaft on the Comstock lode, which resulted in the famous Bonanza mine, which produced $300,000,000 in six years.

Enters Communications Field.

Seeking investments for his capital, the elder Mackay joined with James Gordon Bennett in the creation of the Commercial Cable company and the subsequent purchase of the Postal Telegraph company, both of which his son later expanded and linked with radio and telephone interests at home and overseas.

Mr. Mackay married Miss Katherine Duer, member of an old New York family in 1893. The first Mrs. Mackay obtained a Paris divorce in 1914, and on the following day married a New York surgeon, Dr. Joseph A. Blake. They had four children. She died a year ago.

Anna Case's Career.

Anna Case was born at South Branch, N. J., where her father, the late Peter Case, was the village blacksmith. The family was poor.

Anna had early learned to play the organ. At fifteen she became organist at $12 a month in a church at Neshanic. It was from the choir loft of that church that she sang her way to fame.

One Sunday evening in 1909 Andreas Dippel, then director of the Metropolitan opera, was driving past the church. He heard the choir singing an anthem.

Above the other voices rose a soprano, high and clear. "Wait," he said, got out of the carriage, walked into the church and waited until the service ended. Then he asked to meet the soprano.

"I am Mr. Dippel," he told the girl. "I have just heard you sing. Would you like to sing for me?" And Anna Case's career was made.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 17.—Playing the Canadian political parties "across the board" in the federal and provincial political fields of Ontario and Quebec, the Beauharnois Power corporation, now under parliamentary investigation, distributed approximately $1,000,000 to both Liberal and Conservative party political campaign chests just prior to the dominion election of a year ago, when Premier Richard B. Bennett was returned to power with a Conservative government.

With this sensational testimony, Robert O. Sweezey, president of the Beauharnois Power corporation, whose $100,000,000 power canal venture on the St. Lawrence river required the sympathetic consideration of the federal government and the provincial governments in Ontario and Quebec, blew the lid off the Beauharnois investigation today.

Lists Political Donations.

Declaring the matter of political campaign contributions to have been so "distasteful" to him that he deliberately avoided recording the details, Sweezey nevertheless, under assurance of protection, was able to recite for the committee the following political contributions:

Between $700,000 and $800,000, contributed to the Dominion Liberal party and to the Liberal party in Quebec province through Senator Andrew Haydon of Ottawa and Donal Raymond of Montreal.

Two hundred thousand dollars proffered to the Dominion Conservative party, but for some reason, which Sweezey was unable to explain, it was refused.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars paid to John Aird Jr., Toronto, son of Sir John Aird, president of the Bank of Commerce, allegedly for Ontario Conservative party campaign funds. G. Howard Ferguson, now Canada's high commissioner at London, was then Ontario premier, and it was Beauharnois' acquisition of a power contract from the Ontario hydro-electric power commission which enabled the Beauharnois corporation to proceed with the sale of $30,000,000 worth of bonds.

Sweezey Gives $6,000.

Sweezey's own contribution of $6,000 toward the election expenses of Leslie G. Bell, Conservative, in Montreal.

Between $20,000 and $30,000 contributed to the Quebec province Conservative party.

Three thousand dollars to the Ontario Liberal party.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, July 17.—While accepting honors and congratulatory messages from all over the world, Capt. Alexander Magyar and Capt. George Endres tonight were laying plans for a flight back to New York from Budapest, in the same plane which brought them across the sea on the eastward journey.

"The return flight appeals to me," Capt. Endres said, "and our machine is so good that I am convinced we could overcome the difficulties of the return trip."

As a reward for their exploit in flying here from America, Minister of War Gombos informed them today that he has recommended that the highest Hungarian order, the service medal, first class, carrying the title of excellency, be conferred on them at the official reception tomorrow.

1 KILLED, 1 DYING AS COMMUNISTS STIR NEGRO RIOT

Outbreak Is Protest at Execution of 8.

BULLETIN.

Camp Hill, Ala., July 17.—[Special.]—A heavy armed guard numbering more than fifty men was thrown around the county jail at Dadeville tonight when Dadeville police were notified that four automobiles filled with armed Negroes were seen passing through Alexander City and headed in the direction of Dadeville.

According to reports from Alexander City, the Negroes had shotguns and announced they were going to Dadeville to protest holding of 30 Negroes captured following an all night riot.

Camp Hill, Ala., July 17.—(AP)—A meeting of Negro communists near here last night, at which Gov. B. M. Miller was threatened with violence unless he liberated eight Negroes sentenced to execution for attacking two white girls, led to clashes with posses today in which one man was killed, five wounded and seventeen arrested.

A small Negro house near the place where the meeting was held was destroyed by fire soon afterward. It was reported at first that a church in which the Negroes had met was burned.

Posse Hunts Organizer.

A posse of eight men, reported from Notasulga, Ala., late today that they were still trailing a Negro from Chattanooga, Tenn., who for two months has been organizing Negroes in this section in what confiscated minute books described as "The Society for the Advancement of Colored People."

The disorders, in which more than 200 shots were fired, were precipitated as Sheriff J. Kyle Young, Deputy Sheriff Jack Thompson and Wilson approached the church where the meeting was in progress.

Ralph Gray, Negro, was on picket duty near the church, and fired on the officers as they sought to question him.

Picket Wounds Sheriff; Slain.

Sheriff Young was struck in the side by a charge from a shotgun, and Thompson was wounded in the wrist. Gray dropped under a volley from the officers and was left for dead. Later he was picked up by an unidentified motorist and taken home.

A physician who was called to treat him notified a posse, and at the Gray home they were met with another volley. In the exchange Gray was struck several times and died en route to jail with eight companions who had taken refuge in the house.

The most prolonged battle between possemen numbering 150 and members of the organization occurred near the church. It was here the three Negroes were wounded.

Two of the wounded were taken to the Dadeville jail. The other one, Chief Wilson said, "went to cut stovewood." Asked when he would return, the chief said "he has lots to cut," and declined to comment further.

The literature seized, Wilson said, urged members to demand social equality and intermarriage with the white race, to demand $2 a day for work and not to ask but "demand what you want and if you don't get it take it."

JAPANESE MAID AND PREACHER'S SON TO MARRY

Berkeley, Cal., July 17.—(AP)—The love affair of a University of California graduate student and a Japanese maid and the efforts of the girl's Japanese guardian to win her for himself have thrown the college campus here into a furor.

The affair came to light with announcement of the engagement of Warner Angell, 24, son of the Rev. J. W. Angell, Gold Beach, Ore., and Katsuko Suzuki, 23, orphaned art student at the university. Angell is a graduate of Wooster college, Wooster, Ohio.

Learning of his son's intentions, the Rev. Mr. Angell voiced protest and sought official aid of the Japanese consul in San Francisco. The consul said he had no interest in the love affairs of his countrymen. Then the minister became reconciled to the situation.

In the meantime Chiyuro Endo, the girl's guardian, frankly admitting he wanted to marry his ward, sought to end the engagement.

Cermak Gets Summer Suit Weighing 24 Ounces

GANG FILM ACTORS HURT BY EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE CAPS

Hollywood, Cal., July 17.—[Special.]—An explosion of dynamite caps during the filming scene supposed to reproduce the St. Valentine's day gang massacre in Chicago in 1929, today sent four film actors and a spectator to hospital. The spectator was Gaylord Lloyd, assistant film director and brother of Harold Lloyd.

The scene being shot was for a film titled "Scarface," being made for Howard Hughes, producer, and the Caddo Film corporation. Seven men, enacting the Chicago victims of the garage machine gun massacre, had been lined up against a wall. Dynamite caps had been placed against the wall at intervals to give effect of bullets striking the wall.

One of the caps exploded prematurely, and other explosives followed, blowing bits of metal splinters and stone into faces of the men. Lloyd may lose sight of one eye, according to Dr. William C. Branch. Bits of metal lodged in the iris of the right eye.

REPORT OFFICIALS OF CLOSED BANK HIT IN TRUE BILLS

Action Follows Quiz by Prosecutors.

True bills charging embezzlement and false statements against officials of the closed Millard State bank of Chicago, 3645 West 26th street, were reported to have been voted by the grand jury yesterday.

The grand jury action was the result of work done by Assistant State's Attorneys Henry Ayers and Leonard Rice, the "banking team" of the prosecutor's office. They would not verify the indictment report or divulge the names of the persons reputedly affected.

The bank closed on Aug. 15, 1930. Some of its officers were: Rudolph A. Cepak, president and director; James Friedl, vice president and director; Albert J. Cermak, director, and Edward Kvidera, director. P. Havlicek was cashier. The bank was capitalized at $100,000 and had a surplus of $15,000. Albert J. Cermak is not a relative of Mayor Cermak, the prosecutors said.

Five indictments were reported voted. The first, it was said, accuses three officials of making false statements to bank examiners and the second, third and fourth make the same charge against four officials and also accused them of making false statements to the bank's creditors.

The fifth true bill, according to reports, charges one official with embezzling $96,803. It was said that the prosecutors found evidence that another official made loans to himself in excess of the bank's capital and surplus.

MELLON CUTS OFF VACATION; HOPS TRAIN FOR PARIS

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

NICE, France, July 17.—Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, interrupted his holiday at Cap Ferrat today and left for Paris, where he will take part in the negotiations for the restoration of Germany's financial position. He was walking in the rose garden of his villa when he was summoned to the telephone by Secretary of State Stimson, calling from Paris and requesting him to come there at once.

"I did not expect," Mr. Mellon said before he left, "to have a perfectly good vacation interrupted in this way. I do hope that I shall be able to return here and go home later, as I planned, by an Italian liner."

Mr. Mellon has recovered from the cold from which he was suffering during the recent Paris negotiations on the Hoover plan.

Attempt to Bomb St. Peter's Basilica Fails.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 17.—Italian police and members of the Vatican City gendarmie were tonight conducting a joint investigation into the attempted bombing this morning of St. Peter's cathedral in Vatican City.

A bomb was discovered last night under the movable pulpit, near the statue of Clement XIII, by a janitor. It was removed to a nearby meadow, where it exploded shortly before two o'clock this morning. No one was injured, but windows in some of the nearby buildings were broken and most of the inhabitants awakened.

When first discovered, the nature of the paper covered package was not known, and several persons handled it before it was finally taken to the meadow.

Pope Sleeps Through Blast.

The pope slept throughout the entire incident, and was not informed of the explosion until he awakened this morning. He immediately retired to his study, where he remained a long time in prayer. Later he received Cardinal Pacelli, with whom he had a long conference.

Premier Mussolini was told of the explosion at the Civil airport at four o'clock this morning. He had gone there to start an aerial race around Italy. He immediately gave an order to the police to leave no stone unturned in bringing the bombers to justice, and shortly afterwards a strong guard of Italian police was placed around Vatican City.

The Vatican gendarmie and the Italian police worked together in a search of the Vatican City buildings and grounds for possible other bombs, and for a short time St. Peter's cathedral was closed to visitors. Later it was opened and a large crowd entered.

The large hole torn in the ground by the bomb indicated that had it exploded in its original hiding place it would have done extensive damage to the noted church.

Find Penciled Warning.

The only clew uncovered by the investigators, beyond bits of the bomb which were picked up near the explosion, was the fact that a few days ago Vatican authorities found penciled on the monument of Countess Mathilda of Canossa the following words: "Dynamite will blow up this cage."

Italians attributed the attempted bombing to anti-fascists who wished to discredit the government in its controversy with the church.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The personnel of "the rotten taxing machinery"—so characterized by Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railroad, and Sewell Avery, president of the U. S. Gypsum company—did not aid Gov. Emmerson's revenue commission last night.

The board of assessors failed to show up. Edward R. Litsinger of the board of review talked for an hour and three-quarters, "without answering the first question asked him."

The question was: "How can the taxing system in Cook county be improved?"

Sargent Asks Question.

It was asked by Mr. Sargent. Mr. Litsinger said that he had been a member of the board of review for 16 years. He told one difficulty after another of appraising property, but never got to the point of giving the commission what it desired.

As a starter Edward Hughes, who became a member of the review board last Jan. 1, explained some of the operations of the board, before Mr. Litsinger arrived. Mr. Litsinger appeared about 7 o'clock.

When 8:30 came Mr. Avery interrupted with: "I think Mr. Litsinger has given us a true picture of the difficulties of making an assessment, but that is beside the question. It does not answer the question asked by Mr. Sargent. What we want to know is how to get rid of the political workings incident to making an assessment. We want to know how to remove the temptation from honest people—how to make a fair tax appraisal.

Urges End of Dishonesty.

"Some persons are honest and others are crooks, some able and some useless. Is it not possible to get out of the filth of dishonesty?"

"I challenge and resent that statement so far as the board of review is concerned," put in Litsinger.

"I intended to make no reflections upon any one individual and withdraw my statement," said Mr. Avery. "I believe we have a rotten system and we can and must have a better system. We are sitting here wasting an entire evening."

Mr. Litsinger repeated what he had previously said—that opinions differ on what is the best system to adopt, and he was not prepared to recommend a system.

Jacobs Charges Useless Task.

J. Louis Jacobs, efficiency expert for Mayor Cermak, interposed a short speech in which he charged the board of review with doing useless tasks in keeping a docket and said, "They do such things deliberately."

Corporation Counsel W. H. Sexton tried his hand for a few minutes in interrogating Mr. Litsinger, and at 8:55 o'clock Mr. Sargent summarized his view of Mr. Litsinger's evening of talking with this comment: "I still believe that you have not answered my first question." He went on:

"The present system is bad. I agree thoroughly with what Mr. Avery has said. The system is so bad that vast amounts of fraud have been practiced under it, and the courts have said so.

Wants Hint for a Remedy.

"We would like you to get in the frame of mind to assist us, to aid in finding a remedy. The situation is desperate.

"The credit of the city is gone, the teachers have been waiting for months for their pay. We are faced with the possibility of unpaid policemen and firemen—and the failure to open the schools in the fall. Great injury is being done the business of the city, and the revival of prosperity is being hindered.

"From what you have said this evening alone, I am convinced that the taxing system is rotten. Other cities have had bad systems, but nearly every other city has found a cure. We are still in the dark ages of tax assessments. I still have faith that you will help us. You have the ability and on top of that you have had 16 years of experience."

Says He Wishes to Help.

Mr. Litsinger reiterated what he had said three times previously—that he wanted to aid and assist the committee, that he was willing to cooperate and give any information he has. But the committee adjourned with the belief that he had not answered the first question asked.

At one stage, however, Mr. Litsinger did say, evidently referring to house bill No. 7179 of the last legislature, which would have consolidated the taxing machinery into an appointive board of three members:

"It is preposterous that the president of the county board should be given complete control of all of the taxing machinery. That is a political office, and has large influence at present. Mayor Cermak used that office—and I am not criticizing him for it—to gain national and international notice and be elected head of the city government."

Questioned by Sexton.

"If a bill similar to that is presented to the special session of the legislature," asked Corporation Counsel Sexton, "will you appear before the legislature either for or against it?"

"I have never appeared for or against any tax legislation, except when requested once or twice, since I have been on the board of review," replied Mr. Litsinger.

The board of review expects about 30,000 complaints against the pending 1930 assessment. Today is the final day for receiving complaints.

S. E. Thomason figured out for his colleagues of the revenue commission that if the board gives each complaint two minutes and the board works every day for eight hours, it will be Dec. 31 before all have been heard.

"All Entitled to Hearing."

Time and again Mr. Litsinger said that every complainant was entitled to a hearing. He promised that all reasonable speed will be used to get the assessment reviewed, but did not indicate when that task, in his opinion, will be finished.

Mr. Sargent presented to the commission data indicating that the board of review held infrequent sessions to review the 1929 assessment.

The members of the board of assessors sent "regrets" for their nonappearance. It was pleaded that John Conroy of that board is ill at home, but no reason was assigned why Assessors John E. Traeger, Walter W. L. Meyer and Gene Oliver did not appear, except that they had been working hard on the 1930 assessment. They asked for another date, but the commission did not indicate whether one will be arranged.

Plan to Invite Aldermen.

The commission—which is headed by Joseph K. Brittain—will invite the members of the city council finance committee to explain their 1930 budget next Tuesday evening. This budget, it has been charged, is $11,000,000 to $13,000,000 over the expected revenue, due to the failure of the taxpayers to pay their tax bills.

In a speech before the Chicago Association of Commerce soon after his election, Mayor Cermak said that the city council has been appropriating more money than it should.

QUEEN HELEN QUITS RUMANIA; SEEN AS BEGINNING OF EXILE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 17.—Another leaf in the troubled book of Queen Helen of Rumania was turned today when, with resignation born of years of trouble, she renounced her title as queen and left the capital, possibly for ever. She was accompanied by her brother, former King George. They had tickets for London.

The train left Bucharest at 3:25. The government attempted to misinform the newspapers by announcing that Helen had already left this morning, but five minutes before the departure of the train she arrived accompanied by Dowager Queen Marie, the former king of Greece, Prince Nicholas, Princess Ileana, and Prince Anton of Hapsburg who will marry Ileana at Sinaia on July 26.

Four army officers and a small crowd of sightseers were the only other persons to see Helen leave. Queen Marie cried. Princess Ileana kissed the hands of Helen, who appealed yesterday in a hand written letter to King Carol: "I ask your majesty to be allowed to renounce the title of queen and take the title of princess."

EMPLOYES STORM SCHOOL OFFICE DEMANDING PAY

City's Salary Cut Plan Runs Into Snag.

others were those of the Municipal court judges, clerks, bailiffs and probation officers.

Collector Szymczak sent the aldermanic pay roll back to City Clerk Brady. The pay rolls were for the first half of July, and the deductions, at the rate of one day for each pay period, were ordered started July 12.

Court Pay Roll Is Problem.

A more serious situation exists as regards the Municipal court pay rolls. According to Corporation Counsel Sexton, the council has no power to order reductions in the court pay rolls. It was pointed out that in the past, when the council refused to appropriate what the judges of the court considered an adequate sum for their activities, the judges obtained a mandamus compelling larger appropriations.

Chief Justice Sonsteby has called a meeting of Municipal court judges to discuss the pay cuts, it was stated at his office. Their action will probably be made known next week.

Aldermen Doubt Effect.

Harold D. Crotty, chief license clerk and right hand man to Clerk Brady, stated that the deductions had not been made from the aldermen's salaries because they are elected officials, and there is doubt as to whether the ordinance applied to them. It was reported that City Treasurer Kearns, also an elected official, would demand that he be exempted from the salary cut. He refused to commit himself on the matter yesterday.

When Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] heard of the failure to dock the aldermen he called Controller Szymczak and instructed that official to make the deduction from his check.

Alderman Orders Pay Cut.

"I voted for that ordinance with the understanding that aldermen were to be included. I'll take my deduction with the rest of the city employés," he said. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] also demanded that he be docked, as he had voted for the ordinance.

Mayor Cermak has given orders that the two weeks' deduction be made from his salary.

The deductions of a day's pay for each employé on the five pay rolls submitted yesterday would have amounted to $5,890. Unless the matter is adjusted, the total loss to the economy plan will be $82,460.

HOLD INQUEST ON BURNED BOY.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Frank Tarantino, 18 years old, 3215 Princeton avenue, who was fatally burned in an explosion when he struck a match to light a cigar in a gasoline filling station at 3101 South La Salle street Thursday night.

'MA' KENNEDY'S 'HUSBAND' SUED FOR A DIVORCE

Not to Remarry Him Later, She Says.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 17.—(AP)—The Rev. G. Edward Hudson, husband of Mrs. Minnie [Ma] Kennedy, was sued late today for divorce by another wife, Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson, whom Mrs. Kennedy named yesterday in suit for annullment of her own marriage.

Mrs. Newton-Hudson charged cruelty, desertion, misconduct with another woman and adultery.

Her attorneys indicated that she would appear as a prosecution witness against Hudson if bigamy charges are filed in Washington, where he married Mrs. Kennedy, mother of the evangelist, Aimee Semple McPherson, last June 28.

Hudson in Seclusion.

The Rev. Mr. Hudson, who was known as a New York minister at the time of his marriage in Longview, Wash., in a romantic midnight ceremony on the shores of a moonswept lake, remained in seclusion today.

Mrs. Kennedy, however, held lengthy audiences with reporters and hinted of "gold digging" designs against her husband. She said he would have to "fight his own battles" in straightening his marital tangles.

Reversing previously declared intentions, Mrs. Kennedy indicated later that she has abandoned hope of another wedding to Hudson.

Ready with Her Blessing.

After hearing of the divorce suit and learning that she could not remarry for more than a year, Mrs. Kennedy-Hudson said: "If the other lady considers herself his wife I will gladly relinquish him to her and perform a new marriage ceremony for them myself and give them our rings and my blessing."

Mrs. Newton-Hudson said she did not know the name of the woman mentioned in her charges, but alleged that the latter and Hudson lived together here for a period after April 1, 1930. Mrs. Hudson said he left her with about $300 in household bills unpaid.

About Feb. 15, 1930, Mrs. Hudson said, she went with Hudson at his request on a trip to San Jose, where he left her without paying the hotel bill.

Mrs. Newton-Hudson asserted in her divorce petition that Hudson has an income of about $500 a month in the advertising business and asked he be compelled to pay her $5,000 alimony in a lump sum.

PAIR FINED FOR 3 A. M. WHOOPEE ON OAK ST. BEACH

George Toll, 29 years old, 4706 Cottage Grove avenue, and Eugene Rand, 25 years old, 1836 South Avers avenue, were arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday morning by Lincoln park policemen after residents of nearby Lake Shore drive apartments had complained that the pair were whooping and yelling as they played in the water off Oak street beach. Judge Leon Edelman fined each of them $25 in the Chicago avenue court.

DEMOCRATS SLAP BACKS HERE OVER OUTLOOK IN 1932

N. Y. Leader Sees Rising Party Tide in West.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Democratic prospects in the west were discussed yesterday in conferences between James A. Farley, Democratic state chairman of New York, and Mayor A. J. Cermak, Thomas F. Donovan, Illinois state chairman; Edward P. Allen of Quincy, secretary of the state committee; Congressman A. J. Sabath, Col. A. A. Sprague, and other Democratic chiefs. Mr. Farley reported that 16 months ahead of the election it looks like a Democratic landslide in regions west of the Mississippi.

He was on his way back to New York after a trip through all states west of the river except Iowa, Arizona, and New Mexico. He had no comment to make on particular candidates, but declared that his researches in Minnesota, Montana, the Dakotas, and the mountain and Pacific coast states, and also in Indiana and Wisconsin, led him to the conclusion that in 1932 they will go Democratic.

Compete for Convention.

The outlook for Chicago landing the Democratic national convention was broached by Mayor Cermak. Mr. Farley said there is strong competition on the part of San Francisco, Cleveland, and Kansas City, which are also bidding for the convention. After the conferences the general opinion of the mayor and the other Chicagoans was that when the national committee picks the convention city in December the big argument as usual will be which city can offer the largest convention fund, and Chicago will outstep its competitors. "Besides," said Mayor Cermak, "72 per cent of the delegates will be from east of Omaha, which is a great argument for Chicago."

Mr. Farley declared in most of the states he visited the Republican organizations appear in the dumps over the 1932 outlook, while the Democratic organizations have buried factional differences.

"Throughout my tour," said Mr. Farley, "my conviction has been growing daily that the next Democratic ticket will sweep the west. With the election more than a year away, it appears at this time that the Democratic nominee will carry even more western states than did Woodrow Wilson in 1916. This time we may get even Minnesota, which Wilson lost by less than 500.

Tells Humorous Incident.

"In every state I have traversed I have found Democratic chiefs intent, so far as individual presidential candidates are concerned, upon nominating the Democrat who has the best chance of being elected and of carrying the most states.

"Ordinarily people I have sounded all seem to talk the same way in these western states. In Salt Lake City I had an amusing experience. Going to the hotel I asked the driver, 'How's business around here?' 'Business,' says the driver. 'Huh, why they've even laid off four Mormon prophets.'

"And you ought to hear them talk in California. If they vote in 1932 as they talk in 1931, Mr. Hoover, in my opinion, would lose his home state. Democratic organizations, from Indiana and Illinois, across to Montana, Washington, and Oregon, are on their tiptoes, while in these states Republican leaders appear to be openly apprehensive that 1932 will go Democratic."

Other travelers dropping in at state headquarters declared that the state of Washington is aiming to be the first state to pick a delegation to the Democratic national convention and instruct it for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Gunmen Rob Two Girls and Escort of Cash, Car

Two gunmen early this morning menaced Genevieve Conners, 20 years old; her sister, Catherine, 18, and their escort, James J. Brown, 7939 South Elizabeth street, and robbed them of $23.50 and an automobile. The holdup occurred in front of the Conners home at 5700 Aberdeen street. Brown lost $17 and his car. The sisters lost $6.50.

FREE TWO HELD FOR MURDER; ALL TOO INTOXICATED

Because they were so intoxicated that they could remember none of the events leading to the murder of James Burns, 3012 Wallace street, two men were freed by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court yesterday.

Both men, Alfred O'Neil, 41 years old, who lived with Burns, and George McGarth, 40 years old, 471 West 31st street, are employés in the meter department of the city water pipe extension bureau. They had been drinking with Burns and a fourth man, a legless cripple, James Pryor. The drinking lasted four days, and when police raided the place May 12, at the request of neighbors, Burns was found dead on the floor, his skull crushed and knife wounds in his back.

"The state has not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that these men are guilty," said Judge Burke when these facts had been presented to him. "All parties were intoxicated to the point of being stupified. Nobody knew what really happened."

FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities of $106,581 and assets of $41,750, was filed in the federal District court yesterday by Attorney Harold Jackson for himself.

ALDERMEN O. K. 2 NEW TAG DAYS; IGNORE CITY CODE

Committee Votes Permit to Disabled Vets.

Members of the city council finance committee overrode the policy set forth in the city code of confining tag days in Chicago to four a year and granted permits for two additional tag days yesterday. Their action must be ratified by the council.

ALD. GOVIER.

One of the permits gave the Disabled Veterans of the World War the right to hold Forget - Me - Not day on Sept. 12. The other authorized tagging on Aug. 15 for a milk fund sponsored by Mrs. W. R. Hearst.

The forget-me-not tag day last year had a sequel in a number of indictments voted by the grand jury, charging ten persons with racketeering in connection with the tag day. Two of those indicted, Daniel Sullivan and Harry Nierenberg, were former state officers of the organization. National officers aided in their prosecution.

It was charged in the indictments that the defendants obtained counterfeit forget-me-nots and collection cans, placed their own collectors on the street on the tag day and pocketed the proceeds. Sullivan, Nierenberg, and all the other defendants were acquitted when brought to trial.

Promotes Vets' Organization.

Nierenberg is now promoting an organization he calls the United Service Men's Association of America, with headquarters at 167 North State street. He proposes to charge a $1.50 yearly membership fee and claims to have prospects of signing up 1,000,000 members within the next nine months.

The purpose of the association, he explains, is to give war veterans a voice in politics. The association's first objective, he says, is repeal of the prohibition law.

Nierenberg designates himself "national commander" of the organization, and he has as an associate Charles V. Nolan, who calls himself "national adjutant general." Besides his professional activities among war veterans, Nierenberg operates an artificial flower factory.

Opposed by Govier.

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] introduced an ordinance permitting the Pasteurized tag day in the city council on July 6, and it was passed. Then Ald. Sheldon Govier [9th], chairman of the finance committee's subcommittee on tag days, protested, the action was revoked and the ordinance was referred to the finance committee.

Govier opposed the ordinance again yesterday before the committee. All veterans' organizations are supposed to share in the proceeds of tag sales on Poppy day, he pointed out, and at a recent meeting, he said, representatives of all such organizations except the Disabled American Veterans of the World War agreed to confine their tagging activities to Poppy day.

Refuse to Participate.

Representatives of the D. A. V. told the committee that they refused to participate in Poppy day because they were offered only 15 per cent of the proceeds, while the American Legion, under the plan, was allotted approximately 60 per cent. Aldermen who are members of the Legion pointed out that its activities include aid of all disabled veterans, whether they are Legion members or not.

Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th] demanded the financial report of the forget-me-not tag sale of last year. It showed that against collections of $50,221 there was charged off as expenses $21,300, leaving only $28,947 for relief work. He stated that he had heard that 15 per cent of the collections went to the national headquarters of the veterans' organization.

"People in Chicago are hard up enough without collecting money from them to be sent out of town," he said.

Permit Is Approved.

The permit was finally approved by the committee, with the proviso that 85 per cent of the funds collected shall be sent to Cook county, and that the chief of the finance committee shall exercise strict supervision over the conduct of the tag day.

"I'm going to resign as chairman of the tag day subcommittee, Ald. Govier declared when the action was taken. "You can't pass the buck to me and keep kicking me around. The council has no intention of confining tag days within the limits set by the city code."

At almost every council meeting, he said later, some alderman introduces as new business a permit for some neighborhood tag day, in spite of the rule that all such matters should be referred to the subcommittee.

Little Wanderer Nursery Enjoys Its 26th Birthday

The Little Wanderer Day nursery, 816 West Chicago avenue, forgot all about the heat yesterday because it was the nursery's 26th birthday, and there was, of course, a party. Twenty-seven smiles gleamed on the birthday cake, the children were bright-eyed and happy over their refreshments, and board members, meeting to review the past history of the institution, expressed their pride in its accomplishments. The board hopes to raise $24,- by a public appeal, so the work of the nursery may be continued.

WAGE LAW COSTS COUNTY MONTH IN ROAD BUILDING

Contracts to Be Let in August.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Cook county highway department, facing less difficulties than the state in the administration of the "prevailing wage act," will be able to resume the awarding of road contracts late next month after a month's delay in construction. The state will be able to get little more work done in the remainder of the paving season on the $17,000,000 of its 1931 program for which contracts have not been awarded.

The new wage law, which became effective on July 1, provides that all political units of the state in awarding contracts for public construction should compel contractors to pay labor on a scale equal to that prevailing in the vicinity of the job. The sponsors of the bill said its purpose was to raise "pauper wages" that were being paid on some of the downstate road jobs.

Pay Union Scale Wages.

"The fact that this department has for years awarded contracts on a union wage scale basis," said D. M. Campbell, assistant county highway superintendent, "saves us much time and work in getting out new bids in accordance with the 'prevailing wage act.' We do not have to revise our estimates, as the state and most of the other counties have to do."

The announcement that new bids will be taken promptly means that construction will start next month on nine county pavement jobs, to cost approximately a half million dollars, which have been held up for thirty days pending an interpretation of the wage law.

SHERMER AVENUE—Lake avenue to Walters street, 2.77 miles.

AVENUE L—106th street to 95th street, 1.28 miles.

Mr. Campbell said he expected that all of these projects will be completed this fall with the exception of the Avenues O and L, where a new street is being opened across swampy land. The embankments will have to be graded and allowed to settle before concrete is poured, he explained.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—President Hoover today rejected the findings of a naval selection board—the first time since the Wilson administration that a President has taken such action. The recommendations were those of a board of the navy bureau of medicine and surgery, appointed recently to choose approximately seven lieutenant commanders for promotion to commanders in the navy medical corps.

The President's rejection of the board's recommendations was being connected with the fact that the name of Capt. Joel T. Boone, Mr. Hoover's personal physician, was not among those on the list. Capt. Boone, whose actual rank is that of lieutenant commander, was granted the usual temporary rank of captain by act of congress when he was selected for duty at the White House.

EX-JUDGE KILLS HIS SON-IN-LAW; FAILS IN SUICIDE

Former Congressman Is Victim.

Pine Bluff, Ark., July 17.—(AP)—Chester W. Taylor, former representative in congress from the Sixth district of Arkansas, was shot to death by his father-in-law, former Judge C. M. Philpot, while seeking a reconciliation with his wife here today.

Philpot, a former jurist of the Jefferson County court, then attempted suicide by shooting himself. The shots went wild, however, and he slashed his wrists, but did not inflict serious injuries. After Taylor's death a few hours after the shooting, the former judge was committed to the state hospital for nervous diseases at Little Rock. The commitment was ordered by County Judge R. H. Williams, who was told by the county physician that Philpot is insane.

Taylor, recently an employé of the state conservation department, served out the unexpired term of his father, Samuel Taylor, as Sixth district congressman upon the latter's death in 1921.

His wife left him two weeks ago and Taylor came here early today seeking a reconciliation.

He and Philpot were standing on the front porch discussing terms of the reconciliation when Philpot drew a pistol and shot Taylor in the head.

Philpot had served three terms as county judge and two as sheriff.

HELD AFTER MADISON ST. CHASE.

Earnest Mortimer, alias Edward Swanson, the fat 67 year old bandit suspect, who was captured after a chase in the 3200 block on West Madison street Monday, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday and was given a continuance until Aug. 19 on a charge of robbing a woman.

JOBS FOR 7,500 AS FULLER GETS FIELD CONTRACT

BY AL CHASE.

Five thousand men, a majority of them in Chicago plants, will be set to work within thirty days on steel and stone and other materials to be used in erecting Chicago's largest office structure, the forty-three story Field building, contracts for which were awarded yesterday on behalf of the Marshall Field estate, by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, to the George A. Fuller company of which Lou R. Crandall is president. The contract, one of the largest ever signed in Chicago, calls for the expenditure of $12,000,000 on the giant skyscraper, which will extend from La Salle to Clark on Adams street.

LOU R. CRANDALL.

In addition to the 5,000 men employed at manufacturing plants getting building materials ready, E. K. Collison, manager of the Chicago territory for the George A. Fuller company, states that a maximum force of 2,500 men will be engaged in erecting the building. This means, he points out, a total of 7,500 active workers will be employed in connection with the erection of this huge office building.

Built Field Predecessor.

In 1885 the George A. Fuller company, according to President Crandall, erected the Home Insurance building at the northeast corner of La Salle and Adams. Wreckers will start removing this old building on Nov. 1 to make way for the first unit of the Field building. The W. J. Newman company is the contractor on the wrecking job.

In December the Home Insurance building will be completely off the map and the Fuller forces will be at work on the new structure. This first unit will be completed Aug. 1, 1932, according to Mr. Collison. The second unit will replace the small building in between the Home Insurance and Standard Trust buildings.

All Complete by 1934.

The third unit will replace the old Standard Trust building, for many years the home of the former Merchants Loan and Trust company. Work will start on this on May 1, 1933, and on April 14, 1934, the entire three units will have been welded into one gigantic structure.

According to President Crandall, the George A. Fuller company, which originated in Chicago, although its general offices are now in New York, has erected buildings valued at $150,000,000 in Chicago.

As announced recently, the contract for 25,000 tons of structural steel for the Field building has been placed by the Marshall Field estate with the McClintic-Marshall corporation. According to George Richardson, trustee for the estate, this is the second largest contract for structural steel ever awarded in the Chicago area.

HUNT BAIL FOR WIFE HELD IN MATE'S DEATH

Mrs. Hazel Scott, 33 years old, held on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, Harold, in their home at 305 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, early Thursday, was transferred from the Oak Park jail to the county jail last evening after police waited a day for relatives or friends to raise money for her release. Her bond is set at $10,000.

Mrs. Scott collapsed yesterday morning after her arraignment before Police Magistrate Frank F. Aring in Oak Park. During the night she had been subjected to a lie detector applied by Charles M. Wilson of the coroner's office. Police said nothing significant was learned as to the truth or falsity of her story which they are inclined to doubt at points because of discrepancies in her statements. Mrs. Scott has said her husband committed suicide because of jealousy.

The hearing was continued until July 24. Meanwhile Scott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Scott of Richmond, Ind., who arrived yesterday, are endeavoring to raise bail for their daughter-in-law. Earlier yesterday Edward J. Hurtz, vice president of the paint concern which employed Scott as sales manager, informed Oak Park police that he would raise the bond.

DIES AFTER TAKING POISON.

Joseph Pamula, 32 years old, a laborer living at 3048 West 44th street, died yesterday in the county hospital after swallowing poison in a loop room Thursday. He was unemployed.

$1,000,000 BUILDING AT FAIR WILL SHOW AUTOMOTIVE CARS

Detroit, Mich., July 17.—[Special.]—Signing of contracts for the erection of an automobile display building as part of the transportation group of the Chicago Century of Progress exposition of 1933 was announced here today by W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor company. The building will have 100,000 square feet of display space and will cost $1,000,000.

Final negotiations between the motor company and the fair organization were completed with a special trip to Detroit by Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager of the fair. The building will be situated at 31st street and the lake, at the north end of the transportation group, and will contain complete lines and assembly groups of all General Motors corporation products. This is the first private building contracted for the exposition.

Afternoon Hours Granted for Sprinkling Lawns

Householders may sprinkle their lawns and gardens in the afternoon hereafter, as a result of action yesterday by the council finance committee in amending the sprinkling ordinance. A new sprinkling period, from 2 to 4 p. m., was established, and the evening period was changed from 7:30 to 10 p. m. to 8:30 to 10:30 p. m. Morning sprinkling hours remain unchanged.

MONEY FOR STREET REPAIRS.

The injustice of the present distribution of the gasoline tax is emphasized anew in the proposal of Ald. Orlikoski, who wishes the governor to include the matter in any call he may issue for a special session of the legislature. The alderman estimates that 40 per cent of the total of gasoline taxes collected in Illinois comes from Chicago, while only a small fraction of the money is available for construction and repair of the city's streets.

The estimate of Chicago's payments may be somewhat high, but if there is any error it is not sufficient to disturb his conclusion. It is known that more than 40 per cent of the automobiles owned in the state are owned in Chicago and it is also known that gasoline used for agricultural machinery is exempt from tax. The city motorist pays tax on all the gasoline he buys; the rural motorist can evade the tax by alleging the fuel is to be used in his tractor. How often this subterfuge is employed it is difficult to say, but it is to be believed the evasions are frequent.

Certainly the automobiles in Chicago and the other cities of the state are used more intensively than those in the country and the consumption of gasoline per car is therefore higher. There is scarcely room to doubt that Chicago alone pays well over half of the gasoline taxes and receives in return, for use within the city, only a negligible part of its contribution. The bulk of the money is spent on roads through relatively sparsely settled and sparsely traveled regions. Meanwhile, Chicago's streets are breaking down and money for repairs is lacking.

This is the type of injustice, not only to Chicago but to every other urban area in the state, which exists because the legislature will not reapportion its membership. Indeed, it explains in large measure the continuing refusal of the legislature to redistrict the state.

THE HOT WEATHER ON THE DEBTS.

Apparently the American people must prepare themselves for a better understanding of the economics of international relations, but it is not apparent that they will succeed. The subtleties are really defiant and the metaphysics more than ordinarily difficult. Imprimis it must be understood, after a public loan has been made but not before, that it cannot be repaid if the creditor nation is the United States. This is not because money laws are inherently discriminatory against the United States, but because of the domestic economic structure of the country.

The United States is a protective tariff nation and it has immigration restriction. Its public policy and the private enterprise of its citizens have developed its resources and piled up its wealth. The opportunities which this fortunate combination of public and private factors offers to the world have brought foreign investments in the United States to the present highest peak of about five billion dollars. The foreign taxpayer as a taxpayer is busted, as an investor he's solvent and adventurous. In other words, the private capital of Europe, the money of taxpayers constituting the debtor nations, has fled to the United States, where it earns a profit, but the money of these European taxpayers cannot be used to retire American Liberty or Victory bonds because of the very conditions—tariff and gold—which attract the money of the same taxpayers for profit.

To follow the revisionists and cancellationists further: The public debts owed the United States can be paid in only three ways, by goods, by gold, or by borrowings from the creditor. The United States will not take the goods itself, and its tariff says so. Its private enterprise chases its debtors out of foreign markets and prevents them acquiring the necessary favorable balance of trade anywhere. Furthermore, Europe cannot send its labor here and thus obtain the money needed.

Gold cannot be sent in payment because the withdrawal will bankrupt the debtor and the receipt of it will destroy the creditor by throwing his own economy out of gear. If the creditor will continue to lend money it can be applied on the debts. No matter how a cancellationist looks at the matter, the United States must pay itself if the debt is one to public funds. None of these immutable rules apply in the case of private credit.

Taking five billion dollars as a credit unit it becomes apparent that this sum may be transferred from Europe to the United States, as it has been, for the purchase of good dividend securities. It may be sent to Europe as private credit and it can then be repaid. But if it is money raised from American taxation and given to a European government it cannot be repaid because of economic obstacles.

It is of no avail for the national creditor to point to economies the debtor might make, such as reduction in military expenses. The problem does not enter here. A debtor nation may spend, say, a billion dollars in armament and remain happy and solvent. The money turns over at home, but the debtor would be ruined if he sent it abroad. It is to be remembered that this is only if it is a government debt. The German railways can repay the Chase National bank, but, as a taxpayer in the German economic scheme, could not pay the United States government. This distinction should never be allowed to become elusive. If it does, all comprehension of the problem will be lost.

It is also economically sound, when the debtor has proved his inability to pay a public debt because of the laws of exchange and the operation of the gold standard, to make him private loans of an amount equivalent to or greater than the sum in default. This will not only be of advantage to him, but it is thoroughly sound financing for the private creditor.

These facts and theories should not be taken into account when a government loan is to be made. They do not operate then. The laws become immutable after the credit has been given and used. This is the most delicate point the amazed American, as a taxpayer, will have to comprehend. If he misses it he is lost. If he gets it his money is.

A FAST ONE FROM SENATOR MOSES.

A Washington dispatch says that Senator Watson of Indiana left the capital for home hastily the other day and a statement of his reasons for it makes the haste quite reasonable. He had discovered that while he was preoccupied with good works and general public activities Senator Moses of New Hampshire had procured the specification of New Hampshire granite for the memorial to George Rogers Clark to be built at Vincennes. What would be thought and said of this in and about the limestone quarries of Bedford, Oolitic and Bloomington in Indiana is well within the imagination.

Senator Watson credits Senator Moses with the stroke of genius. The New Hampshire senator may protest that his Indiana friend does him too much honor, but if he does no one will believe him. Senator Watson says that an unfair advantage was taken of him, he being engaged in seeking relief for the wheat farmer when Senator Moses took a fat one right out of the hen coop. Senator Watson thinks that Senator Moses would have been much more creditably engaged in wheat relief or in any other altruistic, humanitarian work with a large horizon.

The New Englanders are practical men, as are the Californians and many of the southerners. They may not be starry eyed, but they can see a piece of change when it could be used by the home folk. New Hampshire regards wheat relief as an academic question, but a granite contract can be rung up on the cash register. Senator Moses is glad to see other persons nobly in pursuit of illusions of usefulness. It is very commendable and requires a large vision.

Senator Fess, the virile chairman of the Republican national committee, is chairman of the monument committee. Mr. Watson, now that the wheat is out of his eyes, thinks he can persuade Mr. Fess to reject the specifications, but one can never tell how Simeon's political ideas will jump. He may think that granite should be used to make sure of New Hampshire in the next election. Virginia might properly ask to be allowed to furnish the materials for the monument to a great son and Mr. Fess might think well of that, recalling the 1928 electoral vote, but if Hiram Johnson of California learns that the question has been reopened there is more than an even chance that Pacific coast muscle shells will be specified for the composition.

ADVICE FOR THE BROWN BROTHER.

Gov. Davis of the Philippines exhorts its people to forget politics and attend to interests of more importance to their welfare.

Wise counsel, doubtless, and about as effectual as blowing against the trade wind which flutters the palms of those romantic isles. It was a philosopher in strenuous New England who said men are as lazy as they dare to be, and in the tropics work is an undeniable evil which most men through the bounty of nature may pretty generally dare to avoid. Politics, on the other hand, is a pleasant and exciting employment, costing little perspiration and flattering an inexpensive pride. To invite the Filipino intellectual to turn from its joys and triumphs and spend laborious days in the counting room, the shop and the plantation is to ask those sun basking islands to set sail for a storm anchorage under wintry skies, where the lot of man is and always has been labor and the tree of life drops no bread fruit or bananas in his lap.

WHY FURTHER DEMANDS?

[New York Sun].

In a speech in Chicago Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, spoke of the desirability of legislation by the next congress to permit the veteran carrying government term insurance an additional three to five years in which to convert it into some other form of insurance. In a speech before the Disabled American Veterans at Wilkes-Barre Representative Patman of Texas, author of one of the proposals made in the Seventy-first congress to cash the veterans' adjusted compensation certificates, said that the Seventy-second congress would be asked to cash the certificates.

These announcements are an indication of the pressure that will be brought to bear upon the next congress. In the course of his speech before the disabled veterans Representative Patman urged a determined effort to obtain pensions for widows and orphans of world war veterans. Within the last year congress has amended the law to give disability allowances to those veterans whose disability cannot be traced to war service and has changed the loan provisions of the adjusted compensation act to permit borrowing up to 50 per cent of the face value of the certificates. In twelve months the first change has added 186,000 veterans to those receiving aid from the government. More than 500,000 applications for disability allowances have been received. The second change has resulted in checks for more than $732,000,000 in loans being sent out to 2,800,000 veterans in the last four months.

In a recent statement issued in anticipation of the close of the fiscal year Col. George E. Ijams, director of the veterans' bureau, said that veterans of the world war are receiving the benefits of the "most generous and extensive relief system of all time." Thirteen years after the war, when most of the veterans of the war are in their thirties, the government is aiding more than 525,000 of them by payment of retired pay, disability allowance or compensation for disability incurred in war. Why members of congress should urge veterans' organizations to make further demands upon a government that has been so generous is far from clear.

CONTROLLING HOOKWORM AND MALARIA.

It is possible for any community in North America to bring malaria and hookworm under control. The only question is as to whether they are willing to take the trouble. There should be some evidence, else the above statement should not have been made. Here is the evidence:

The Florida state board of health decided to find an answer for the question, "Can malaria and hookworm be controlled?" They picked the Mill Creek neighborhood, in St. John county, as a fair place in which to make a trial. With the coöperation of the local health department, the physicians, and the people, they examined every person, regardless of age, in the community.

The examination was for infection with hookworm and malaria. Eighty-eight per cent of the entire population were found to have hookworm. The proportion of malarially infected was found to be high. A large part of those with hookworm and malaria were not aware of the facts—did not even suspect them. They had indigestion, liver troubles, anemia; they had no pep, had frequent headaches, but they did not know why.

Then followed the work of control. It consisted of treating the malarial, including the malaria carriers; of treating for hookworm; of screening homes; draining the soil; killing mosquitoes; prevention of mosquito breeding and building sanitary toilets; providing good water supplies, and advising children to wear shoes.

At the end of a year a resurvey was made. The percentage of people having hookworm had dropped from 88 to 5, and there was virtually no malaria. That statement interests the layman less than the following: "The most striking feature of the entire demonstration was the marked change in the physical aspect of the people.

"Children, previously hookworm and malaria infested, and now free of disease, were found to be mentally alert, rosy cheeked, and full of the vigor of health; former repeaters in the schools were found to be among the brightest pupils, in many instances; better nutrition and gain in bodily weight were notable; the community as a whole showed improvement in personal appearance and renewed energy and vigor in their economic activities about the homes."

The experience in Mill Creek can be duplicated in every community in the state. The solution is plain. The plan is practical extension of adequate health service to the rural population through the agency of the whole time county health units.

IT IS NETTLE RASH.

E. F. writes: What causes small welts to appear on the skin after retiring and only at irregular intervals? They are somewhat irritable, but soon disappear, leaving no marks.

REPLY.

The common name for this disorder is nettle rash. It is caused by exposure of your skin to something to which it has been sensitised. If you avoid the cause the disease will not appear.

Since it develops while you are in bed consider as possible causes bedbugs, feathers, blankets, and warmth.

MAY MEAN MANY THINGS.

A. E. D. writes: Could you tell me the causes, if any, for a slight puffiness of the lower lid of the eye?

REPLY.

It may mean Bright's disease or heart disease. It may mean acidity. If organic disease is the cause have the underlying disease treated. If it is due to a local acidosis change your diet and your habits. Eat more vegetables, fruits, and milk, and less bread, cereal, and meats. Some people drink mildly alkaline waters. Get more exercise.

SLEEPING OVER WATER.

A. E. W. writes:

1. Does it affect any one to sleep over water all the time? My bedroom is over the cistern.

2. I am hard of hearing and have catarrh and some pleurisy. Would these be made worse?

REPLY.

1. Not if conditions are otherwise good.
2. Probably these disorders would not be made worse.

PARENTS NOT LIABLE.

Chicago, July 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some children are playing baseball on the street. Mr. A.'s child bats the ball through Mr. B.'s window. Is Mr. B. justified in demanding that Mr. A. pay the cost of a new window?

An auto windshield is broken in the same manner, while the car is parked in front of the owner's home. Can the car owner sue the parents of the child who batted the ball? L. R. K.

1. The parent is under no legal liability if that is what you mean to ask.
2. Not with prospects of recovery.

MORE FACTS NEEDED.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—At the time a Chicago bank closed recently there were some bonds due for payment of principal and interest through their bond department. The money was deposited by the owners and a check sent me in payment, but before I could cash the check the bank had closed.

1. I am not a depositor of the bank. Are they liable for payment? In case a receiver is appointed would I have a preferred claim?

2. Another bond was being held by the bank in trust on which the interest was due.

3. The money to cover the interest was deposited by the owner, but the bank did not send me a check for same.

4. Would this amount be included in my claim or can I make demand on the bank for the bond and collect the interest from the owner when I have received the coupon? G. I.

1. You do not give the debts nor do you state whose check was sent to you or by whom.

2. Trust for whom?

3. Ordinarily, the payment would be made by the maker rather than by the owner.

4. If the bank holds assets which can be identified as yours, you would, in general, be entitled to claim them. Your facts are not clear enough for us to advise to your advantage.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. M. S.

G. WASHINGTON SAID CUT OUT THE CUSSIN', according to an orderly book kept by a sergeant-major at George's headquarters. "The Genrl. hopes and believes his officers and men will comply with his excellency's wishes to unite with him to discontinue and banish the odious and sinful practice of swearing, so unbecoming a soldier and a Christian." Thus wrote the gentle sergeant-major (sergeant-majors are about as gentle as a hungry Bengal tiger), but he doesn't touch on the few burning words that the Genrl. is said to have addressed to Gen. Charles Lee at the battle of Monmouth, such if we had been, for obvious reasons we would not repeat them here, but say they were somewhat to this effect: "You blankety-blank-blank son of a cross-eyed banana, what the blankety-blankety-blank do you think you are doing with this most reprehensible and cocke-eyed bunch of birds what call themselves an army?" Not that that changes what the Genrl. ordinarily thought and practiced. It simply proves that there come moments in every one's life when nice sweet words simply serve no purpose. And when the necessity arose we must say G. Washington rose to it in a manner that would win applause from the mate of an old-time Mississippi river steamboat.

SUMMER WORSHIP.

I worship the God of the grasses,
Of quivering elms and the sea,
And every stray breeze that passes
Is laden with wisdom for me.
I find Him in sky-topping mountains,
In deep, shaded valleys of fern;
He sings in the crystalline fountains
And broods as the autumn fires burn.

The gardens bring news of His glory—
The forest-lands, hoary with age;
The years are aflame with His story,
Each day is a luminous page.
I worship the God of the grasses,
The Lord of the dawn-tinted skies,
And every stray breeze that passes
Is sweet as some lost Paradise.

THE MORE BEAUTIFUL highway movement has started with a parade of cars over our roads looking for opportunity to improve the view. We know several things that would make the landscape appear much more lovely. Order all the rusty, dirty old rattling tin cans that used to be automobiles to get off the road and stay off; compel fat ladies to stop parking their cars in the traffic lanes while they climb out and souvenir all the pretty wild flowers in sight; and lastly, soak heavy fines on all motorists who love to add to the beauty of nature by tossing out fat ham sandwiches, hot dogs and chicken bones as they journey happily along.

I hang up quickly, lest while I am talking
That you might try, some time, to call again.

EXPERTS tried to cheer us through another day of a-hundred-degrees-in-the-shade-and-there-wasn't-any-shade weather yesterday by predicting that trade didn't show much indications of an upturn during next winter. But there'll be snow next winter, won't there? And icy blizzards? And the thermometer may go to twenty or forty below zero, may it not? And we can get our feet and our ears froze stiff, can't we? YOU'D THINK HE'D LEARN BETTER EVENTUALLY, BUT HE'S BEEN CARRYING ON LIKE THAT FOR YEARS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 18, 1915.

NEW YORK.—The Cunard liner Orduna, bound from Liverpool to New York with 227 passengers, including 22 Americans, was attacked without warning, it was learned on its arrival here today, by a German submarine on the morning of July 9. It escaped the Lusitania's fate by a one-half of a second in time, or 10 feet in space. The torpedo churned the water just that distance behind the liner's rudder.

LONDON.—That the Lusitania was torpedoed "not merely with the intention of sinking the ship but also of destroying human lives" was the official finding today of Lord Mersey, who presided at the board of trade inquiry. He held that the German charge that the Lusitania was armed, that it carried masked guns and trained gunners, and that it was being used as a troop transport had been proved untrue. He also found that the liner was torpedoed without warning and that none of the passengers was given the slightest opportunity to escape.

PARIS.—German artillery shelled Reims for more than an hour, sending at least twenty shells crashing into the heart of the city and around the famous cathedral. One civilian was killed and others wounded during the bombardment.

JULY 18, 1901.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Despite boasts of the steel corporation officials, they failed to reopen the Wellsville, O. sheet steel plant, and the leaders of the Amalgamated association are in position to claim a decided victory in their strike. The plant was to have resumed work today with nonunion men, but the workers won and it remained idle.

CHICAGO.—After sweltering in a temperature ranging from 78 to 92 degrees, with from 45 to 75 per cent humidity, relief came to citizens of Chicago last night in a heavy rainstorm.

CHICAGO.—An issue of scrip for the payment of city employés is looked to as the one means of saving the city from a total abandonment of many of its most important duties to citizens. When the department heads responded to the controller's call for a 20 per cent reduction, and presented schedules of work which would have to be stopped, both the mayor and Mr. McGann took alarm.

LONDON.—Eleven thousand English Free Masons attend the installation of the duke of Connaught as grand master of the United Grand lodge in succession to Edward VII. Albert hall was thronged with members of the grand lodge, past and present, and with the masters and wardens of the English lodges. As it was in 1875 when the prince of Wales was placed on the Masonic throne, the ceremonial was virtually the same and was most solemn and impressive.

JULY 18, 1881.

ST. PAUL.—Additional particulars from the tornado at New Ulm show the disaster to have been more widespread and desolating than even was supposed. Descriptions of eye witnesses give many strange and graphic occurrences. A child of Fritz Dickmyer was carried over half a mile and is still alive. Martin Frank of West Newton was found dead a mile from his house, but not a piece of his house or contents has been found since the storm. Of the family of seven of Matthew Finley of West Newton but one remains alive, an infant. A family of five was buried in the ruins of a house near Fort Ridgley. One horse had a scantling driven clear through him.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Garfield's physicians issued the following statement: "Our expectation of favorable progress has been fully realized by the manner in which the President has passed the day. He has taken more solid food and with greater relish than hitherto, and his afternoon fever, which is as slight as that of yesterday, came on later. At 1 p. m. his pulse was 94, temperature 98.5, respiration 18."

PREPARING US FOR THE CONFERENCE.

Fort Atkinson, July 14.—Nationalism no longer finds great favor with the masses. Even the person who has not studied international affairs is beginning to realize that the editorial in today's TRIBUNE, "Preparing Us for the Conference," can be interpreted in terms of money, lives, and good will—to the detriment of the United States.

Senor de Madariaga, formerly of the secretariat of the league, in his book "Disarmament," attacks the attitude of the United States toward the league. But this did not keep him from being "persona grata" when appointed as ambassador to this country by the new Spanish republic. The heads of the American government fully appreciate [and at heart sympathize with] his views; there only remains the education of the senate. Why, then, should there be "a prompt and emphatic reply from Washington" to the noteworthy candor of England's three leading statesmen?

It is mentioned that the United States has already made sufficient sacrifices of naval arms. If she has not built up to the maxima of the London treaty, it is because the higher officials are doing as much as they dare to advance international good will, without invoking too much wrath from the militarists [which, after all, is their business] and those who can fortunately be militarists in spirit without being so by profession.

Superficial observers of the Monroe Doctrine have interpreted it as a dogma of "splendid isolation." Scholars, however, are agreed that it placed the United States above the petty European intrigues of the period so that she could become the international leader which she is. It is evident that this leadership can no longer be maintained if we remain without the pale of a world community.

To join the league of nations would be a wonderful step. And we would not have to "fear" the other powers, as unanimous action is necessary for matters of policy. We already have members on most of the league committees. Why should we not have the advantages of full membership? J. I. H. EALES.

POLICE UNIFORMS.

Chicago, July 14.—Regarding the article on police uniforms dated July 10, may I say that I wear them all day long and heartily welcome the order to change? It is worth $15 of any man's money to be rid of the puttees alone, which keep my legs soaking wet from perspiration. Doubtless the infection is a result of the dye from the trousers which is all over my legs after a day's work.

This order does not affect the traffic or motorcycle divisions, who are the only ones standing in rain, slush or snow all day. As far as keeping the new trousers pressed is concerned it is just as easy to do that as to shine puttees. Some men will look sloppy no matter what they wear. The expense of puttees and breeches together is about $5 to $7 more than regular trousers and this is a 50 per cent in saving in itself. B. H.

OUR DEBT TO EUROPE.

Chicago, July 12.—Those propagandists and hyphenates who keep telling Americans how little we did for Europe because we did not have 5 or 10 million casualties need to be reminded that if we had lost only 10 men in the struggle for democracy in which we fought shoulder to shoulder with a dozen kings and czars and emperors and what not, it would be 10 too many.

It was their war and no matter what we contributed to do the job we saved them one and all from the most decisive and humiliating defeat in the history of the world.

They were crying for help, hoping and lying for it, and they got it as soon as they caught their breath, which was just about beaten out of them. They used it to call their rescuer "the luck."

TEN THOUSAND SWEDES.

Chicago, July 14.—I wonder if Edward L. Taylor was spoofing Vol. Ed when he asked about the song—

Ten thousand Swedes
Ran through the weeds
At the battle of Copenhagen.

We are within the octave of that great Orangeman's feast, the battle of the Boyne, and a jingle runs through my head that goes something like this:

There was an awful slaughter,
Ten thousand Micks laid down their sticks
At the battle of Boyne Water.

The "Ten thousand Swedes" is undoubtedly an adaptation of this. There are several thousand Orangemen who will be glad, much too glad, to give the rest of the jingle and many more thousand Irishmen who will explain that it is all wrong. However, none of these letters is liable to contain the fact that were very few sons of Erin in the battle of the Boyne. G. H. B.

THE COMPLETE TEXT.

Chicago, July 14.—It goes this way:

Ten thousand Swedes ran through the weeds,
Chased by one Norwegian.
The dust from the weeds
Made snuff for the Swedes

A FOOTBALL MEMORY.

Chicago, July 14.—Let the man who is plagued by "Ten thousand Swedes" be comforted. The athletic community knows no sequel to his famous three lines. It does, however, associate them and will forever with Oberlander, the great Dartmouth half back of six or seven years ago. When Oberlander crouched behind the line of scrimmage and with his back to it, keeping the pigskin out of sight, he recited slowly and methodically the saga of the Swedes. When he finished he turned around and threw the ball to a man. As you may recall, there was usually a Dartmouth back or end waiting for it in comfortable isolation from the enemy. ROBERT FOLLAS.

$12,000 U. S. JOB IS OPEN HERE WITH NO TAKERS

Wanted: Chicago Millionaire for Reserve Board.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JOHN W. O'LEARY

Such a man is wanted by the Hoover administration to fill the sole existing vacancy in the board. The administration has been searching for several months for a qualified Chicago man willing to make a financial sacrifice for the opportunity of making a great name for himself in the management of the banking system of the greatest creditor nation in the world.

The Chicago federal reserve district, including the northern half of Illinois, all of Iowa, almost all of Indiana, the southern half of Wisconsin, and the lower peninsula of Michigan, is the largest without a representative on the reserve board. As the second largest banking center in the country the Chicago district is entitled to a member. New York holds the governorship of the board, in the person of Eugene Meyer.

Chicago Has First Call.

President Hoover believes the Chicago district should be represented and would prefer a man trained up in the business community of the city of Chicago, capital of the Mississippi valley. But if he cannot find the right man in Chicago the appointment will go to some other part of the Chicago district or to some other district not represented by the board.

The job has already been turned down by several Chicagoans, among them being John W. O'Leary, banker, and manufacturer, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, member of President Wilson's first industrial conference, vice treasurer of the Republican national committee in the Hoover campaign, a native of Chicago and all round representative of the "great central market." Mr. Hoover, the members of the reserve board, and leading Chicagoans endeavored to persuade Mr. O'Leary to accept the appointment, but he felt he could not make the sacrifice.

Chicago Banks Different.

The reason a Chicago financier is wanted for the place is that the Chicago banking interests are a pretty independent lot and have demonstrated that they can make life very uncomfortable for the reserve board and the administration when their advice is disregarded.

For one thing, the board has found out that the Chicago bankers, with their close roots in agriculture, manufacturing, and other production of wealth in the entire region west of the Alleghenies, are far more representative of the business activities of the country than are the New York banking interests, with their chief concern centering in the Wall street stock market and foreign investments.

The board had a sad experience back in 1927, when it listened too much to New York and too little to Chicago. Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, came over to persuade a reduction of the American discount rate sufficient to reverse the flow of gold from London to America, which was threatening the stability of the pound sterling. He enlisted the aid of the late Gov. Strong of the New York reserve bank and between them they rounded up a majority of the reserve board for the reduction.

But Chicago Balks.

The Kansas City reserve bank was asked to launch the reduction, under the guise of an aid to the movement of gold. The Chicago reserve bank refused to fall in line. The Chicago bankers knew the crop movement existed in the west; they asserted a reduction of the rate was not justified and would only encourage an orgy of stock speculation, which it did. Nevertheless, the board forced the Chicago reserve bank to reduce the rate.

Since it leaked out that the board had lost itself to a scheme to help Europe out of a tight place at the expense of America, and then a storm of protest arose, a congressional investigation was averted only by a shakeup of the board by President Coolidge. Gov. D. R. Crissinger resigned under fire and was replaced by Roy Young of Minneapolis.

TEXAS RANGERS MAN BRIDGE ON OKLAHOMA LINE

Clash with Highway Crews Across River.

Denison, Tex., July 17.—(AP)—Texas rangers and crews of the Oklahoma highway department manned the Denison-Durant bridgehead in the "battle of the Red river" tonight, under the direction of their respective commanders in chief—Gov. Ross S. Sterling and Gov. W. H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray.

The Texas forces were deployed to block the action of Murray, who cut through red tape and threw open to motorists three free bridges across the river without consulting Texas officials.

On the Oklahoma side the highway crews were tearing up approaches to toll spans near two free bridges, so that the pay bridges would be put out of commission.

Shunt Traffic to Free Bridge.

Texas rangers threw up a new barrier at their end of the Denison-Durant free bridge here, replacing one torn down on Gov. Murray's orders. Then Gov. Murray, threatening use of the National Guard if his men were molested, directed that traffic be shunted to the Preston free bridge, in another county. His state's highway workers were ordered to plow up 200 feet of the Oklahoma approach to the Denison toll span.

Mindful of a federal injunction obtained by the Denison toll bridge owners to prevent opening of the free bridge, Gov. Sterling told Adjt. Gen. W. W. Sterling of Texas: "Close the highway bridge at Denison and keep it closed."

Then Gov. Sterling, former highway commission chairman, wired Gov. Murray:

"I feel you have extended your jurisdiction beyond all reason. Certainly I cannot join you in attempting to make a federal court injunction inoperative. I have sent Texas rangers to protect Texas highway employes endeavoring to obey the court injunction, on request of the Texas highway commission."

Murray's Reply by Wire.

Back across the telegraph wires came a reply from Murray. In part it said:

"I assume you desire the opening of this bridge or Texas would not have gone to the expense of construction. Please remember the eleventh amendment to the constitution of the United States, which precludes the dragging of a sovereign state into a federal suit by private citizens."

In this last he was borne out by Washington authorities. Murray anticipated new litigation in the federal Circuit court of appeals and in District court at Durant to prevent Oklahoma from destroying business of the bridge company. An order was asked in the Durant District court by the bridge owners to require removal of the barricade.

Gov. Murray said he would yield to Gov. Sterling's "military power" at the south end of the bridge, but contended Oklahoma had a right to remove obstacles from the span itself, since it shared the expense of building it.

SENATOR D. A. REED JOINS IN ATTACK ON FARM BOARD POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—Another Republican stalwart flouted the administration and came out against the federal farm board today, when Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] announced that he would ask the federal trade commission to undertake an immediate investigation of the Land o' Lakes Creamery company of Milwaukee, a cooperative nanced in large part by the board.

SENATOR DAVID A. REED

In addition, the senator addressed a letter to W. A. Moody, president of the St. Louis Live Stock exchange, in which he declared:

"I am rapidly reaching the conclusion that the federal farm board is perhaps the most pernicious example of misdirected paternalism to be found in our whole government structure. It is probable that the only real cure for it is to wipe it out. From the way things are going I am of the opinion that it will not long survive the denunciation of its policies by business men and farmers alike."

PART OF FAMOUS ROBINSON CRUSOE ISLAND VANISHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 17.—Six persons were killed at noon today when a part of the island of Juan Fernandez, 350 miles off Valparaso, suddenly glided into the ocean, it was announced by the war ministry. The disaster, which was attributed to effects of a strong storm and a tidal wave which swept it, affects Cumberland bay, the only harbor on the island, and surrounding hills.

It was Juan Fernandez island which inspired the book "Robinson Crusoe" by Daniel Defoe. That story is supposed to have been based on tales told by Alexander Selkirk, a sailor who was left on the island following a mutiny on his ship in the 17th century. After the island became a possession of Chile, following Chilean independence in the 19th century, it was used for years as a state prison.

WHY TAKE PILLS?

THERE'S no need to drug yourself with laxatives when constipation can be overcome by eating a delicious cereal. Mr. F. C. Aminsen, Kennyhole, Washington, writes:

"I suffered with chronic constipation for many years and was compelled to use pills every night, but since I got your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it works fine. I would not be without it. I was so deathly sick of taking pills every night. Now it is so different. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works so naturally and is pleasant to take."

Just eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily. Relief is guaranteed. It is the natural, safe way.

Delicious with milk or cream, fruits or honey added. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood. In the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

DEPUTY SLAIN IN GUN FIGHT WITH 3 BANK ROBBERS

Two Bandits Wounded and Third Captured.

Seize Second Automobile.

He jumped to the road and began shooting at the bandits, who, by this time, had halted R. H. Liebenow, auto dealer of Sheldon, Ill., and ejected him from his car. Mulchowski, under fire from the deputy, was crawling back to the wrecked auto to recover the money, but he was caught by a bullet from Ennen's gun and fell into a nearby culvert.

As Ennen turned his attention to the other two, who were by this time fleeing in Liebenow's car, the wounded bandit crawled through the culvert and approached Ennen from the rear. As the bandit crawled up the embankment Ennen turned around to face his gun.

"I give up; my gun's empty," the deputy shouted in surrender. But as he dropped the revolver and threw his hands into the air Mulchowski fired. The bullet pierced Ennen's heart. He crumpled into the dust of the road, dying at once. The slaying took place before the eyes of Mrs. Ennen, who stood in the road a few paces away.

Meanwhile Lanigan and Byrnes sped away toward Piper City, choosing to follow a zigzag course over dirt byroads in a westerly direction. Word was flashed ahead to Piper City and a posse was formed to meet the bandits.

Airplane Follows Fugitives.

Another call to Kankakee brought Pilot Delbert Koener of the Kankakee airport flying to the scene in a biplane. By circling over the bandit car he was able to indicate to the possemen the general direction followed by the fugitives.

Two miles south of Piper City the bandits' second auto came to misfortune, crashing into a ditch where it was found a few minutes lated by the Piper City possemen as they came racing southward to meet them.

Russell Brown, 15, a young farm hand, saw the men as they fled across a pasture and disappeared into the corn crib on the farm of his father, Will Brown. When the possemen arrived the youth climbed to the top of the crib and discovered the fugitives buried under the corn cobs. Frightened, the boy dived head first through the crib chute and slid out to the ground, where he notified the sheriff's men.

Bandits Surrender.

"Come out or we'll riddle you with bullets."

The pair climbed slowly out. Byrnes, who was bleeding freely from his wound, sank to the grass exhausted.

Meanwhile, here in Buckley, a village of 500 residents, a crowd of 200 angry citizens gathered and milled about the office of Dr. Edward Croissant, where Ennen's slayer was being treated for his wounds. Many carried revolvers, shot guns, or rifles, and shouted "Lynch him! String him up!"

Mulchowski had a narrow escape when Smith, brother-in-law of the slain deputy, climbed through the second floor window of the physician's office with a gun in an attempt to shoot the bandit. Extra reserves were summoned by Sheriff Ernest Phelps of Iroquois county and Sheriff Harry Reehl of Ford county.

As the deputies forced back the shouting mob Mulchowski was hurried to a waiting automobile. With a car of armed deputies ahead and another bringing up the rear he was hurried to Watseka. The bandit's head wound was not serious and he was placed in the hospital ward of the jail.

City Receives 150,000 License Tag Stickers

City Clerk Brady yesterday received a first installment of 150,000 windshield stickers which will be issued to automobile owners who have paid their 1931 city vehicle tax. The stickers will not be mailed out until the full order of 445,000 is received some time next week. They are to be affixed to the lower right hand corner of windshields. After their issue, drivers whose cars do not bear stickers will be stopped by police to determine if they acquired legally the metal vehicle tax tags on their cars.

U. S. ASKS POLICE TO ARREST FORTY OF CAPONE GANG

CRIMINAL COURT.

Irene Waida, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years at the Dwight reformatory by Judge Charles A. Williams.

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, on request of United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, yesterday issued a general order calling for the arrest of some forty hoodlums named with Al Capone in an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the dry laws. South State street police five days ago passed up a chance to arrest Joe Fusco, one of the leaders of the beer conspiracy, because, they said, they did not know he was wanted by the government. Fusco is the only big shot among the 69 indicted who is not under bond.

Sister Says Princess Who Leaped to Death Was Ill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 17.—Princess Anna Obolinski, who jumped to death off the Eiffel tower on Tuesday and nearly crashed into a group of tourists, had been suffering from a nervous disorder, her sister said today. She was also a victim of fear of high places. "My sister had no reason to commit suicide," Princess Gregorie Troubetzkoy said. "She was a victim of a nervous breakdown and she suffered from a strange phobia which led her to jump from the third platform of the Eiffel tower." Funeral services were held this morning in the Russian church in Paris.

DRY SPIES ARE WARNED OFF U. S. NAVY UNIFORM

Policeman Who Wore One Disciplined.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—The uniform of the United States navy cannot be used by prohibition enforcement agents or others engaged in the enforcement of the prohibition laws, as a disguise to hide their real status of identity.

DAVID F. SELLERS. (© B. & E.)

The navy department announced this policy today when a Philadelphia policeman, a member of the naval reserve, was ordered discharged from the reserve because of his use of the naval uniform in efforts to detect bootleggers. The policeman is Charles F. Lang, a former enlisted man of the navy.

The navy department, acting on the advice of Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general, took the position that the use of the uniform in prohibition enforcement or for other purposes outside the service is prejudicial to good order and discipline and the reservist who violates this rule is subject to court martial.

In the case of Lang, his immediate separation from the service, without recourse to court martial, was ordered.

Adams States Position.

The decision of the navy department was conveyed to Rear Admiral L. A. Bostwick, commandant of the League island navy yard, Philadelphia, by Secretary of the Navy Adams. Investigation of the Lang case was made by Admiral Bostwick. Secretary Adams' letter to Admiral Bostwick read:

"With further references to the case of Charles Paul Lang, U. S. N. R., a member of the Philadelphia police force, who made certain arrests in Philadelphia while wearing the uniform of a chief petty officer in the navy, you are informed that in the opinion of the judge advocate general, which opinion has been approved by the navy department, Lang is amenable to trial by a naval court martial for conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline. In view of all the circumstances, however, and as the power to discharge Lang is vested in the secretary of the navy, it has been decided to direct his discharge from the naval service without resource to a court martial."

Wants No Repetitions.

"The use of a naval uniform by the local police, who are not members of the naval reserve, or any other unauthorized persons in the manner employed by Lang is not only contrary to statute law, but is highly objectionable to the navy department and the commandant is therefore directed to confer personally with the mayor of the city of Philadelphia and endeavor to secure his cooperation in preventing a recurrence of this episode.

"It is requested that the navy department be informed of the result of this interview."

TWO ARRESTED IN STILL RAID.

Prohibition agents yesterday arrested Sam Monico and Tom F. Frazzetta in a raid on a small alcohol still in a house at 4316 South Maplewood avenue.

DAVID TO SPEED TRIALS TO REDUCE JAIL POPULATION

Efforts to reduce the number of inmates in the Cook county jail during the hot months were started yesterday by Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court. At present, 1,112 prisoners are held there for the county, Municipal court and federal authorities.

Judge David conferred with Chief Justice McGoorty concerning ways of disposing of cases rapidly, and it was decided to ask the state's attorney's office to canvass the jail for prisoners willing to plead guilty or waive jury trials.

Assistant State's Attorneys George Lavin and Jack Baum were assigned to this duty and will begin work today or Monday, questioning first the 750 persons already under indictment. Those willing to expedite their own trials will have their cases put on call as rapidly as they indicate their desires.

To apt an example, Judge David said that he will work extra hours on these cases and he offered to help any other judge with a crowded calendar. He will be glad to aid them if it will mean a more rapid disposition of indictments, he said.

Similar efforts have been made by Judge David each year for several years. Each summer when the heat becomes oppressive, he takes steps to clear the jail of all cases on which immediate action can be taken.

Two Victims of Shooting Deny Knowing Assailants

Despite lack of cooperation from the victims, New City police last night continued their investigation of the shooting early yesterday of Carl Klopp, 6104 South Keating avenue, a mechanic, and John Williams, 3420 West 61st place, an iceman. Klopp and Williams indicated to police that the shooting came of a dance hall incident at White City earlier in the night, but refused to name their women companions and denied knowing their assailants. They were taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was thought both would recover. The attack took place at 53d street and Spaulding avenue.

B. MOBRY HART, MANUFACTURER, IS FOUND DEAD

Raleigh, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—The body of B. Mabry Hart, 45, rich cotton manufacturer of Tarboro, N. C., was found in a dry bath tub in his room at a hotel here today by persons who entered the room to extinguish a small fire.

Coroner L. M. Waring, who ordered an inquest, said it appeared Hart either suffered a heart attack, or was overcome by fumes from the fire which was confined to the room and outer hall. The coroner said a partial autopsy failed to disclose any evidence of foul play.

The coroner had not determined the cause of the fire, which, he said, started following a party in Hart's room last night. Miss Julia Clark of Kinston, S. C., and Miss Norma Brewster of Tarboro, who occupied the room next to Hart's, were held for the inquest.

Police this afternoon sought an unidentified blond woman who was said to have been a member of the party.

Hart was one of the leading figures in strike disorders in Marion, N. C., during the summer of 1929. He was then president and principal owner of the Clinchfield mills where employés went on strike.

Retain Old Friends, Interests if You'd Safeguard Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

This oft repeated phrase: "I gave up all my friends for him," I find in Joe's letter.

Why, when a girl becomes interested in one man, does she give up her friends for him? Once in a long time, when one happens to draw a super-jealous creature, one might understand this decision. But most men like girls who are popular with other people. I don't mean necessarily with other men. Still, it doesn't hurt a girl's appeal to be desired by other men.

Turning your back on all the old friends is really bad business, both before and after marriage. Or on all the old interests, especially the latter before marriage. One needs different people and diversions to keep one from going stale and to prevent one from fixing too firmly on the object of the affections. That is, until there is no question but that marriage will shortly ensue.

A man meets a girl. She is engaged in interesting work, let's say. She knows interesting people. She has stories to tell about both work and people that are stimulating. Suddenly she drops away from the old atmosphere and much of the personality that attracted disappears too. There is a certain glamor that leaves when one strips herself of the former background.

Then, there is always the chance that the affair will not materialize—in which event, if you have let yourself be marooned in the company of one sole person, you are likely to be swamped with loneliness.

But what is not fair about the charge: "I gave up all my friends for him" is that in nine cases out of ten it is the girl's own doing. She isn't asked to give up her friends. It's been a purely voluntary assignment on her own part, sometimes, indeed, projected by the fear of introducing her young man into her circle. It's better to circulate about, anyway. Then, if anything does happen, there won't be that great gap in your life that is really responsible for girls thinking they've sacrificed years and opportunity for the one who failed them.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Uncertainty Whets Interest.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow. Should I let one of my girl friends tell him? M. C. B."

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

DANDELION PROBLEM.

Numerous inquiries and experiments concerning dandelions in lawns in Chicagoland indicate that not only are householders anxious to get rid of the weed pests in their attempts to beautify their yards, but that this area has problems peculiar to the treatment of weeds.

The recommendation often is made to apply ferrous ammonium, or aluminum sulphate to weed patches, to the individual undesirable plants or in a general broadcast application. The idea is to kill or discourage the dandelion, but more often the more practical method is to stimulate the desired grasses and clovers so that the weeds have little chance to crowd into a lawn.

One authority in Chicago has watched a three year experiment with several lawn areas. The recommended acid reaction sulphates have been applied at intervals until it has been found that at least five applications of the sulphate are required in a season to discourage the dandelions. Although Chicago soils as a rule are not rich in plant food, the clay and heavy loam soils contain considerable lime.

The purpose of the sulphate application is to create an acid condition in the soil, which, if done with sufficient sulphate but without other plant foods being added, changes the soil chemical content to an overbalanced condition.

In addition, the grass and clover will be blackened after each application, although they are more resistant to the sulphate burning than the dandelion's broad leaves. The resultant advice is to dig out individual plants, or if areas have become too badly infested, to remake the lawn, build up the soil fertility, plant good seed, and then keep ahead of the weeds with a thick matted turf.

Bright Sayings of the Children

My five year old niece came into the house with a pair of dirty hands. My sister looked at her and said: "You never saw my hands as dirty as yours."

"No, mother," replied Alice, "but grandmother did." P. S.

My daughter is 22. Our neighbor's small son, Billy, is 4. The other day she was taking Billy for a ride in her roadster. Billy, after being cleaned up for the outing by his mother, was heard to remark:

"Say, mother, I'd better have a little change in my pocket." J. F.

Black Chiffon Over Pink for Afternoon

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—One of the prettiest fashions ever to be invented has come back to Paris this summer with the return of black chiffon afternoon frocks over pale pink slips. Sweet and girlish, that's what it is.

These chiffon dresses, of which a smart example is sketched today, are, correctly speaking, late afternoon and early evening dresses, because in Paris nobody dresses up until around 5 o'clock at the earliest. In a black chiffon frock over a pale pink satin or crêpe slip you can carry on all through the evening when nothing formal is on the slate for the hours of electricity. Now that evening skirts are coming up to around the ankles and considerably higher, and that evening bodices are sporting sleeves, it is simple for a girl to wear one and the same frock for both afternoon and evening, particularly if that frock is black chiffon over pink.

The Molyneux dress sketched here is simple as can be, trimmed only with circular ruffles in doubles, which terminate the short sleeves and are placed in handkerchief points below the deep skirt yoke. The lower skirt is cut circular and reaches to about seven inches from the floor. The blouse is perfectly plain with a jabot of chiffon in front, and the belt is made of chiffon, too, buckle and all. It's over a foundation of pink moire ribbon. The foundation slip is pink crêpe de chine.

Vigorous Exercises Particularly Good During the Summer

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In the hot weather your natural inclination is not to stir yourself any more than you have to. In fact, medical men advise the older person to go lightly on exercise at this particular time of year.

And we all know that any person with a constitutional disorder should exercise only under the doctor's advice. But many of us are left who could afford to do our exercises in the hot weather with particular advantages. I'll name these.

First, for this summer exercise work I recommend taking a couple of glasses of water as a preliminary feature. Then work out until one really has experienced a good sweat. It may take courage. But it is a chance to rid the system of certain poisons that may become peculiarly obnoxious during the hot weather. I refer, of course, to body ordors.

And this water drinking and the subsequent exercise workout quickly eliminate said poisons and not only clean internally but externally. After the exercising period it is understood, naturally, that you will take a warm shower followed by a cool or very cold one, according to your reaction.

But the summer time does give you a marvelous opportunity to clear out those pores all over the body that may be clogged. If there are any rough spots on the body just try and see what this form of treatment does to smooth them off.

I notice around at some of the beaches in the vicinity of New York classes of women who are put through a series of movements preparatory to a dip in the water. And that's good, too. I wish more women would adopt such muscular performances.

But the whole point is that those of us who work, which means most of us, have to keep on working in the hot weather except for a brief vacation respite. We need the exercise just as much as ever, if not more so. So if you are in normal health, don't be afraid to keep your system well tuned up with the better circulation results of daily exercise.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

E. C.: TO PROMOTE THE growth of the eyebrows, brush them daily with a tiny eyebrow brush. First apply vaseline, then brush.

M. E.: BLONDS SHOULD USE rouge sparingly and only in the most subdued and delicate of colorings. Lipstick should be a light carmine rather than a conspicuous red.

HEBREW EDITOR HANGS HIMSELF; IN POOR HEALTH

New York, July 17.—[Special.]—Bernard Edelherts, 51, publisher of the American Hebrew magazine, one time assistant United States attorney general, and one of the outstanding Jews of the country, committed suicide by hanging himself in the bedroom of his home on West End avenue today. Protracted ill health was given by members of the family as the cause of the publisher's act. Mr. Edelherts had only recently returned from a sanitarium.

The body was found suspended by a rope from a clothes hook of a closet when members of the publisher's family went to summon him for breakfast.

As United States assistant attorney general, Edelherts appeared throughout the country in behalf of the government in a number of cases involving important points of law. In 1919 he obtained leave from the government to visit Poland and investigate massacres and outrages committed against the Jews in that country.

PROSECUTOR ASKS MAYOR TO FIRE MALOY'S BROTHER

Assistant State's Attorney C. E. Lounsbury, who obtained true bills charging Thomas Maloy, "czar" of the motion picture operators' union, and six others with conspiracy, conferred with Mayor Cermak yesterday. He is understood to have recommended the dismissal of Joe Maloy, brother of the "czar," who is city examiner of operators' licenses.

Mr. Lounsbury would issue no statement when he left the mayor's office but action on the matter was predicted within a few days. Another matter reported to have been taken up between the two concerned the issuance of what Lounsbury calls "fraudulent" licenses to operators.

It is charged in the true bills, which will probably be returned in open court Monday, that Poe Maloy made little examination of operators seeking a license and that when they were granted a temporary permit to work they were forced to pay 10 per cent of their wages to the union. Mr. Lounsbury is understood to have suggested to the mayor that these licenses be revoked.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. A porter's lodge, facing the Dixie highway, gives her the idea of starting a hot dog stand. She arranges with a milkman, who says he is Mr. Forman, brother of the Winstead dairies, to deliver milk. He is really Samuel Forman Winstead, son of Henry Winstead, town banker and holder of the Oakleigh mortgages. Sam, educated and traveled, prefers farming to finance. The Rutherford ladies "didn't" like the Winsteads, of carpetbagging stock, whose estate adjoined Oakleigh. Sally's efforts before her get the Stand ready for business. Antiques from Oakleigh are offered for sale. The venture is a huge success. The young set from town patronizes the place and Sally meets the handsome and romantic Lowndes Jennings. The interest on the mortgage falls due and Sally receives a receipted bill. Then Sally learns who the milkman is.

INSTALLMENT XII.

ROMANCE.

Sally was doing well. The road trade kept up, and she had added to her stock to meet the motorists' demands. Her friends and their friends continued to find the Shack a quaint and agreeable place for small teas and bridge parties. She had unearthed several other pieces from the Oakleigh attics and closets, but she missed the dairyman's good judgment. She rebelled with something like anger that half the pleasure and excitement of these finds of hers had lain in his quick recognition of their intrinsic value, in sharing the small adventure with him, in his pleasure when she made a ready sale.

Of course he had deceived her as to himself, he had impudently taken advantage of her ignorance of his identity to worm himself into her good graces. She had been friendly and unsuspicious, admiring the supposed mountain boy's unusual attainments. She had accepted favors at his hands, in the most neighborly way. Yes, he had deceived her; for all along he had been—Sam Winstead.

At this juncture Lowndes Jennings was a great relief to her.

Lowndes Jennings seemed to understand. There was something knightly and chivalrous about him. Sam Winstead would look a girl in the eye and stubbornly tell her not to snivel, to buck up and be a sport. He couldn't understand that having to run a roadside shack might work hardship to a pride girl's feelings. He had no sympathy to offer her for having to work for her living—he thought it a fine thing that she could and did do it. All he was that one should play the game with zest. That was the great thing: Be a sport! He didn't, for instance, think it noble of her to have opened the Shack—he thought it expedient and sensible, and he wanted her to make money on it. There was Sam Winstead for you!

But Lowndes Jennings! He had a way of slowly turning his head and looking down at a girl out of long gray eyes heavily lashed with black eyes and "put it with a smutty finger"—a fascinating trick of manner that never failed to disturb one. He did most things without effort, and he did them with tolerant grace, with lazy ease. One understood that he was not wealthy, but he managed to convey the impression of wealth, of means. Everybody said he was a charming fellow. What most people didn't know was that he was coldly ambitious, or what his ambition was.

Sally Rutherford appealed to his fastidiousness. Her prettiness, her pride, her courage, a something fiery and direct that set her apart from others, pleased him dangerously. Had things been different, had she still been the eldest heiress, Lowndes would have thanked the gods that he could have obeyed the impulses of his heart. But—Oakleigh as good as lost, the Rutherford fortune wiped out as with a sponge, old Mrs. Rutherford a chronic invalid, and nothing whatever in sight but a roadside stand—that ugly thing altogether something else! He managed with difficulty to keep up appearances—indeed, how Lowndes Jennings managed at all to keep up was an appearance puzzled some of his friends. True, he received invitations to many house parties; he had had invitations from visiting sportsmen to accompany them on yachting trips, for they found his companionship agreeable, and his skill with cards exciting.

Sally Rutherford was in vogue just then, for her venture won sympathy and admiration, all the more so as it appeared to be succeeding. Lowndes saw no reason why he shouldn't see a good deal of the girl who pleased and intrigued him more than any girl he knew. Sometimes he came with other gay young people, but more often he came alone. All that winter he found his way to the Shack, and his smart roadster was inconspicuously parked just inside Oakleigh gates. Sometimes, when he was dated for a dance, he liked to have his dinner at Sally's, seated at one of the small tables between two high backed settees which shut the diners off.

"Come and have your dinner with me," he would coax the girl. "Moses can serve us, and at the same time keep an eye on the shop." When she sat opposite him, in her simple black frock which showed the creamy column of her throat, he gave her the full benefit of that practiced sidewise and downward gray glance which told her without words just how dear and lovely he thought her. He so thoroughly enjoyed the fried chicken that Sally couldn't help enjoying his enjoyment. She could not but be happy.

Sometimes, when he was due at some dinner party, the smart roadster would come and carry her off for a swift run along the Carolina roads when the winter dusk was just merging into darkness. As a rule neither of them had much to say; they were content to be together, conscious of that heart deep nearness.

"Very tired, Small Lady?" he asked tenderly, as they drove off. His voice was a caress.

"Very tired," she admitted tremulously. She had to fight tears.

"Been a bad day? O, dear little, gallant girl, I wish you didn't have to do it!"

"Sometimes I wish so myself," said she. Two tears stole down her cheeks and trickled, cold and salty, across her lips.

"Dear little girl! Precious little girl!" he pressed her closer. "Sally, Sally, Sally!" Because she was so young, so sad, so tired, and couldn't help loving him, she leaned against him. She was happy and unhappy, bewildered and glorified. Out of all the terrible and cruel things that had happened to her, she thought dazedly, had come this beautiful joy! She knew she loved him. As trustingly as a child she leaned her head against his arm. There was no need for words . . . Lowndes understood.

Lowndes understood only too well that, unluckily, he had fallen in love with Sally Rutherford, and she with him, and that it was altogether mad and impossible. Understanding this thoroughly, he kissed Sally.

To do him justice, he really cared for her. If things had been different he would have been mad over her. But when you are a well born, penniless, ambitious young man, a social favorite, with expensive tastes, and you have engagements to keep up, and your assets are your good looks, a small business, and facile fingers for cards—though you aren't always lucky—how are you to manage and what are you to do when you fall hopelessly in love with a girl as handicapped as you are yourself, and in whom she loves you? Lowndes knew he was behaving like a fool instead of the cautious young man he usually was. But he loved her, she was close to him, she loved him, she was utterly kissable. Lowndes held her close and kissed her, and Sally's innocent, passionate mouth kissed him back.

"When did you know, Lowndes?" she wondered.

"Darling, from the first moment I saw you. Though I didn't know it was going to be . . . so hard as this."

"So hard?" she wondered.

"How should I? I didn't know I could love a girl as I love you, Sally."

"And I didn't dream a girl could love a man as terribly as I love you, Lowndes."

"And we have to wait!" he lamented.

"O, yes, Lowndes. It hasn't been quite a year—it wouldn't be right," she said, misunderstanding him. "But I can't help being grateful, dear. I thought everything was finished—and all the time God was sending you straight toward me! Wasn't it wonderful?"

"You are wonderful, Sally."

"When I think that you are in the same world, at the same time with me, that I belong to you, that you love me, I am so humble and so grateful—if only grandpapa could know, Lowndes."

"I wish he could, darling. Sally, did you know I'm poor? That I really haven't a penny?"

"No, I think we are very rich, Lowndes."

"Rich in our love, sweetheart."

"It is our love. Let us keep it to ourselves, just for a little while, shall we?" she asked wistfully. "I couldn't help falling in love with you, Lowndes, could I? I'd have to fall in love with you anywhere, any time I saw you. You are a dreadfully easy person to fall in love with."

"I know I'm a dreadfully easy person to fall in love with you," said he fondly. The time being propitious, he kissed her again. And again.

"Are we engaged, Lowndes?"

"You said you didn't wish to be, formally, and let everybody know. Your wishes are my law. I am content to know you belong to me."

"With all my heart and soul," said she, sweetly. She took his gloved hand and held it to her young breast.

Good morning!

[Nice and cool in the State-Lake, folks!]

"The Miracle Woman" was known on the stage as "Bless You Sister," and few there be who won't feel sure that the plot was suggested by the life of a living woman whose career has been much in the public eye.

The picture is a thrilling melodrama that sports several staggeringly sensational situations, presented with a shrewd sense of dramatic effect. I eagerly await your comment on scenes in the tabernacle, before and after the "miracle woman" makes her entrance to the pulpit.

Here, caged with a brace of weaving lions, she beseeches the enthralled multitude before her to have faith, faith and still more faith! Above the slim, whit clothed figure an alluringly garbed, Ziegfeldian mixed choir sings, croons and sways, under the inspiration of virile cheer-leaders, trained on the football field and registering sex appeal. Bugle, saxophone and drums do their bits at psychological moments, while, in the wings, a keen-eyed man, chewing a cruelly bitten black cigar, mutters "Lights!" and "Curtain!" and "Where the hell is that come-on! Drunk again I bet . . .!"

The vast audience weeps and prays and shouts "BLESS you, Sister! Glory! Hallelujah!" And Sister pleads in her rich, fluty voice "Is there one among you needing healing, who has faith to come up among these lions and get it?"

The come-on is missing. But there volunteers a young blind man who would just as soon be dead anyway and has besides a hunch that those lions aren't going to hurt anybody.

To the consternation of the hard-boiled party in the wings, he mounts the platform, and as the choir breaks into ragtime paeans, does a Daniel.

Sister thinks hard, fast and to good account. [But now I'm telling too much of the story.] To tell some more:

It starts in a country church. Here are gathered some who choose to call themselves God's Chosen. They're there for the purpose of getting a kick from the final sermon of their aged and faithful pastor whom they are casting on the dust heap in favor of a younger and peppier shepherd.

The moments pass. The bent, familiar figure fails to appear. But, suddenly, through the door they had been watching, comes a young girl, white of face, black of hair, flashing of eye. She is Florence the pastor's daughter, and she takes her place in the pulpit quietly enough. Also, her first words are sober ones, delivered with restraint—a simple explanation that her father is ill and that she will read his sermon. She reads and then . . .! But I have no idea of telling you what happens after that. At any rate this girl is the "Sister" you meet later.

"The Miracle Woman" ought to do big business for it is different and electrically exciting. It is excellently produced and played to the nines.

Barbara Stanwyck gives a pulse-quickening performance. Sam Hardy is perfect as the exploiter of so much youth and charm. David Manners is a dear as the blind boy. Beryl Mercer does one of her inimitable bits of cosy, nervy, little old lady playing. And are those choir leaders and singers knockouts!

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The operatic twins, "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," in their Ravinia order, which is the reverse of the customary, took the stage of the north shore music center last night and a large audience came to applaud the two most popular examples of the mauve decade in opera.

Queena Mario, who would seem to classify as a guest artist, made her first appearance of the season as Nedda in "Pagliacci," and thereby became one of the good reasons why the audience should have come and applauded.

She is a highly intelligent young woman and an excellent artist with a fine voice and an accurate sense of the stage. Her solo to the birds was first class, her dramatic scene at the end of the first act became the entirely creditable and sympathetic portrayal of a woman who had stepped across the line and got into trouble over it.

Giovanni Martinelli raised the echoes with his superfervid emotionalism of the "lament," and the audience raised louder echoes after he had finished. It is a song made to order for his voice. Mario Basiola gave one of the best vocal and dramatic performances of Tonio that has been seen in several seasons, another case of a part that might have been made for him, and there was excellent help from George Cehanovsky and Lodovivo Oliviero.

Though the nature of the music of these two pieces makes their Ravinia order produce a climax in the first part of the evening instead of the last, there was no anticlimax in the performance of "Cavalleria." Elisabeth Rethberg, she of the golden voice, was the Santuzza, and never more golden than here. Likewise Frederick Jagel took high prominence with his Turiddu, sung with great distinction and ably acted. And, as in "Pagliacci," the baritone part of Alfio was given unwonted brilliance, this time by Alfredo Gandolfi.

EINSTEIN PRAISES MICHELSON; FOUND FUN IN SCIENCE

BERLIN, July 17.—(AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, speaking before the German Physical society tonight, paid tribute to the late Prof. Albert Michelson of Chicago as a fashioner of new yardsticks for the measurement of the universe.

His genius in this direction, the father of relativity said, manifested itself particularly in his famous device for measuring angular distances—which proved to be of the greatest importance in astronomy and made possible the discovery of giant fixed stars.

Einstein explained that another marvelous device invented by Michelson made possible the optical demonstration of the earth's turning, and in his last years he determined the speed of light "with almost dizzy accuracy."

"I had the good fortune to become acquainted with him personally before his death," Einstein said, "and I asked him why he took such infinite and never ending pains to measure constants so accurately. He replied, because it amused him.

"That characterized the man and his work. On one hand, physics to him was an art; on the other, it was pure sport."

Grave French Learn to Play as Yankees Do

Recent Years Bring Gayety to Provincials.

PARIS, July 17.—(AP)—The American idea of amusement has reached France and made many converts. The conviction that money spent on pleasure is money wasted and that waste is wicked is weakening.

The French have never been the gay, pleasure seeking people they were sometimes painted. Their light-hearted way of enjoying their work has sometimes been deceptive.

The world has begun to know them as diligent and industrious, with a high capacity for doing things well, whether it be tennis, dressmaking or aviation.

But they never have spent money on amusements as their British or American friends have, and only recently have they begun to loosen the purse strings for anything so frivolous.

It is only in the last few years that the talking machine has gained real popularity in France. Radio, although installations cost more than in the United States, also has been widely adopted, even in the provinces.

Great amusement parks and bathing beaches where hundreds of thousands flock on Sundays are unknown in France, but the existing resorts are drawing more people these latter years than ever before. At one time Parisians sought the cheapest little beach they could find for a summer holiday. Now they are more apt to spend more than they can afford.

The boulevard cafes of Paris used to be quiet places where one could go and sit for hours over one drink or a cup of coffee, write letters, read the newspapers and play games, while the prudent Parisians took their economical pleasure of walking past.

Today the cafés are jammed with people, largely Parisians, enjoying refreshments, and the old school of "clients" is not encouraged.

Golf has not yet taken hold of the popular pocketbook. Even the well to do play little, as will be understood by the fact that, although the St. Cloud Country club has more than 3,000 members, its 18 hole links are never overcrowded.

But even here pleasure making shows progress. In tennis and swimming, scores of fine new courts and vast pools mark the movement toward sports' pleasure for the general public.

Zionist Group Asks Help of Arabs for Improving Palestine

BASEL, Switzerland, July 17.—(AP)—The council of the Jewish Agency for Palestine today went on record unanimously as having a "sincere desire for the creation of a durable understanding between Jews and Arabs in Palestine on the basis of mutual confidence and respect."

The resolution declared it is the council's conviction that "Jews and Arabs have a common interest in the peaceful development of Palestine."

The council also unanimously approved a resolution protesting against the difficulties attaching to Jewish land purchases in Palestine, Jewish immigration to Palestine, and the employment of Jewish labor on public works, despite assurances contained in Premier MacDonald's letter.

A special effort to raise $1,000,000 in order to meet the extraordinary financial position in which the executive of the Jewish agency finds itself was decided upon, the Jewish Telegraphic agency reports.

Catherine Kresge Married to Baron Carl Carlson

New York, July 17.—(AP)—The News says Catherine Kresge, daughter of the chain store magnate, and Baron Carl Carlson have been married in London and are honeymooning at Antibes, France.

The ceremony took place at St. George's church on June 8 and was attended only by the immediate families, including Mrs. Anna E. Kresge, mother of the bride and first wife of Sebastian S. Kresge, and Ruth and Ann, sisters, the paper said.

Miss Ruth Kresge's engagement to Rufus Clark Caulkins of Detroit was announced some time ago. It was Caulkins who introduced the baron to Catherine.

The five Kresge children each received $5,000,000 from their father and their mother $10,000,000 when the parents were divorced.

BRITISH KING'S SON TOASTS FRANCE AND ENTENTE CORDIALE

PARIS, July 17.—(AP)—At a Colonial exposition dinner in his honor tonight, the Duke of York offered a toast "to the French-British entente, the prosperity of France, and her magnificent colonial empire."

The French and British colonial empires are neighbors all over the earth, the duke said, and points of friction between them have disappeared.

"Sincere friendship and the same ideal of justice animate our two nations for the peace of the world," he declared. "Our common frontiers, far from creating subjects for divergences encourage us to more amicable coöperation."

United Charities Makes the Story Public.

The story of a two year old boy whose life was saved by THE TRIBUNE free ice fund at the height of the hot wave of two weeks ago was revealed yesterday by a case worker of the United Charities.

The boy, Jerry, lives with his parents and a year old brother, Jimmie, in one room in one of the most congested districts of Chicago. The father has had no regular employment for more than a year. The mother is not well. The parents had tried their best to live without aid from the charities, but discovered that every cent they got had to be spent for food.

It was on the hottest day of the torrid wave when Jerry lay tossing feverishly on his bed that the mother heard through a neighbor the possibility of getting ice from THE TRIBUNE free ice fund through the United Charities.

A worker from the charities came to visit Jerry immediately. She saw that ice was provided and called a physician. Jerry has recovered now, but because of his frail condition, it will be necessary to provide ice for the rest of the summer so his milk can be kept fresh and sweet.

That is just one case. There are thousands more. The breathlessness of the last three days, the humid days and still nights have been a nightmare to families living in stuffy one and two rooms with no cross ventilation, many of them located in the rear of buildings. There is illness and death near many of these homes that could be prevented if ice could be delivered.

The gift sto the ice fund are coming in slowly, much too slowly to care even for a small per cent of the requests. The ice man cannot stop at these homes, knowing he will not be paid, although he might wish to leave a chunk of ice at every needy door. It is up to friends, therefore, to guarantee the price of the tickets. Can you help?

Barrymore, en route to California with his wife, Dolores Costello, and their child, said he is considering an offer from New York for a stage revival of such plays as "Hamlet," and "Richard III."

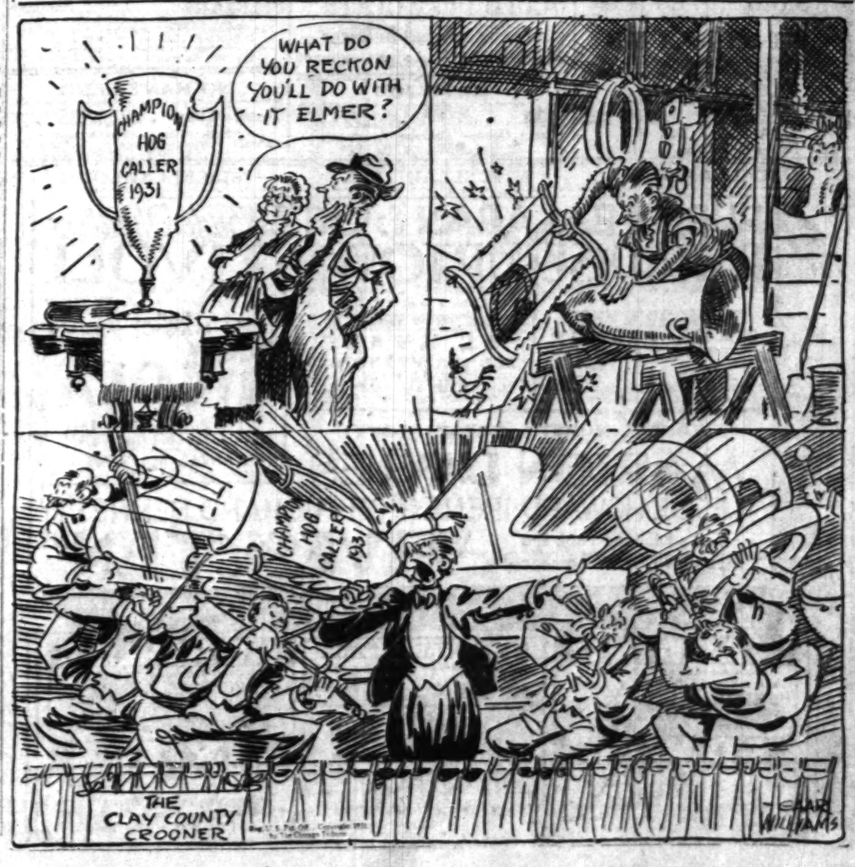
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



Movie Gossip Fresh from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 17.—[Special.]—John Barrymore's stage depiction of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" was a landmark of the theater. Barrymore also did the dual rôle on the silent screen. In 1920 Frederic March's depiction of John Barrymore in "The Royal Family of Broadway" was a 1930-'31 landmark of the talking screen. Now comes Paramount playing somebody's airtight hunch, and casts Frederic March to do Barrymore's rôle over again in the talkie version of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Miriam Hopkins, "Lysistrata" of the Broadway stage, gets the feminine lead opposite March in the revived thriller. Reuben Mamoulian, director of "City Streets," will direct.

Because there is a crooked race in "Twenty Grand," they are pondering changing the story's title to something else. The only explanation given is that it would be a shame to have the name of such a fine horse as this year's Kentucky Derby winner associated by film fans with a horse race that was not all it should be.

Nancy Carroll evidently is not going to leave the Paramount staff of stars, as was hinted because of some temperament displayed during her recent stay. She is to make a series of pictures on that corporation's New York lot. She is announced as due at the Hollywood Paramount studio in August to make "Mary Makes a Call" with Buddy Rogers. It will be the fifth time Nancy and Buddy have co-starred together.

Children Deserve More Than Scraps of Your Attention

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

And then of all the things you want to do.

And then of all the things you think of that you haven't done.

And then all the other thinking that goes on in your head about everything under the sun.

Then answer this question: How often do you give your child your undivided attention?

Not often, if you're like most of us. You're either doing something or just finishing something or just beginning something or in a hurry to go somewhere—and when you do give the children your attention often it's only a little of it.

Can't you imagine how they feel? I used to feel that way when people were knitting for the soldiers. You couldn't really carry on a decent conversation then because their attention was so divided.

Children sense the difference between divided and undivided attention. We give a great deal of the latter to grownups—to our relatives, to our friends at tea, or in for pleasant evenings, together. But we rarely do as much for our children.

And they're conscious of it, deep down.

You realize that when sometimes you put everything aside and talk to them—answer their questions—sit down on the floor to play with them, and see the lighted-up, contented look in their faces.

They love it when they sense that you're "all there"—that not only your eyes and your voice are with them but your spirit, too.

All requests for replies or reading matter must accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The new booklets, especially those on "Obedience," "Orderliness," "Shyness," "Patience," and "Stubbornness" are of sufficient size to require postage for each one requested.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Guards Words Now.

I am quite a swift talker and frequently inclined to run my sentences together.

One day, meeting the mother of a dear chum of mine, I said, "Hello, Mrs. Platt, I didn't recognize you."

At this point in the conversation I noticed what a lovely dress she had on, and hastened to tell her so. To my surprise, she neither smiled nor thanked me, and then I realized that I had said, "Hello, Mrs. Platt. I didn't recognize you, you look so nice," all in one breath.

My chagrin was so great that I have guarded my words carefully since.

Food Talk.

A number of women have asked us about hydrogenated fat that is mentioned from time to time in our recipes. They want to know what it is, and if it is as good as the natural fats, such as butter and lard.

A number of brands of hydrogenated fat are to be found on the market, but they are essentially the same. These commercial products are made from cottonseed oil. By the application of a chemical principle the liquid oil is changed to a solid fat. The cottonseed oil is of such a nature that it will, under certain conditions, annex other material to itself. Under proper conditions particles of hydrogen gas will become attached to the cottonseed oil particles.

The result of this union is a hardening of the oil. The process is carried to the point where the product has the appearance and consistency of lard. The fat is then ready to pack and ship to the consumer.

Hydrogenated fat may be used in all types of cooking as freely as any other fat. Since fats yield energy only to the body, hydrogenated fat serves the same purpose as any other kind of fat, excepting butter, which because of its source contains other nutrients, such as minerals and vitamins.

Hydrogenated fats may be used in preparing foods where the fat flavor is not distinctive. Even cakes may be made with these fats if the pans are greased with butter so that the first taste is one of butter. Other people prefer to use half butter and half hydrogenated fat in their cakes to retain the butter flavor in the cake.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE.

2 egg yolks.
Pinch salt.

Melt the chocolate over hot water. Put the ¼ cup milk, water, and sugar in the top part of a double boiler and heat over the boiling water to the scalding point. Pour the milk mixture over the well beaten yolks, stirring vigorously to keep smooth. Add the salt and return to double boiler. Cook 5 minutes, stirring continuously to keep smooth. Add mixture gradually to the melted chocolate, beating well until the mass is thoroughly blended. Cool. Chill the cream thoroughly and whip until stiff. Fold the chocolate mixture into the cream lightly but thoroughly. Add the vanilla. Turn into a cold freezing pan and place in the refrigerator immediately. This requires from 3 to 3 hours to freeze.

Yield: Six servings.

Most all of Flossmoor turned out yesterday afternoon despite the rain to see the great circus "Our Gang" had advertised.

The seventeen members of "Our Gang," proudly turned in the money last night that the circus had netted a net of $56.90 for the Camp Algonquin fund. This is by far the largest total raised by a childrens' benefit this season for either TRIBUNE fund.

The entertainment opened with a parade, which assisted by the police force marched through Flossmoor park. Then the troupe stepped to the Arthur M. Semones lawn on Hamilton lane which was to serve as the 'big top."

Clowns, animals and an animal trainer, the Siamese twins, the man of magic, the daring tight rope walker not to mention the "496 pound" man and the bearded lady, gave the adults more than their 25 cents worth and certainly gave the children plenty for their dime admissions.

Society Gives Day to Horses, Racing, Polo

It would seem that this column has been filling great gobs of its space with racing and polo news this summer, but here we again are using the headline over to those two attractions. For today's is the day of the great Arlington Classic and of the final game of the exciting international polo matches.

Either of these thrilling events on a single day would be enough to agitate the social tempo of the somewhat drowsy north shore, and the fact that they will occur within a few hours of each other means that society will rush about as it seldom does during the warm weather months.

All the fashionable folk in the vicinity are bent on witnessing both events, and unless the traffic between Arlington and Onwentsia is unexpectedly jammed there's no reason why they shouldn't.

The committee in charge of the polo match has considerately postponed the starting time of the game until 3:30 o'clock. As the big race is scheduled to be run around 4 o'clock, there'll be just time enough for the Classic spectators to drive over to Onwentsia before the Santa Anita and Old Aiken men begin their play.

Post and Paddock Club Will Be Host to Fans.

The exclusive Post and Paddock club of Arlington will be host this afternoon to the greatest aggregation of racing fans ever assembled in its exact quarters. There will be prominent guests from all parts of the country both in the Post and Paddock and in the clubhouse boxes, all of which have been sold since Tuesday.

A few of the well known visitors are William R. Coe of New York, who is expected to arrive in a private car this morning with a party of friends; Ralph A. Moore of New York, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who have been here for several days as guests of the Austin Nibiacks; Congressman and Mrs. Robert L. Bacon of New York and Washington, who have been guests of the Howard Linns since Tuesday; Charlton Clay and Shelby Harrison of Lexington, Ky., guests of the Otto Lehmanns; Mrs. R. Camden Stoll of Lexington, Ky.; Warner Sayres of Cincinnati, O.; Mr. and Mrs. William Hitt of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Talbot of Dayton, O., who will be with the Laurence Armours.

Luncheon hosts at the Post and Paddock club will include Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Wilson, Vincent Bendix, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Britton I. Budd, Robert F. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift, John T. Pirie Jr., James McCallum, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, and Charles McCulloch.

After luncheon most of the Post and Paddock guests will occupy boxes in the clubhouse grand stand, due to the Post and Paddock rule limiting guests not guest frequency. Persons living within a fixed radius of Chicago are to entertained at the Post and Paddock only twice a season, and no member may have the same guest more than once a season. Because of the rule invitation lists are often drawn in order to plan parties and arrange the guest list.

Sally's Movie Party Promises More as Day of Show Nears

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Good news just pours into my office for the boys and girls who will be invited to my party at the Chicago theater next Thursday to see Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics." Yesterday I was informed that James Hall, the movie star, will appear at that Balaban and Katz theater as master of ceremonies and that not only will we see him on the stage in person but we actually will meet him! Isn't that something to look forward to?

The hundred winners have been selected and their names will appear in tomorrow's SUNDAY TRIBUNE and if you didn't win your disappointment will be tempered by the announcement that will accompany the list of lucky boys and girls. You can read about the next party we are planning in our schedule of good times and it's going to be such a fascinating one, I know you'll want to compete again for an invitation.

There still are a number of boys and girls who neglect to follow the rules of our contest. I received several letters in which the writer did not tell me his or her age and there were even one or two without a last name. In such cases, the boys and girls could not be chosen as winners even though their letters were good. So be sure to keep in mind, my young friends, when writing in for future parties to follow the rules. They're most important.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—Attorney General Mitchell and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, accompanied by the President's secretary, Lawrence Richey, have gone to Long Island for the launching of the Mamposa tomorrow, thence to Boston for the week-end. The attorney general returned yesterday from Minnesota.

Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander and Mrs. Rhinelander left Washington yesterday and sailed on the Berengaria for Europe, accompanied by their two sons. Philip Rhinelander's engagement was recently announced to Miss Virginia Roberts of Boston, the wedding to take place there in the early autumn.

ITALY TAKES CONTROL OF THEATERS, OPERA, EVEN MUSIC HALLS

ROME, July 17.—(AP)—All the theaters, opera houses, and music halls in Italy now come under direct government control with the formation of the "Corporation of the Spectacle."

This is the latest corporation of the group which makes up the Fascist corporate state and thus the Italian theater becomes an arm of the government.

In this corporation are the theater owners and managers, all actors and actresses, all orchestras, all stage hands and other theater employes.

Under government control, with the hand of Il Duce at the wheel, actors, orchestra members, and stage hands may not strike, and on the other hand, theater owners may not throw them out of work.

The Corporation of the Spectacle controls the starting of new theatrical companels, road shows, stock companies, musical comedy companies, and seeks to prevent the failure of such groups by laying down requirements and specifications for their formation and by scrutinizing the contracts between producer and actor and between producer and theater owner.

The corporation fixes the salaries of the lower ranks of the theatrical world, such as stage hands, ushers, and ticket sellers, and also members of the orchestras. It is the judge in cases of authors' rights and royalties.

BOOKS

Here's Another 'Wishing Book' You May Like

German Worker Trades Lot with Millionaire.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

"SEVEN DAYS," by Andreas Latzko, who wrote "Men in War," was published yesterday by the Viking Press. It is translated by Eric Sutton and comes under the heading of unusual books.

Have you ever thought what a lark or what a tragedy it would be if you could swap places with some one else? It's a universal desire, albeit a fleeting one, this often unvoiced wish: I'd like to be in HIS shoes for a while! What I wouldn't do, etc. The little boy would like to be Babe Ruth, the flapper would like to be Kay Francis or Constance Bennett, the secretary would change places with her boss, the bank messenger with the bank president, and so it goes.

But how about the other way round? How would Mr. Wealthy and Powerful like to wear the shiny serge of Mr. Down-at-the-Heel and Insignificant? How would Mr. Gentleman of Leisure like to grub for his living? Well, you know the answer.

In "Seven Days" a millionaire German motor car manufacturer is made to change stations with a poor laborer. The story is laid in Berlin and in a factory town nearby, and, of course, has a decided foreign flavor. You see, Karl Abt, the working man, catches Baron Mangien in an unsavory intrigue and threatens to expose him unless he swaps with him suits, underwear and place in life for three days.

So the baron puts on a scratchy gray flannel shirt, none too clean, and trousers that have long since lost their crease, while Abt dons his luxurious fur coat, immaculate linen, and shiny patent leather shoes. One goes to the most miserable part of Berlin to sleep, the other to a suite in the most expensive hotel, where, for once in his life, he can have quiet, plenty of hot water for his tub, and enough to eat.

The author describes the early lives of these two at the poles of existence, so you understand each with a remarkable clarity. Into the tale comes Dr. Landau, a man who could have wealth, but who chooses to live his life with the downtrodden and the desolate, caring for them in sickness and working for their good. This character serves rather as a bridge between the depths of poverty and the outlook on life resulting from constant defeat on the one hand, and the height of wealth, with its consequent view of the world, its love of power, its egotism. He understands the latter, but hates it and gives his life passionately to the poor.

The action of the whole book takes place between Christmas and New Year's. The complication comes when Abt, masquerading as the baron, is killed. What happens to the real baron, what mental and moral changes take place in him furnishes ample material for the rest of the story.

The reader is given an unusually broad view of the different planes of society in Germany, from the topmost layer with its silks, satins and furs to the lowest with its terrific struggle for mere existence. You jump back and forth from one to the other with the rapidity of an antelope and are rather glad to find, when you close the book, that you're still sitting in your own living room after all and that it's time to go to bed.

Story of the '49 Gold Rush Wins $5,000 as Americana

The prize of $5,000 for the most interesting book manuscript, not fiction, dealing with the American scene, offered jointly by the Atlantic Monthly Press and Little, Brown & Co. of Boston, has been awarded to Archer Butler Hulbert, professor of history and director of the Stewart commission on western history, Colorado college, Col. His work is called "Forty-niners," the chronicle of the California gold rush. Prof. Hulbert had access to 90 original journals of the forty-niners; he has collected the prints, cartoons, and songs of the period. His book was chosen from over 500 manuscripts.

ARNOLD BENNETT'S NEPHEW WRITES A NOVEL OF POTTERIES

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Although it is not generally known, Arnold Bennett is not the only literary member of his family. His sister, Tertia Bennett [Mrs. William Kennerley], is the author of a number of excellent stories for girls. Now his nephew, Cedric Beardmore, has written a first novel of note.

Arnold Bennett himself read the typescript of this novel, "Dodd the Potter," as he had read earlier efforts by young Mr. Beardmore. Though he had sternly refused complete approval to the earlier stories he was considerably impressed by "Dodd the Potter." So much impressed that he told me about it, and commended the typescript to the notice of Newman Flower, his London publisher. Mr. Flower, who is a good judge of books, was immediately enthusiastic, accepted the book, made a contract for others by the same author, and now publishes "Dodd the Potter" with confidence.

In my opinion his confidence is justified. "Dodd the Potter" is a very brisk, amusing, and humane novel. And something more than that. It is written with life—not only liveliness—and with something of Arnold Bennett's own cunning. It resembles a combination of "Denry the Audacious" and "Anna of the Five Towns." And it is also quite original. The scene is the Potteries; the chief characters are young and modern in temper, and the obvious is skillfully avoided. As one reads one anticipates that this or that may happen; but Mr. Beardmore is never dull, and he has such a power of laughter that one is constantly reminded of his uncle's similar gift.

As he is very young in years, and as he has sanity and great sagacity, I regard him as a potential novelist of importance. He already is a novelist of freshness and ability. His backgrounds are excellent. They are adequately detailed without being boring, and he knows when to leave off describing a factory or a street. His characters are alertly seen and humorously and humanely rendered. And his narrative has a quality of light and flexible strength which shows him to be a born writer.

Ridiculous stories have been cabled to America regarding Arnold Bennett's fortune. This is the more regrettable because it gives color to the legends of him as a hard business man. The truth is that he made a good deal of money and spent it. Taxation is very heavy in England; Bennett helped many of those who were less fortunate than himself; he entertained a great deal; he had certain money losses. Apart from his copyrights and the sale value of his beautiful manuscripts, which may be considerable, it is doubtful if he left in investments more than fifty thousand dollars.

With the publication this week of Mr. Michael Sadleir's first volume of "Bulwer: a Panorama," the literary world is beginning to restudy the works of the late Lord Lytton. But Mr. Sadleir has wisely not confined himself to the life and work of Lytton [the life has already been told more than once], and so his book is well subtitled "a panorama." Readers of it will find themselves once again back in early Victorian days.

"Captain Blood" on Job Again with This New Book

One of fiction's suavest buccaneers is back in a swashbuckling volume, "Captain Blood Returns" [Houghton Mifflin], bound in black and crimson, with striking end papers. Rafael Sabatini has written another book of thrills for those who reveled in the original "Captain Blood." There are ten smashing sea tales of long ago written with the customary Sabatini skill in depicting gentlemanly pirates. A wonderful volume of adventure for a summer day.

Canada Forbids Hecht Book, "A Jew in Love"

The commissioner of customs of Canada notified Covici, Friede, the publishers, that "A Jew in Love," by Ben Hecht, "is prohibited importation into Canada." The book was brought out last January and sold nearly 50,000 copies, a number of which had been purchased in Canada. No reason for prohibiting the entry of the book was given.

Moors' Victory Told for Boys by This Author

German Depicts Fall of Constantinople.

House in Hidden Lane, by A. H. Seaman [Doubleday-Doran].

Outstanding among the week's arrivals of new books for young people are Friedrich Donauer's "The Long Defense" and N. N. Karazin's "Cranes Flying South," both of them translations, and both offering material of exception interest, well presented.

The former is a translation from the German and tells the story of the last heroic stand of Constantinople against the Saracens in the 15th century and of the valiant defence which the meager forces of Emperor Constantine made against the hordes which bore down upon them. The city fell in 1453 A. D. The story of the seige is thrilling. In it we find much of loyalty and self-sacrifice, but also find disloyalty, greed and treachery, elements which finally compassed the overthrow of the Christian empire of the east and replaced the cross with the crescent. Playing a leading part in the story is Giovanini Grant, 14 year old son of the German gunner, who fights beside the dead body of the emperor he loved even after a traitor's shot takes the life of the leader of his own people. It is history which needs no romancing to make of it an unsurpassed story of adventure.

Quite different in theme is the second title, "Cranes Flying South," a translation from the Russian, a dramatic and vivid story of the yearly flight of a great company of cranes from Russia to Egypt. The story is told by one of the fledglings who is making the trip for the first time. The interpretations of the sights they see and description of the lands over which they fly and dangers which they must learn to avoid is given to the younger members by the wise leaders of the flock. This with the descriptions of the famous triangle formations in which they fly makes the book of interest to the lover of natural history as well as to the younger reader whose primary interest is the story.

The boy to whom this season brings a call from the great open spaces will especially like Robert L. Yates' "When I was a Harvester" for in this true story of adventure the young author sets down many things that will find answering appeals in the boy's heart. The adventurer was a young lad of 17 who decided to get away from his routine vacation of golf, fishing, etc., and spend the summer in the west, making his own way as he went. The trail led him to Saskatchewan, there to become a harvester, and the "vacation" which he found there was indeed different from anything he had known.

The story tells of his summer in the wheatfields, of the strange unaccustomed life with the hardened crews who drift from harvest to harvest, and of the joys and hardships which the realization of his dream of the golden west brought him. It is well told, giving the boy's own reactions to the changes he found it necessary to make in his own life while there, and has an air of sincerity and fact which will make boys recommend it to one another. To the boy to whom it appeals it will be intensely interesting—the other boy will not read it at all.

For the girl who considers a mystery story an essential to her summer's reading there is "The House in Hidden Lane," by Augusta Seaman. There are two stories in this book, one dealing with a treasure hunt in an old house on the Jersey coast, and the other relating the experiences of a family of children and two ladies of mystery in the house next door. They are typical Seaman stories, probably, however, for slightly younger children than this author usually writes for.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A blow up by Bob Smith in the seventh inning yesterday proved a pulsator for the hopes of the haughty Giants who for three days had been led to believe they weren't licensed to mingle with the flag contenders. The blow up permitted three Giant runners to cross the plate, thereby wiping out a Cub lead and giving the Gotham larkers enough to take a loosely played final by 7 to 6 before 12,000 paid spectators and 15,000 ladies' day guests.

When Smith tumbled into the jam which decided the verdict, the Cubs still were congratulating themselves on what they had just done to get out in front. They had landed on Paddy Fitzsimmons for four runs, when the pudgy Hooster suddenly lost control in the fifth. On the strength of this the Cubs moved into the lead, 6 to 4, but the aforementioned fadeout of Smith and Guy Bush's inability to work his Giant killing skill when the crisis came, changed everything.

Luck Deserts Cubs.

What the Cubs lacked more than anything in their effort to make it four straight and thus gain a lap on the Cardinals instead of remaining six games away and also dropping back to third place, was some luck. When the count turned against them they went loose their big berthas, but it netted them nothing.

Jack Wilson came up in the seventh after English had singled off Mortal and banged a long drive to right. The home run cheering had already started, but Ott backed up against the screen, reached up and pulled in the ball. In the eighth it was about the same. With Taylor on base, Grimm lifted one to right. The home run cheering started again, but when the ball passed the flagpole it was foul by inches. And a moment later Ott was boxed at the fence to grab another long one exploded by Hartnett.

Giants Pile Up Hits.

As a matter of justice, the Giants probably deserved the decision. The

BY FRENCH LANE.

Twenty Grand goes to the post in the renewal of the Classic stakes at Arlington park along about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Six others—one a stablemate—will line up at the barrier with him as he starts the galleg, which, providing he wins, will clinch for him the 3 year old championship of the year. And besides the championship he will be running for a king's ransom, for the gross value of the Classic with seven starters will be $86,200, making it the richest 3 year old race in the world.

Twenty Grand will carry Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's pink and black jacket to victory or he will shock the country. If he fails he will sort of paralyze the 50,000 or 60,000 who will gather at Arlington to see the renewal of the Classic.

Support for Other Horses.

"Twenty Grand." You could hear the name on every tongue in Chicago and at the Arlington park track yesterday and last night. It seems to be sort of a human trait to want to see a champion get the crown knocked off his brow. And if there are 70,000 in the crowd, more than half of them will be pulling and shouting for some horse to trim Twenty Grand.

The betting last night indicated as much, for Twenty Grand was at 4 to 5 everywhere wagers were being made, and he will open at about that price when the wagering in the mutuels starts a half hour before the Classic is run. What the plungers will do to this price when they go into action shortly before post time, only the actual betting will tell, although it hardly seems possible the price against him will be more than 1 to 2 at post time. However, most of those in the crowd will be holding at least a $2 ticket on some other horse in the race to beat Twenty Grand.

Kurtsinger on Twenty Grand.

Twenty Grand will be ridden by Charley Kurtsinger of Louisville, who has been in the saddle on the big horse in all his important victories this year. Twenty Grand's running mate will be St. Brideaux with Pony McAtee in the saddle. Many easterners last night were trying to wager the entry will finish one-two.

There was a rush of support to Mate last night, which forced his price down to 5 to 2. Mate is the only 3 year old in the country that has beaten Twenty Grand this year. He did it when he won the Preakness stakes early last May. A week later Twenty Grand trimmed Mate in the Kentucky Derby. It was their only other meeting this year, but late last fall Mate trounced Twenty Grand in the Walden stakes in Maryland.

The heavy support for Mate indicated that his owner, A. C. Bostwick, is thoroughly satisfied with the condition of his Classic candidate and that he and his friends might be backing Mate to blast Twenty Grand's claim to the championship.

Spanish Play at 6 to 1.

Spanish Play, Latonia Derby winner, also had plenty of backers. He is to run in the silks of Knebelkamp and Morris, the Morris end of the firm being Dick Morris of Chicago's Board

MOE CONQUERS LEHMAN; PLAYS IN FINALS TODAY

Portland, Ore., July 17.—(AP)—Two Portland youngsters, Don Moe and Malcolm MacNaughton, will meet in the finals of the western amateur golf championship here tomorrow. Moe defeated the defending champion, Johnny Lehman, Chicago, 4 and 3, and MacNaughton nosed out Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, 2 and 1, in the 36 hole semi-finals today.

Taking the first hole this morning, Moe, 1929 western champion, was up on Lehman all day. He collected six birdies and steadily pulled away from the defending champion.

Willing put up a great battle with MacNaughton and squared the match at the 25th after being 2 down at the halfway mark. The youngster pulled away with a birdie 3 at the 27th and won, 2 and 1, at the 35th hole.

Victory Sweet for Moe.

Moe's victory was sweet today, as he was defeated last year in the quarter finals by Lehman, who won the title the next day. Two years ago Moe downed Lehman in the semi-finals and marched on to victory.

Moe won the first hole of his match with a par 4 this morning, and slowly but steadily increased his lead over the 36 hole route, never giving Lehman a chance to catch him. He was around in 73, one over par, this morning, and was one under par for the 15 holes this afternoon.

Each player captured six birdies, but Lehman was wild with his iron on several holes. The middle westerner's magic putter of yesterday was working to perfection on long putts, but it was only an ordinary club for short ones. It three-putted three greens for two losses and gave Lehman a half instead of a win at the others.

Sinks Five Long Putts.

It came through with five magnificent strokes, however, sinking the ball from 25, 12, and 10 feet and twice from 20 feet. The Portlander was 2 up at the 9th, 3 up at lunch, 4 up at the 27th, and finished the contest at the 32d.

The Willing-McNaughton battle was a sloppy affair this morning and a brilliant show in the afternoon. McNaughton, Pacific coast intercollegiate champion, gained two holes on the first 13 with a 76, while the veteran Portland star was taking a big 80. In the afternoon both were under par for the 17 holes.

Mrs. Federman Defeats Miss Quier in Golf Final

Eastern Point, Conn., July 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Leo G. Federman of Flushing, L. I., today defeated Miss Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., defending champion, 2 and 1, in the final match of the Griswold cup golf tournament at the Shenecossett Country club.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TWENTY GRAND, champion 3 year old of 1931, is "sitting pretty" for today's great Arlington Classic so far as his title honors are concerned. This long striding bay colt has only to gallop over the mile and one-quarter route faster than the six opposing him to retain his crown, to be considered a super-colt, comparable to Man o' War. This he has shown ability to do in the past, as the Kentucky Derby, Belmont stake and Dwyer stake bear witness.

So much for the victory end of it. Now suppose something should happen to this champion, which will be one of the shortest priced favorites of the season. Suppose one should spring up and down Twenty Grand just as Jim Dandy, at odds of 200 to 1, upset Gallant Fox and Whichone at Saratoga last year. Such things happen on the turf at rare intervals. It is what causes punters, turf fan long shot players, to take that chance on horses which do not figure by any stretch of the imagination.

Well, if the unexpected should happen, Twenty Grand is in that nice position where his followers would say he had not recovered from his injury in the Dwyer. We do not mean that Twenty Grand adherents have an advance alibi. If Trainer Rowe did not think Mrs. Whitney's colt was ready and sound he would not be a starter. But even if beaten, few would be willing to concede anything that beat him was superior without another test—say in the Realization or some later stake.

As a matter of fact, on what has been shown this season, Twenty Grand's defeat would indicate that he was not up to form. That is why the Whitney colt is "sitting pretty" in defense of his championship.

Final Polo Match.

About an hour after the running of the Arlington Classic, members of the Santa Paula and Old Aiken polo teams will engage in their third and final match at Onwentsia. Many enthusiastic followers of both sports will motor from Arlington Park to Lake Forest.

We are told experts lean toward the Argentine squad for the decisive victory. In Wednesday's match, which The Wake viewed, their team play appeared better, but their mounts were not quite as effective. Whether absence of Iglehart from the Old Aiken lineup handicapped the Americans we leave to the experts. So far as we could tell, his substitute seemed to be doing all that could be expected, riding hard and scoring goals.

To down the Argentines would be an achievement for Old Aiken, for the visitors on a goal handicap basis have a three goal margin which is not figured in challenge play.

Childhood Remedies.

Once the "pack" was the remedy for "fever and ague." They put you to bed between two sheets soaked in cold water, then on top of you a feather bed, quilts, blankets, and maybe a buffalo robe, well placed, and how you did sweat. Then to the kitchen into a tub of hot water, a dose of compound cathartic, a big dose of quinine and back to bed. Weak ones died, but the stronger ones lived after they had a few square meals.

BIGGER, BETTER COLONELS, THAT'S KENTUCKY NEED

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17.—Recent statistics on the military establishment of the state of Kentucky have it that Flem D. Sampson, the present governor, during his three years in office, has appointed 589 colonels of both sexes, most of them transient visitors to the Kentucky Derby. And now that the horse track business is so bad down there and horse meets are being scratched from the calendar, I wonder if the governor couldn't arrange to confer a colonelcy on every one who buys a ticket to Churchill Downs as a means of drawing some trade.

Or would that draw any trade? There are those who would contend that the rank of Kentucky colonel has lost its distinction. When the colonels are massed together at the Downs or in the hotels on a big horse day in Louisville, the individual colonel is at a disadvantage. To say, "I, suh, am a kentucky colonel," is no more than to say, "I, suh, am a member of the human race."

Distance Enhances Its Value.

But when the colonels disperse to their various homes in all parts of the country after the horse race, the honor of their rank increases in proportion to the distance from Louisville. By the time the colonel arrives back in Chicago, New York, or Minneapolis, he is likely to find quite a few people whom he outranks, and the governor of Kentucky need have no fear that the output of colonels has reached the saturation point yet.

These commissions make nice souvenirs, suitable for framing, and many a one now hangs on many an office wall to be pointed out with casual modesty when visitors come.

If the governor of Kentucky really wants to be liberal about the matter and stimulate business at the horse track turnstiles, he could arrange with the management of Churchill Downs to have a commission printed on the reverse side of every ticket. Let the clubhouse ticket carry with it the rank of general, the grand stand ticket a colonel's commission, and the general admission the rank of major.

Furnish Your Own Insignia.

Fortunately, it isn't necessary for a governor to furnish the eagles or other insignia of rank when he awards his commissions to his old friends, some of whom he may have known as long as twenty minutes. This would run into some money in the course of a single administration, or a single derby day, for that matter, so custom and economy dictate that the appointees shall buy their own

U. S. AND ENGLAND TIE IN DAVIS CUP INTERZONE FINAL

PARIS, July 17.—America and Britain each won a match in the first day's play of the Davis cup interzone finals here today, when H. W. Austin, Britain's ace, defeated Sydney Wood, Wimbledon titleholder, and Frank Shields of the United States beat the young British player, F. J. Perry.

Austin lost the first set to Wood, but took the next three to win, 2-6, 6-0, 8-6, 7-5, while Shields won a strenuously disputed contest in straight sets, 10-8, 6-4, 6-2.

The two matches were entirely different in style and tactics. The Austin-Wood encounter was played cautiously with almost perfect stroking.

BURNS DEFEATS RAY TRAMBLIE IN EIGHT ROUNDS

Sammy Levine, former Golden Gloves boxer, fought a draw with Kid Irish, Cicero, Ill., who was substituting for Herbie Derex, in the sixth round. Ruby Allen defeated Nell Donald, semi-windup, in 15 minutes in a women's wrestling match. Other results:

Babe Kellar and Paul Dempsey drew [6].

THE CLASSIC WINNER? MAYBE

Past performances point to an eastern victory in the Classic today. Twenty Grand will be the choice of nearly every one at Arlington Park. Mate (inset), twice conqueror of the Whitney star, possibly will be the one to beat, but don't forget there are five others in the rich stake.

LUQUE, QUINN BAFFLE CARDS; ROBINS WIN, 4-1

St. Louis, Mo., July 17.—(AP)—Adolfo Luque and John Picus Quinn, two aged veterans of the baseball wars, held the league leading Cardinals in check today and the Brooklyn Robins squared the series at two victories each by taking the fourth and final game, 4 to 1.

Led by Lefty O'Doul, who continued his hitting streak with a double and three singles, the Robins pecked away at Flint Rhem for two runs in the second inning and one each in the third and ninth. Score:

CHORUS OF 15,000 FEMININE VOICES FAILS TO BRING CUBS VICTORY

It doesn't pay to wander too far from first base, Bill Jurges of the Cubs learns as Catcher Hogan's throw to Bill Terry catches him off the bag. Jurges had just singled, driving in two runs in the second inning of game in which the Giants won, 7 to 6.

Why the volume of noise at Cubs' park yesterday was more intense than in any of the other three games with the Giants. Some of the 15,000 who packed space allotted to ladies' day guests.

ARGENTINE FOUR FAVORED TO WIN POLO DUEL TODAY

Iglehart Unable to Play with Old Aiken.

Army Player Dies

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 17.—Col. Willis V. Morris, army polo star, injured by a fall off his pony in a match at Meadowbrook Country club on Saturday, died tonight in Nassau County hospital.

BY TOM PETTEY.

Old Aiken and Santa Paula, two of the polo world's most colorful teams, will fight it out in the third and deciding game of the international series this afternoon at Onwentsia Country club. The match will not begin until 5 o'clock, almost an hour after the running of the Classic at Arlington.

Old Aiken had hoped to have its star No. 3 player, Stewart D. Iglehart, back in the game today, but physicians last night said the young Yale athlete, who was taken ill just before last Wednesday's match, would not be able to play. As a result, J. C. Cooley was substituted at No. 1 and Elbridge T. Gerry, the regular No. 1, will take Iglehart's place at No. 3. In Wednesday's match, although Maj. C. C. Smith of Fort Sheridan filled Iglehart's position capably, Old Aiken's team play suffered by the absence of the regular No. 3.

Cooler Weather Promised.

A cooling breeze has been promised by the weather man for the match. Wednesday's game was played in sweltering heat, the spectators, players and ponies suffering, with the ponies being hardest hit of all.

Tommy Nelson, the Argentine team manager, reports his horses in good condition although the last few days of excessively hot weather has not improved their spirits. The Old Aiken horses, which appeared to feel the heat most in the last game, have improved.

Manuel Andrada, known as "The Huge One" throughout the Argentine, and captain of the South American four, is confident his team will be able to repeat its last victory. The big Argentine rode hell bent for leather last Wednesday and there was no one who could stop his rushes. Jose Reymal, another eight goaler, was just twice as good in the second game as he was in the first, and he expects to continue improving this afternoon.

Argentines Favored to Win.

On paper and from past performances the South Paula mallet men look like favorites to win, especially with Old Aiken's team play impaired by Iglehart's absence.

At any rate there will be no slack periods. Too much is at stake. The Argentines are riding as representatives of the leading polo center of the world and Old Aiken has a long string of United States victories to uphold. Four large pieces of silver plate from the United States Polo association will reward the winners of the match and international series this afternoon. The presentation ceremony will take place in front of the grandstand after the game.

Tomorrow night the Argentine horses will be shipped to Detroit and a part of the Old Aiken string will follow. Santa Paula is to play a three game series in Detroit against a team composed of one or two of the Old Aiken players and possibly Rube Williams and Cecil Smith, both of whom were candidates for last year's United States international team in the try-out games before the series with Great Britain at Meadowbrook. The first game probably will be played in Detroit next Saturday.

The lineup for this afternoon:

14 YEAR OLD GIRL BEATS MISS HOLM IN RECORD TIME

New York, July 17.—[Special.]—Miss Katherine Rawls, slim 14 year old Hollywood, Fla., girl, caused a sensation tonight by defeating Miss Eleanor Holm in the national A. A. U. 800 meter medley championship in new world's record time.

Little Miss Rawls covered the distance in the amazing time of 4:45 4-5 and slashed four seconds from the international record set by Miss Holm at Honolulu in August, 1929. Miss Holm was second, 20 yards behind.

In the other title event, the 880 yard relay race, the Los Angeles A. C. won by 25 yards from the Women's Swimming association of New York in 11:28 2-5, five-fifteenths of a second behind its world's record.

Notwithstanding its double defeat, the W. S. A. took the lead in the team fight, running its score to 21 points, as against 17 for the Los Angeles A. C., and 15 for the Washington A. C.

1,000 WOMEN IN CENTRAL A. A. U. MEET HERE TODAY

More than 1,000 girl athletes of the central states will compete this afternoon in the Central A. A. U. women's track and field championship meet at Soldiers' field.

Fifteen events are on the program—eleven in the championship division and four for the novice class. In addition to the track events, an informal drum and bugle competition will be held among Board of Trade post, North Western post and North Town post of the American Legion.

A team is to be selected from among the contestants in the track and field events to take part in the National A. A. U. meet next week at Jersey City.

FAMOUS CHICAGOS TO PLAY.

22 Yachts Start Annual Race to Mackinac Today

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A fleet of 22 boats will set sail from Belmont Harbor this afternoon in the Chicago Yacht club's 24th annual race to Mackinac island, the longest fresh water boat race in the world. The fleet will be divided into two classes, racing and cruising. The former will compete for the Mackinac cup, while the cruising boats will be sailing for the Chicago-Mackinac trophy.

The racing division will be the first to leave the starting line, which extends from the race committee's flag on shore to a point 1,000 feet southeast of the flagpole. They will get away at 4 o'clock. Fifteen minutes later the class B cruisers, those having an over-all length of less than 50 feet, will start, and five minutes after they are under way the starting gun will sound for class A cruisers, which are 50 feet or more in over-all length.

Weather Fools Skippers.

Sailors putting last minute touches on their craft in the harbor yesterday refused to make any definite forecast on the probable disposition of the elements, for it appears that the Mackinac race, with its stretch of 281 nautical or 321 statute miles, is a very deceptive one in the matter of weather. There were a few, however, who pointed out that calm, warm weather such as had been the rule the last few days should naturally be followed by something of a more blustery nature.

If this year's haul to Mackinac does develop into an argument with squalls there will be a few skippers to whom such sailing will be nothing new. Among them will be Otto C. Schoenwerk, who will pilot the ketch Katinka today, and who won with Mavourneen in 1911 after the worst blow in the history of the race.

Old Story to This Salt.

Mr. Schoenwerk, who doesn't resemble a sailor ashore, but is every inch one as soon as he hits the deck of the Katinka, shared the ownership of the Mavourneen with E. M. Mills in 1911. The start of that year's race was conducted in light, rather suspicious looking weather. When they reached Point Betsie, about 200 miles along the route, they were doing nicely with a moderate southeast wind. At Sleeping Bear Light, 20 miles further north, the wind was doing some plain and fancy blowing, so much so that the crews of boats nearer the shore were soon picking beach sand out of their teeth. Within a few minutes a wind which Mr. Schoenwerk says varied from 60 to 80 miles an hour was knocking the fleet about, and continued to do so for five hours.

Record Still Stands.

The Vencedor, which had won two of the preceding seven Mackinac races, headed in for Charlevoix, but came to grief, grounding on Fishermen's reef. The crew was rescued by the power boat Arapahoe, but if it hadn't been in the neighborhood, Mr. Schoenwerk states, all of them would have drowned. The Valmore, another contender, anchored up at Cross Village, Mich., while the Polaris, which had on board John T. McCutcheon and Hugh Fullerton of THE TRIBUNE, sought shelter in the vicinity of the White Shoals lightship.

Meanwhile the Mavourneen headed west out into the lake, and, finally catching the right wind, headed for the Straits of Mackinac. They reached the finish line at daylight Monday morning, only Dr. William Baum's Amorito, which was giving them a considerable time allowance, finishing ahead of them. They had come in 28 hours after leaving Chicago, to set a record which has never been broken. The trip was so rough that only Mr. Schoenwerk and one other member of the crew of eight escaped seasickness.

Two Escape Sickness.

The Chicago Yacht clubhouse and Belmont Harbor within recent years have seen several young looking sailors about their premises, and Mr. Schoenwerk yesterday commended the ability of this new generation of mariners. He declared the young sailor frequently hears his elders discoursing on the good old days of sailing, but he's willing to wager that the young ones would outsail the old-timers if they met in a race today.

The complete roll of the fleet today, together with owners, home clubs, and the time allowance granted each, follows:

Cubs made only six hits, whereas the New Yorkers peeled off fifteen. No mystery attaches to the fact that the Bruins scored once for every hit. They paired two of their smashes behind a pass to count a pair in the second by which time the Giants already had scored four. And to pick up their four runs in the fifth the home performers wrapped three safeties around three passes and a pair of wild pitches.

The Robins will call at Wrigley field this afternoon and Pitcher Pat Malone will serve as official greeter. The Cubs expect to be annoyed by Dazzy Vance.

The Giants scored a run in the opening inning. Leach doubled to left center with one out. Fullis rolled a slow one along the third base line and Hornsby couldn't come in quickly enough to keep it from being a hit. Terry bounced to Jurges and it could easily have been a double play, but Jurges fumbled and Leach ran home from third. A force play and fly ball stopped further trouble for the moment.

Hornsby Makes Error.

Hornsby pegged wild on Vergez's hopper to open the second and that was all the Giants needed to set three more runs in motion. Hogan's tall fly fell in the right field corner for a double, and Vergez slid safely over the plate. Hogan hugged second while Hornsby was tossing out Fitzsimmons. Crits then beat out a hit to Jurges, putting Hogan on third. Leach's single to right scored Hogan and planted Crits on third. The latter scored on Fullis' fly to Taylor.

The Cubs didn't get serious in their half of the second until Fitzsimmons, after fanning Taylor, handed free passage to Grimm. Hartnett cut in with a single to right and Smith advanced the two runners on a bunt which rolled right into Terry's hands at first base. Jurges then stoned for his previous error by driving Grimm and Gabby across with a single to the left of Jackson. Jurges was a bit too bold about taking his lead off base and a snap throw from Hogan nailed him.

Hartnett's double bounced off the top of the left field wall in the fifth and the big storm of four runs started immediately. Smith lined safely to right center and Gabby scored, but Smith tried to stretch his wallop into a two bagger and Umpire Donnelly decided he was out. Fitzsimmons lost control and walked both Jurges and English. He threw one so wide to Cuyler that it became a wild pitch, letting the two runners move up a peg. They tore home when Cuyler lined a two bagger to left. Cuyler then took third on Wilson's infield out and scooted over the plate on Fitzsimmons' second wide heave of the inning.

Rally After Two Out.

Smith had two men out of the way in the seventh before the Giants turned up with the rally that presented them with three runs and the day's decision. Ott and Jackson singled to center but this much wasn't taken seriously. When Vergez singled to left, scoring Ott, everybody began to take notice. Wilson threw the ball to the plate, but it got away from Hartnett. So Hack was assessed an error because the two runners took third and second. Hogan was purposely passed, jamming the sacks and Marshall ran for him.

Allen was ushered forth in the rôle of pinch for Chaplin and this made Hornsby think Bush was the man made to order for the situation. But the shift in pitching talent didn't bother Allen. He doubled to left, driving Jackson and Vergez across with the tying and winning runs. The unhappy inning closed with Crits lining to Jurges.

Chicago Cricket Club Wins 4th Straight Game

SOUTH SIDE BOYS CLUB ENTERS 62 IN TRIBUNE SWIM

Sixty-two boys from the South Side Boys' club will compete in THE TRIBUNE'S championship 100 yard races July 26 at the Lincoln park lagoon. The entry, one of the largest received, was made by Cecil B. Hairston, physical director.

Entries are divided between classes A, B, and C, and include boys between 11 and 16 years of age. The South Side Boys' club, 3947 South Michigan avenue, has an extensive athletic program the year round. Its record is exceptional. Director Hairston sponsors intramural competition equal to any in the city.

While the entry in three age divisions handicaps the club in an effort to win the team championship, it is certain the Michigan avenue boys will win a large number of the merit badges, which THE TRIBUNE offers to all swimmers who can swim 100 yards under championship conditions.

West Park Girls Enter.

Ena Carpenter, instructor at Dvorak park, Cullerton and May streets, yesterday entered twelve girls in the races. Perhaps these west parks girls don't get to Lake Michigan as often as those living nearer the shore line, but the west parks have ample swimming facilities. Not only is Miss Carpenter interested in the opportunity presented for novice swimmers, but William Schultz and George Smith, west parks officials, have offered their support of the meet.

Class B—Mildred Mabdal, Marian Celovsky, Mildred Supusich, Betty Malarik.

Class C—Jennie Maritsek, Lillian Keller, Mary Jerbick, Gladys Wilson, Margaret Doll.

More than 700 individual entries have been made to date. And there are a surprising number of brothers and sisters who will seek TRIBUNE merit badges and championship medals. In one day's mail we listed twelve families in which two or more children entered the 100 yard events. The list follows:

Marilu and Tom Twist, 1040 School street.

Barbara and Jack Fitzgerald, 1739 Devon avenue.

Arthur and Edward Osberg, 5915 South May street.

Pat and Juanita Alexander, Blue Island, Ill.

These are selected from one day's mail. If any two of them should win championships it is possible that the team trophy might be awarded. This trophy will be given to the team from any club or organization which scores the most points in the ten events. These family teams might qualify.

Kind Engineer Saves Woodcock and Her Chicks

BY BOB BECKER.

True stories involving birds and animals in the outdoors frequently are "stranger" than fiction and the average city dweller who has not experienced some unusual contact with a bird or animal will not believe the stories. Several good examples of these "take it or leave it" yarns came to us the other day, relayed from the Pennsylvania game commission. Here is a sample:

How a mother woodcock flagged a train and saved her family from being run over makes John Stapleton, an engineer on the W. & C. division of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, quite a hero. The engineer was at the throttle of his engine when, rounding a curve, he saw something fluttering on the track between the rails. On closer examination he saw it was a bird trying to get her three chicks out of the way.

Stapleton, a lover of birds, quickly applied the brakes and came to a stop a short distance from the mother and her chicks. Then he signaled the crew to come forward. They captured the chicks, carried them from the track to the edge of the brush, where the distressed mother herded them together and marched them to cover and safety. A young woodcock may be able to scurry through alders, walk on soft mud and dodge through the brush, but climbing over a smooth rail is something that isn't in his repertoire.

But Pennsylvania is noted for other things than saving woodcock families on railroad tracks. It is one of the few states which has done enough detective work on the crow to prove that this egg robber is responsible for many atrocious acts for which the pheasant is blamed. And the crow has a powerful ally in the field mouse.

"To the crow and field mice belong the chief blame for many atrocious acts usually attributed to the ringneck pheasant. In the southeastern part of the commonwealth crows were committing depredations long before the ringneck was introduced in 1915. However, farmers have come to know crows so well that they look upon their presence as a matter of course, forgetting that many times the birds are destructive."

SENATORS TAKE 10-0 LEAD; DOWN WHITE SOX, 12-7

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—The rumor that Donie Bush was the proud possessor of one nine inning pitcher, in the person of Vic Fraiser, this afternoon turned out to be a cruel hoax. Victor had his ears pinned back beautifully in the first 1 2-3 innings of the White Sox final with the Washington Senators, which eventually was concluded with a score of 12 to 7 in favor of Washington.

After making a sorry mess of things Victor went away and Jim Moore came in to get an ear treatment on his own account. Jim was badly lacerated when he first went under the ether but rallied and gave way only for a pinch batter in the sixth. He was succeeded for one inning by Wilbur Wedhe, late of Dallas, who escaped without a run off him despite the fact that the first three batsmen to face him knocked singles. McKain entered the exhibition in the seventh and showed nothing to provoke any rousing cheers.

Sox Hit Despite Pitching.

After the Senators had made nine runs in the first two innings and 10 in the first three, the Sox revealed they wouldn't be a hopeless outfit if they just had a few fellows who could pitch. In the sixth they made five hits, good for three runs, and in the seventh they made five more for three more runs. These were not entirely attributable to Senator relaxation, for the players were hastening as much as possible to beat an impending rain storm.

The Sox made 14 hits for 18 bases, which would have caused a panic in the recent lean years in which the Sox had pitching but no batting persons. Lew Fonseca led the attack with a walk and four hits in a row, the last of which was a double, and Carl Reynolds had as his share a triple, a double, and a single. Lew made three of the Chicago runs and Carl made two. The other two were made by the other outfielder, Bob Fothergill.

But we haven't mentioned the total hits made by the Senators. There were 21. Four each were made by Sam West and Joe Kuhel, and Heine Manush had three. It is not our purpose to make any White Sox fans suffer annecessary agony, but you ought to know what kind of stuff the Sox got at the outset.

West Starts with Double.

West led off the Washington offensive with a double to right and went to third while Manush was beating out a bunt to Frasier. Cronin was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. H. Rice walked on four pitches, forcing in West. Kuhel bounced a single over Frasier's head, scoring Manush, and the bases remained full. Bluege walked, forcing in Cronin. Hayes actually fanned and Spencer forced Bluege, Rice scoring. Tate threw out Crowder.

And here's the second inning: West singled and went down with Manush in a double play. Cronin walked and went to third on H. Rice's single to right. Rice stole second. Kuhel singled to center scoring Cronin and Rice. Moore relieved Frasier, Bluege walked and Hayes singled to left, scoring Kuhel. Bluege and Hayes staged a double steal, Bluege scoring. Hayes went to third, after stealing second on Kerr's bad throw to the plate, and scored when Spencer singled to center. Kerr threw out Crowder, and that will be about enough detail.

The Sox will mosey over to Philadelphia tonight, where they will play the world champions in a double header. Manager Bush will pitch any two men who appear at the park in clean uniform and a ball glove.

GOLDEN PRINCE FINALLY WINS AT ARLINGTON

Captures Michigan Handicap as Panchio Quits.

Golden Prince, one of the real old fellows on the turf, suddenly came to life at Arlington Park yesterday and galloped to a handy victory in the mile and a furlong Michigan handicap.

It was his first triumph in a long time, but once he started running in the stretch there was no stopping him. He raced past the small field much as he raced out in Mexico a few years ago when he won the $100,000 Coffroth handicap. He wound up beating William Ziegler Jr.'s Gone Away by a length and a half. Panchio, the red hot favorite from Mrs. Emil Denemark's stable, was third.

The big crowd seemed to know Golden Prince was going to run a sensational race. For he, too, was backed with considerable confidence. He rewarded his backers at a little better than 2 to 1. There also had been a plunge on Culloden, but hard as Jockey Allen rode him, he could not keep step and dropped out completely about the time Golden Prince started his victorious drive at the head of the stretch.

Panchio Folds Up.

Panchio, Culloden and Gone Away raced desperately for the lead for the first mile of the distance. On the inner head Jockey R. Jones finally succeeded in rushing Panchio to the front. He was running easily and it looked as if they would pay off on the favorite.

Just about then Golden Prince started. He moved past one after another until he was on even terms with Panchio. Then he dashed to the lead and there was no overhauling him. Panchio quit so badly in the final stages that Gone Away raced past him to get second money.

Tony Pelleteri of New Orleans continued to win the favor of Lady Luck when his good filly Colonial Belle beat the best of her age and sex here in the Peoria purse at five and one-half furlongs. She closed a tremendous gap after being in a lot of trouble in the early running and got up just in time to nip Oscillation by the width of a whisker. Had she escaped the early jamming she might have won by a wide margin.

Allen Goes to Work.

Lady Teddy and French Honey were the early leaders, and they ran only inches apart until the real battle started down the stretch. As the leaders went wide Oscillation sneaked through on the rail and romped into a lead that seemed to indicate a sure victory.

Tim Allen, realizing he had made some mistakes with Colonial Belle in the early part of the battle, began to ride as if his life depended on the outcome. He rode a stronger finish than did Charley Borel on Oscillation, and as a result Colonial Belle went flying on to victory.

Colonial Belle ran her five and a half furlongs in the good time of 1:06. In the mutuels, despite her impressive record here, she paid $8.84 on a $2 ticket. There are few better two year old fillies in the west than Colonial Belle, a daughter of Sweep On-Prenes Garde. And there are few luckier people on the turf than Tony Pelleteri.

CHICAGO STOCKS MARK TIME IN QUIET TRADING

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The end of yesterday's quiet trading session on the Chicago exchange found the active shares selling at approximately the same prices they had commanded at the close of the previous day.

The underlying tone was one of strength, but the best prices of the day were not maintained. The 30,000 share turnover represented for the most part the sundry maneuverings of the professional traders, whose opportunities for profit were limited by the extremely narrow price range.

The news of the day, if anything, was a little more bullish, but there was no attempt to exploit the reports that a plan to alleviate Germany's financial difficulties would soon be agreed upon by the important powers. What there was of domestic news was of such an indifferent character as to induce few important commitments on either side of the market.

Early Gains Reduced.

A number of the active stocks closed the day at the same prices which were chalked at the close Thursday. Insull Utility and Bendix were both comparatively active, but after selling higher on the early trades reacted to finish unchanged. Elsewhere fractional gains were the rule among the leading issues.

Cities Service stock was indifferent to the news that the company had won a temporary injunction against the barring of the sale of its junior securities in Kansas. An active market is usually maintained in the company's stock here, but the trade recently has been dull. Only 2,300 shares turned over here yesterday.

National Securities Investment company, the A. G. Becker sponsored underwriting and investment firm, yesterday issued a report of condition, as of June 30, listing net assets of $16,276,615, equivalent to $108.97 a share on the preferred stock outstanding. On the date of the last report, Jan. 16, 1931, the assets were equivalent to $108.79 a share. Investments are valued, it is explained in the report, at cost or market, whichever was lower.

Total Income Is $567,017.

Total income for the period and profit from the sale of securities amounted to $567,017. Expenses amounted to $52,540 and preferred dividends distributed totaled $233,341. A net charge to surplus of $1,395,332, representing depreciation of holdings, is shown in the statement. The deduction was partially offset, however, by a credit to surplus of $894,619 resulting from the acquisition of 28,884 shares of the company's preferred stock during the period. This together with the balance of income after dividends and expenses made the net reduction in surplus for the period only $287,641.

The June 30 balance sheet listed cash and government securities of $1,547,378 and investments of $14,845,-236. The firm did not issue a report in the comparable period of 1930.

TWO COMPANIES NOW PLAN FURTHER CURB ON COPPER OUTPUT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17.—Further steps to curtail production of copper and at the same time prevent additional accumulation of stocks were taken today by the Cerro de Pasco Copper corporation and the Magma Copper company.

The Cerro concern has issued orders to shut down another of its furnaces at its smelter at Oroya, leaving only one reverbatory furnace in operation. How much Cerro's production will be reduced could not be learned because of the fact that it is not known how much copper can be obtained through one furnace.

It is understood that Cerro de Pasco at present is out of the market and accumulating its production, as it does not care to sell its copper at current prices of 7¾ cents delivery. However, the 7¾ price was not quoted today, the only copper available being held at 8c, delivered.

Latest curtailment of production by the company, according to reports, may be followed by other producers. The company has three furnaces at its plant, one blast furnace and two reverbatories. Last November, when other producers curtailed operations, Cerro closed the blast furnace and until now has been operating the two reverbatories.

Figures issued by the American bureau of metal statistics reflected the success of plans to cut down the output of copper. Production for June showed a decline of about 3,764 tons from May and more than 20,000 tons from June, 1930.

FOREIGN TRADE IN JUNE LEAST SINCE SEPT., '14

Exports Shrink to 187 Millions.

BY O. A. MATHER.

While foreign trade is both desirable and necessary for great commercial nations, it has become increasingly apparent to American economists in the last year or two that the United States must depend for its future prosperity on its domestic trade. Normally, our international trade is less than 10 per cent of our total trade and it is likely in view of European affairs, that an even smaller ratio will prevail in the next few years.

Something of th's trend is indicated in data made public yesterday by the commerce department at Washington. Figures on our international trade in June make unhappy reading, although they probably were abnormally influenced by the German financial crisis. At all events, American exports totaling $187,000,000 were the smallest for any month since September, 1914, when our foreign trade was handicapped by the beginning of the world war. Imports last month totaled $176,000,000, the smallest since June, 1915.

Small Favorable Balance.

The sharp shrinkage in our foreign trade is further shown by the fact that exports in June, 1930, totaled $297,701,000 and imports were $250,-841,000. Our favorable balance of trade last month was $11,000,000 compared with $47,856,000 a year ago. Again, for the first half of this year our exports totaled $1,315,954,000, compared with $2,075,717,000 for the first half of 1930, while imports totaled $1,109,634,000, compared with $1,735,-905,000.

It will be seen that American exports thus far this year were about 36 per cent below last year, while imports receded practically in the same ratio. Our favorable trade balance for the first half of this year was $206,302,000, compared with $339,732,-000 last year.

Volume Shrinkage.

Naturally, the decline in commodity prices has had something to do with the shrinkage in dollar value of our foreign trade. But the average decline in commodities has been only about 17 per cent, or less than half the decline in trade. Therefore, there has been a decided shrinkage in the actual volume of goods interchanged, which must be attributed to other factors, including the world depression.

Gold continued to flow to the United States last month at a greater rate than a year ago. Imports totaled $63,-857,000, compared with $13,928,000 a year ago; while exports were $39,000, compared with $26,000. Thus, last month the United States gained $63,-857,000 in gold.

SOME LINES IMPROVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17.—Business and industry are experiencing the customary dullness of midsummer, but, although the general situation is fairly quiet, the volume of trade has gone ahead of earlier expectations in a few basic lines, the weekly trade reviews reported today.

Under the stimulus of persistently high temperatures, demand in retail trade has broadened, R. G. Dun & Co. said, with lightweight apparel and vacation needs making the most active contribution to distributive trade.

"In those sections where gains are being recorded, preparations for fall are given major consideration," the report said. "Many wholesale dealers say that buying is unusually conservative, but that quick shipments are being urged frequently, indicating meager stocks.

Provide for Fall.

"In the northwest and far west provision is now being made for fall requirements of staple winter lines. Production in the cotton business division is lessening slowly, but it is being maintained in wool goods and in the rayon industry. Subnormal production continues in silk, although some fall lines are being shown and purchased in a moderate way.

"A further decline in raw cotton unsettled the markets for a time, but the June statement of production statistics was favorable. It showed the output was 7.7 per cent less than in May. Shipments, however, were 105.2 per cent of production and for new business booked during the month the ratio was 126.8 per cent of production. Stocks showed a decline of 4.5 per cent for June, while unfilled orders were 24 per cent higher."

PETITION HOOVER FOR EMBARGO ON FOREIGN OIL

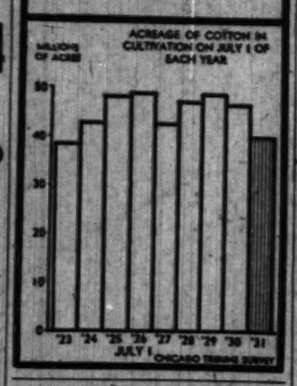
Washington, D. C., July 17.—(AP)—President Hoover today received a petition from the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas asking a temporary embargo on foreign oil.

The petition was referred to the interior department where it will join a half hundred other similar requests received during the last year from various producing groups in the United States.

Shelly Restores Old Prices.

Wichita, Kas., July 17.—(AP)—Kansas oil producers saw a ray of hope today in the announcement of the Shelly Oil company that it had returned to the old price schedule of 25 to 27 cents per barrel for Kansas crude. The Skelly company joined other major producers in the reduction last week to an all time low price of 19 to 21 cents.

COTTON ACREAGE IS LOWEST SINCE 1923



AUTHORIZE B. & O. TO ACQUIRE ALTON ROAD; OVERRULE PROTESTS

Washington, D. C., July 17.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today overruled objections of stockholders of the Chicago and Alton railroad and authorized the Alton Railroad company and the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to take over the bankrupt line.

The decision authorized the Baltimore and Ohio to hold the stock of the Chicago and Alton, and required that all the unpaid obligations of the Chicago and Alton be transferred to the new owners.

Included in the authorization was the right to take over the stock and leases of the Louisiana and Missouri River and Kansas City, St. Louis and Chicago railroads, and the Joliet and Chicago railroad held by the Chicago and Alton. The three lines have been components of the Chicago and Alton system for so many years their names have been almost forgotten, although the corporate entities have been preserved.

The Baltimore and Ohio purchased the Chicago and Alton at a receivership sale in Illinois last December. Stockholders of the defunct company claimed they had been misled in the case and that the commission should refuse to permit the acquisition until they had been provided for. The purchase price totaled around $75,000,000, while stockholders claimed a value of more than $100,000,000.

The commission said it was satisfied that the commercial value of the properties was much less than the stockholders' protective committee claimed. The courts, said the commission, had decided the rights of the stockholders, and added: "They have nothing left for us to protect."

SELL 3 UPDIKE GRAIN ELEVATORS TO FARM GROUP

Omaha, Neb., July 17.—(AP)—Sale of three Updike Grain corporation elevators to the Farmers' National Warehouse corporation was revealed here today through a letter issued by the Updike concern announcing a reduction in storage capacity.

The three elevators turned over to the Farmers' National Warehouse corporation, which is a subsidiary of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, are a 1,000,000 bushel elevator at Omaha, a 600,000 bushel elevator at Missouri Valley, Ia., and a 150,000 bushel elevator at Lincoln.

The Updike Grain corporation, an independent organization dealing in grain futures, was recently sold to the Farmers' National Grain corporation to give the latter a membership on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The Updike Grain corporation and the Updike Grain company are separate organizations, the former now operating several mid-western terminal elevators, with a capacity of 3,000,-000 bushels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17. — The floating supply of United States Steel common stock decreased 113,861 shares during the quarter ended June 30, compared with the amount on March 31, the company announces.

Brokers' holdings of Steel common were 1,250,044 shares, or 14.37 per cent of the total amount of 8,701,371 common shares outstanding, compared with 1,363,905 shares, or 15.68 per cent of the 8,696,859 shares out on March 31 and 1,589,834 shares, or 18.57 per cent of the total of 8,560,876 shares outstanding on June 30, 1930.

Investors' holdings at the end of June totaled 7,451,327 shares, or 85.63 per cent of total outstanding, compared with 7,332,954 shares, or 84.32 per cent of the total outstanding at the end of March, and 6,971,042 shares, or 81.43 per cent of total outstanding at the end of June, 1930.

Legrande Pool Operators Agree on 10 Day Shutdown

Glasgow, Ky., July 17.—(AP)—A ten day suspension of production pending negotiations with refiners for a higher price has been decided upon by the majority of operators in the Legrande oil pool in Hart and Barren counties. A committee was appointed yesterday to conduct the negotiations. If they meet with failure a permanent shutdown is contemplated. The price to producers was recently cut from 50 cents to 35 cents per barrel. Between 25 and 30 operators, representing 71 of the 84 leases in the field, entered the ten day suspension agreement. Large operators in the western Kentucky field near Owensboro already have shut down, following a similar price cut to the same 35 cent level, and many small operators have joined them. The price in eastern Kentucky has been reduced from 55 cents to 40 cents per barrel.

Affairs of the Sheridan Bank in Spotlight

Affairs of the Sheridan Trust & Savings bank, which closed on June 8, held the spotlight in the outlying bank situation yesterday, with depositors groups divided as to what course of action to pursue. Four of the five members of the executive committee, which was appointed following the mass meeting of depositors held at the Broadway armery on June 17 are scheduled to make a formal statement regarding their attitude today.

In the meantime the four members of the committee, J. C. Bowers, J. L. Cochran, S. B. Herbison and C. W. Miles, outlined their position which is one of coöperation with State Auditor Oscar Nelson in whatever decision he makes as to the fate of the bank. The fifth member, Thomas C. Bell, is aligned with a group which is seeking reconstruction of the bank.

Need Over 3 Millions.

A spokesman for the four committeemen named above stated that they were informed by the state auditor that unless $3,322,000 was raised it would not be possible to reopen the bank. Conferences were also held, he stated, with officials of the leading loop banks as to the prospect of reopening, but no hope was given by the downtown houses.

"It is our plan to continue to function as a committee as originally outlined," the spokesman said. "We will coöperate with the state auditor when and if a receiver is appointed. In the event of a receivership we hope that it can be terminated soon. And in the meantime we have not appointed legal counsel to act for us."

In a statement given out yesterday by the other group it was said that Louis F. Jacobson, an attorney, had addressed a meeting of the depositors at the Copeland hotel Thursday concerning information shown in the report of Oscar Nelson and that Mr. Nelson had agreed to submit the report to representatives of loop banks for analysis and consideration. The statement also said the auditor had promised not to appoint a receiver until the depositors had a reasonable opportunity to present a sound plan for reconstruction.

The meeting adopted a resolution to enlarge the executive committee and add the following members: Eugene H. Garnett, Andrew Karzas, W. P. Wallenbeck, M. A. Pelser and Dr. Bruce L. Stocking.

Pays 10 Per Cent More.

Receiver Bernard Horwich of the West Central State bank, which closed in June, 1930, shortly is to pay depositors a ten per cent dividend, bringing the total which will have been paid to thirty-five per cent, it was reported yesterday. Mr. Horwich stated that he is having considerable difficulty in making collections and attributed a good part of the trouble to the depressed situation of the real estate market.

The Rev. Dr. H. Truman Gordon, pastor of the Unity Lutheran church of Edgewater, as a member of the depositors' committee of the Builders & Merchants Bank and Trust company, stated yesterday that he is coöperating with Paul W. Harrell, chairman of a depositors' committee of the Humboldt State banks, to bring a city wide meeting of executives of the depositors' committees of all the outlying banks that have closed within the past few months. The Rev. Mr. Gordon states that there are many questions affecting all depositors alike that may be possibly worked out to their mutual advantage. He suggests some loop building as a meeting place most convenient for all.

Poorer than Expected.

Following an investigation of the status of the closed Lake View State bank by the bank committee of the North Clark Street Business Men's Improvement association, it was announced that "much to the surprise of the committee, and also to its sorrow, the condition of the bank was found to be in much poorer shape than anticipated."

The losses to be sustained in liquidating this bank will be larger than originally calculated, the committee asserts. The committee indicated that in its opinion "sufficient evidence has been secured to hold certain people responsible for some of the losses sustained and the committee is preparing to commence action to recover some of these losses."

CRITICIZED FOR RETAIL SALES, M'QUIRE SAYS

Minneapolis, Minn., July 17.—(AP)—A. J. McQuire, general manager of Land o' Lakes Creameries, Ind., said today criticism had been directed against his organization for selling its products to retailers. Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, today asked the interstate commerce commission in Washington to investigate the trade practices of the creamery organization.

"Our organization borrowed $2,500,-000 from the farm board when we were asked to help stabilize prices late in 1929," Mr. McGuire said. "We held large stocks and bought more. In the fall we had nine million pounds on hand and when we went out to sell it butter men had sufficient supplies. We established branch houses in New York, Philadelphia and other cities; shipped butter to our branches and offered it to retailers in amounts of 30 pounds or more.

"That is where the shoe pinches—because we sold to retailers. We never have cut prices below a reasonable level. Our $2,500,000 loan was repaid to the farm board Dec. 31, 1930. We still use some farm board funds for merchandising, but not for stabilization. We do not plan to attempt stabilization further."

June Newsprint Output Only 62.6% Capacity

Production of newsprint paper in the United States and Canada during June amounted to 295,057 tons, or 62.6 per cent of rated capacity, compared with 322,032 tons, or 75.2 per cent of capacity, for the like month last year, the Newsprint Service bureau reports.

COLE INSISTS UPON BLANKET RATE INCREASE

Make Adjustments Later, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 17.—Fighting persistently for hours through a barrage of questions for the proposition that the interstate commerce commission should determine promptly whether the railroads should have a 15 per cent increase in freight rates on all traffic, W. H. Cole, president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, still was under cross-examination at the close of the second day's hearing on the rail application.

W. B. COLE. [A. P. Photo.]

Commissioners and counsel for shippers made every effort to get an admission from the witness that exceptions as to certain classes of traffic from a 15 per cent increase should be made, but Mr. Cole declared the questions themselves as to particular commodities indicated the impossibility of doing otherwise than making a blanket increase to apply on all traffic, with adjustments that might be necessary to be made later.

Sees Potential Threat.

Mr. Cole declared that the present railroad situation was a potential threat to the entire financial and industrial structure of the nation.

"In the present emergency, he asserted, it is no longer a question of a fair return, but of a return sufficient to avoid the disaster of receiverships in the case of many railroads and the maintenance of reasonable credit on the part of all of them."

If the railroads should tomorrow offer to haul wheat for nothing it would not make any change in the price of wheat, declared the witness, who contended that the price of wheat was the result of the inevitable law of supply and demand.

Commissioners snapped up this remark to query Mr. Cole as to whether the trouble with the railroads was not surplus transportation.

Must Be Maintained.

Mr. Cole insisted, whether or not that was true, the railroads were here and they had to be maintained.

"Of course, if the railroads are a moribund industry send for the undertaker and get rid of the corpse as quickly as possible," he added.

"If the country could get along without railroads," he continued, "well and good. The shock resulting from their abandonment would be a mere incident in the economic growth of the country."

"My whole thought is to emphasize the proposition that if the railroads are to obtain relief there is no other way than by the 15 per cent increase proposed," he said.

SUPPORTS ROADS

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Chicago Association of Commerce will support the petition of the railroads for a general 15 per cent increase in freight rates when hearings begin before the interstate commerce commission later this summer, it was announced yesterday.

The transportation and executive committees of the association have endorsed the increase as a temporary expedient only in order to improve general economic conditions at this time and favor a downward revision as soon as conditions become normal.

In announcing this action the association reports that traffic experts who have been studying the freight rate situation for several weeks maintain that with few of the larger roads earning sufficient income this year to assure the continuation of their securities on the accredited list of legal investments for insurance companies and banks, the national depression has been further intensified.

Attaches Reservations.

Although the association experts will present evidence to support the carriers at the commission hearings, there are several reservations attached to their endorsement. These are as follows:

1. "That experience has demonstrated that general horizontal increases serve to disrupt many important rate relationships, thus producing discriminatory results; so that the indorsement of the 15 per cent rate increase is voted without prejudice to the immediate readjustment, following the increase, of such situations;

2. "That since the present level of railway wage scales is at or above the war time level, notwithstanding the subsequent material reduction in the cost of living and the downward revision of wages in many industries which will be called upon to pay such increased rates as may be authorized in this proceeding; therefore serious consideration should be given to a proper revision of railway wages;

3. "That the interstate commerce commission, in its consideration of the revenue emergency measure, should take judicial notice of the relatively low intra-state rates which at present obtain in many states, particularly in western trunk line territory; and the opportunity for increasing railroad revenue by the placing of such rates upon a substantial parity with the interstate rates; and

4. "That such increase in freight rates as may result from the present petition should be deemed a remedy for the present temporary emergency; and, with the return of normal conditions, the railroads should be required to effect a downward revision of all freight rates here involved, observing the same general plan as may be observed in effecting the increase."

Realty Bond Situation Improves in Recent Weeks

BY SCRUTATOR.

After three years of uncertainty and lack of action, the defaulted real estate bond situation now shows possibilities of improvement. Events of the last few weeks give promise of definite constructive activity toward working out many issues.

The most encouraging sign is the entrance of new money into real estate refinancing. This has been made possible by the passing of house bill 921 at the last session of the legislature.

Some weeks ago there appeared in this column an explanation of another new law the effect of which has been to reduce the time required in foreclosing on mortgages.

House bill 921 solves a different problem. It makes possible temporary refinancing by banks. And it was learned yesterday that some of the larger banking institutions have already made available several millions of dollars for this purpose.

Set at Around Half Billion.

It is now well over three years since the flood of mortgage foreclosures started. The amount of mortgages in process of foreclosure in Chicago alone has been estimated at around a half billion dollars.

"The situation in Illinois may be briefly summarized as follows," says Herbert Becker, vice president of the Chicago Title and Trust company: "After foreclosure decrees is entered, the property is offered for sale at a public sale. In times like this, of course, the only bidder at the sale will be the owner of the mortgage or, in the case of a bond issue, the bondholders' committee, who generally have on deposit all but a small percentage of bonds.

"In order to enable the committee to bid at their own foreclosure sales, they must have some cash with which to pay the costs and expenses and other charges in connection with the foreclosure proceedings and sale.

"Prior to the passage of house bill 921 committees were unable to raise the necessary money to bid at their own sales. The only means a committee would have of raising cash would be to borrow on its certificates of sale which it would receive as the bidder at the foreclosure sale.

"Under our laws, this certificate of sale was subject to a major infirmity which made it impossible to borrow money on such certificates."

Sees Remedy in Statute.

Mr. Becker explains that the new statute remedies this situation. It provides, he says, that any bona fide assignee or pledgee for value of a certificate of sale who is not a party to the suit will not be affected by any reversal of the decree of foreclosure on a writ of error or bill of review.

"Since the passage of this statute," he continues, "arrangements have been made with certain banks for the loan of such funds as are necessary to enable committees to bid at their own foreclosure sale.

"The result is bound to be that the spell of stagnation which has been overhanging the foreclosure situation will be broken."

Records show that within the last twelve months not more than $25,-000,000 worth of foreclosure sales have been made. With the ability of the committees to borrow on the certificates of sale and in view of the arrangements already made for loans to committees, expectations are that more than $150,000,000 worth of foreclosure sales will be made in the next year.

AMTORG TRADING APPEALS U. S. TAX BUREAU LEVY

Washington, D. C., July 17.—(AP)—The Amtorg Trading corporation of New York, official business organization of soviet Russia, today appealed from a deficiency federal tax assessment.

The Amtorg reported income of $171,149 for the year ending Sept. 30, 1929 and the internal revenue bureau adjustment raised the amount to $391,-905. The bureau disallowed a deduction of $211,970 which the Amtorg held to be excise taxes payable to the union of soviet Russia, holding this was operating profits distributed to the soviet and not a tax.

The board of tax appeals file in the case showed that all of the stock of the Amtorg at the time the income tax was levied, was held by the Bank of Foreign Trade of Russia. The bureau also disallowed a deduction of $5,334 paid to S. G. Bron, president of Amtorg as entertainment expenses.

GRAIN STOCKS IN KANSAS CITY NOW AT PEAK

Kansas City, Mo., July 17.—(AP)—A new record for stocks of grain in public storage here was reached today because of heavy marketing of the huge southwest wheat crop.

The new peak was announced as 27,397,000 bushels. Nearly 27,000,000 bushels of the grain was wheat. The estimated grain in private mill and elevator storage space brought the total stocks in Kansas City to 35,500,-000 bushels.

Space now available for receiving grain is placed at about 20,000,000 bushels—11,250,000 in public elevators, the remainder in private elevators. The movement so far this month has been of record proportions, more than 26,000,000 bushels having been received.

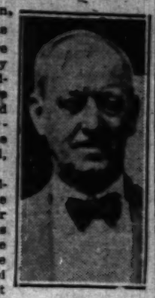
New York, July 17.—(AP)—Directors of the Radio Corporation of America declared dividends on the A preferred stock of 87½ cents a share for the third quarter of 1931, and on the B preferred stock of $1.25 a share for the same period. Both are payable Oct. 1 to holders of record Sept. 1.

APPEAL FOR OPENING OF HENNEPIN CANAL TO BARGE TRAFFIC

Washington, D. C., July 17.—[Special.]—Arguments in favor of opening the Hennepin canal to regulate barge traffic were presented today before the advisory committee of the Inland Waterway corporation. The Hennepin canal, out which crosses Illinois from the Mississippi river to the Illinois river, shortens the route between the upper Mississippi and Chicago, it was pointed out.



GEN. T. Q. ASHBURN.

An experimental service on the canal recently was instituted. Improvement of the canal, however, will be necessary if an efficient traffic is to be maintained, it was said. Among those who appeared before the committee was Herman Mueller of the St. Paul Association of Commerce, who said the demand of the railroads for a 15 per cent freight rate increase made it imperative that inland waterway traffic be improved and speeded up.

Gen. Thomas Q. Ashburn, director of the Inland Waterway corporation, has completed a report on the Hennepin canal and submitted it to Secretary of War Hurley. It is known that Gen. Ashburn took up the question of enlarging the canal and reducing the number of locks.

Members of the advisory committee present were W. P. O'Neal, New Orleans; E. M. Antrim, Chicago; R. B. Brown, Birmingham, and W. M. Jacoby, Pittsburgh.

NEW YORK HEARS FRESH REPORTS OF WARD MERGER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 17.—It is understood here that negotiations looking to a merger of Montgomery Ward & Co. and Sears, Roebuck & Co., have been renewed. Some stockholders of the Montgomery Ward Co. who favor such a consolidation are said to have completed a general study of the situation and now are considering their next step.

Moves to bring the two great mail order houses under a single management have been made at various times in the past, but never have reached the stage where terms were discussed. Subsequently the agitation for a merger would die down only to be renewed at a later period. As an outcome, Wall street has become rather skeptical of the sincerity of the rumored efforts. Nevertheless there is understood to be basis for the latest gossip, although matters have not reached the stage of terms as yet.

It is deemed probable that within the next few weeks more positive steps toward effecting a merger will be taken.

Orders Revision of Rates on Livestock in West

Washington, D. C., July 17.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today ordered revision of freight rates in the west on livestock, in most instances the charges being reductions from the old rates.

The commission fixed rates on a mileage basis. In the western trunk line and southwestern territories, the rates start at 11 cents for cattle and for hogs, sheep, goats and calves in double deck cars for a haul of 10 miles. It increase 1 cent every 10 miles upto 100, when the distance between increase in charges widened. For calves and hogs in single decked cars the minimum rate is 12.5 cents and for sheep and goats, 14 cents. In the mountain Pacific territory the minimum charges are 12, 14 and 15c, respectively.

New York Central Files Notice of Stock Increase

Albany, N. Y., July 17.—(AP)—The New York Central railroad today filed with the secretary of state a notice of an increase in its capital stock from $500,-000,000 to $700,000,000.

It was said at the secretary of state's office the filing of the notice was permitted pending final decision as to whether the company shall be required to pay a tax of approximately $10,000 which the state contends is occasioned by the increase. The Court of Appeals will be asked to rule on this questions. Officials of the road said the filing was a mere formality and that it will not be followed by actual issuance of any new stock for the present.

New York, July 17.—The stock market put in another uneventful day waiting for the German bank situation to be straightened out. Prices worked sluggishly higher on the whole, although some of the "leaders" like United States Steel and American Can found difficulty in keeping up with the parade.

Outside of the German situation the market had little in the way of worth while news to work upon. Foreign trade figures for June were disappointing, some of the new earnings statements coming along did not make good hot weather reading, but it is probable that none of these items cut any very great figure in the day's dealings. As for the German financial tangle the later advices were more hopeful, indicating some prospect of an adjustment of some kind early next week. At any rate, the speculative community was still inclined to give the benefit of its many doubts to the bull side.

Strength in Rails.

Strength in the railroad shares, contrasting sharply with the performances of this group here of late, was a headline feature of the day. Numerous gains of 2 or more points were scored, probably on a better realization of the first class chances the roads admittedly have of obtaining higher rates in spite of the thoroughness of the inquiry now under way on their petition.

Atchison showed the way forward by a gain of more than 4 points. Other features of strength in the division included Southern Pacific, New Haven, New York Central, Norfolk and Western, Rock Island, and Southern Pacific.

Revival of merger reports involving Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck in a gigantic combination served to stir up renewed activity and considerable strength in the shares of these two great mail order corporations. These reports have been smoking at intervals for the last two years, but so far nothing tangible has come out of any negotiations that may have been in progress. The big interests in Sears-Roebuck, it is understood here in Wall street, can see many advantages resulting from such a combine, but according to those professedly informed on the situation, the terms will have to be right before anything comes of the project or proposal.

Chemical Shares Lag.

Chemical shares were inclined to lag behind the general market most of the day, reflecting sporadic selling pressure which developed in that group from time to time. Part of this selling was no doubt accounted for by the sharp break in prices for sulphate and ammonia in this market, with the current market quoted $27.50 a ton, against the recent $33 figure. Weakness was attributed to the breaking up of the European nitrate cartel. Sulphate ammonia is one of the most important sources of synthetic nitrate. Allied Chemical, among others, was easier after sharing in the market's initial upturn.

The coppers looked up on news of a further move to curtail output of the red metal and the petroleum shares came in for some attention on the strength of reports from the west telling of the removal of important opposition to the pending Socony-Vacuum merger deal.

Cash in on Weather.

Judging by gossip going the rounds in the street there is a determined campaign under way intended to discourage "short" sales in the stock market at this time. The big "operators" evidently have had rings put in their noses, and been warned to behave to the extent of not pressing anything in the way of large blocks of stock on the market. Reports such as these would, of course, be difficult to confirm, but the action of the market itself, specifically the absence of any evidence of concerted effort for lower prices during dull periods at least, gives a great deal of credence to such stories. The understanding is that this campaign of moral suasion against short selling has been carried to the floor when the occasion has arisen.

Gold Dust.

Do you consider Gold Dust common stock a good buy for an investment at the present price?—A. M. H.

Gold Dust corporation was incorporated in 1928 as a consolidation of Gold Dust corporation [old company] and American Linseed company. It manufactures soap and soap powders, shoe polishes, margarine, mayonnaise and relishes, and flour. It has followed the policy of concentrating production in a few plants and disposing of superfluous buildings.

During 1930 the company redeemed its long term funded debt. Net profit for 1930 was $6,688,816, or $3.50 per common share. For 1929 net income was $7,586,964, or $3.94 per common share, on a smaller number of shares.

For the four months ended May 31, 1931, net profits were approximately $2,000,000, or better than $1 per common share. This is over 40 per cent of annual dividend requirements on the common. The succeeding four months, however, are the slack period.

On April 30, 1931, Dow, Jones & Co. stated that earnings that far in 1931 had been about 20 per cent under earnings for the like period of 1930. The principal cause of the decline was ascribed to the low price of butter, which necessitated a reduced price and lower profit margin for the company's margarine product.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $22,512,545 and current liabilities were $7,629,525. Cash and call loans were $7,823,111, against $11,151,-775 the year before. Working capital was $14,882,020. The good will item was carried at $1.

The industry in which the company operates has a greater degree of stability than other lines, but is not immune to poor business conditions. The practice of hedging in wheat tends to diminish inventory losses on this product.

Capitalization consists of $1,160 shares of $6 cumulative convertible no par preferred and 1,798,602 shares of no par common, excluding treasury stock. The common is on an annual dividend basis of $2.50 per share.

The preferred is rather high grade. The common is medium grade.

Peoples Gas Light and Coke.

Will you please advise if you consider Peoples Gas Light and Coke company 4½ per cent notes, due 1935, a good investment?—E. D. W.

Peoples Gas Light and Coke company supplies gas to Chicago without competition under a perpetual charter. Interest was earned 2.17 times in 1930, 3.00 times in 1929, 2.86 times in 1928, 3.29 times in 1927, and 2.89 times in 1926.

These 4½ per cent serial notes, due Feb. 1, 1934, 1935, and and, are a high grade short term investment.

W. W. KIMBALL COMPANY BUYS DOWNTOWN FEE

Pays Cash for Wabash Avenue Frontage.

BY AL CHASE.

The W. W. Kimball company has purchased from Mrs. Louise Todd Gilbert of New York City, wife of Seymour Parker Gilbert, a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. and late agent general of reparations under the Dawes plan, the 40x171, improved with a four story building, at 312-14 South Wabash avenue. The undisclosed purchase price was paid in cash. This gives the Kimball company a frontage of 160 feet on Wabash and 169 feet on Jackson. W. D. Kerfoot & Co. represented Mrs. Gilbert and George F. Sivore & Co. the buyer.

The building just purchased is under lease until April 30, 1934, to Otto A. Roth & Co., restaurateurs, at an annual rental of $34,000. The board of review valuation of the land is $417,698 and on the building $69,192, or a total of $486,878.

Plans $60,000 Addition.

The Illinois College of Chiropody has had plans drawn by Van Gunten & Van Gunten, architects, for a two story addition which will cost approximately $60,000. The Lants-Wilbur Co. was awarded the contract. It will be erected adjoining the college on the south, at 1323-25 North Clark street and will contain three classrooms and a clinic. There'll be two stores on the first floor. It will be 35x149.

Ida Nusinow has taken title for a dairy company, whose name is undisclosed, to the former bottling plant at 5559-67 Palmer street, comprising three buildings, from the Wieland Dairy Co., Inc., which at one time operated it. The McCarthy Realty Co. was broker. Harry D. Koenig, George F. Barry and Paul J. Donovan were attorneys.

Two sales aggregating $45,000 are reported by John F. Hahn, Inc., of Evanston. Clara J. Pridmore bought the two apartment building at 1106 Austin street, Evanston, from Mrs. R. J. Ludlow. Mrs. Nellie H. Provencher purchased the brick residence at 239 Oak circle, Wilmette, from Clara J. Pridmore. William A. Sadler was broker.

Apartments Reorganized.

Joseph W. Cremin, secretary for the bondholders' committee of the Richie Bond & Mortgage Co., announces the reorganization of the Logansport apartment building, at the southwest corner of Logan boulevard and Artesian avenue. Bondholders received a 25 per cent cash disbursement and in addition were given one share of stock in the equity for each $100 invested, thus obtaining entire ownership of the property.

This is the second building which this committee has secured title to and returned to the bondholders. Title to two additional structures has been obtained and will be turned over to bondholders immediately, said Mr. Cremin. The bondholders' committee, in addition to Mr. Cremin, is composed of F. A. Hill, chairman; C. K. Anderson, Charles R. McCabe Jr. and Wells W. Hawtin.

COTTON AVERAGE LOWER

There was nothing startling in the cotton market yesterday to induce an increased volume of buying and prices held within a moderate range, with a comparatively tame finish, futures at Chicago ranging off 6@10 points with New Orleans off 5@8 points and New York 4 points lower to 3 points higher. Spots in New York were unchanged at 9.30c, while New Orleans dropped 4@5 points to 9.06c, with Galveston 9.25c and Houston 9.10c. The technical position of the market was said to be good. Showers were reported over a good part of the belt and it is said that insect damage is attracting attention. Liverpool closed 6@8 points net higher with spot sales of 5,000 bales including 2,000 bales American.

Hester's report of spinners' takings for the week showed 176,000 bales, against 118,000 bales for the corresponding week a year ago. Into sight movement for the week was 27,000 bales compared with 9,000 bales last week and 18,000 bales last year. Prices follow:

WHEAT DISPLAYS STRENGTH AFTER EARLY RETREAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market gave an impressive demonstration of strength yesterday and while prices dropped around to the early trading on heavy hedging pressure and in sympathy with [illegible] the early loss was largely regained at the last, the close being at the best figures of the day, although net losses were ¼@¾c. July was 2¾@3⅛c at the last, with September, 54@54¼c, and December, 58⅛@59c.

Late strength in wheat was largely a reflection of the Canadian pool crop report on the three prairie provinces showing a condition of 57, or 2 points below its previous estimate despite recent rains, the latter coming too late to be of material benefit. The report led to a strong rally at Winnipeg which closed ⅝@¾c higher, with October finishing at 60¾c. Liverpool was influenced by pressure of Australian offers and a slow demand and closed ¼@¾d lower, with October selling at 80¾c.

Kansas City Wheat Firm.

A leap in the southwestern movement of new wheat was reflected in relative strength at Kansas City, which gained ¼c on the July and added at 44¼c. The Farmers National Grain corporation sold July at Minneapolis, but the latter market closed unchanged at 57c.

Hot weather in the American northwest brought in reports of deterioration in the spring wheat crop, and the trade is inclined to anticipate a further reduction in the indicated yield, although there were good rains in parts of the Dakotas and Montana overnight, and the forecast was for more. With the probability of improvement in the European situation the market is becoming more sensitive to factors suggesting a change in the supply and demand position. Broomhall estimates there will be a decrease of around 3,000,000 acres in Argentine and Australia this season. Reports of crop deterioration in Russia continue to lack confirmation.

Receipts Show Increase.

While the movement of new wheat in the southwest continues to show evidence of falling off it is increasing in the more northern sections, and receipts at the various markets during the past week were 30,600 cars against 27,400 cars the previous week, while since July 1 the total is 64,000 cars, equal to about 96,000,000 bu. There was 165,000 bu booked to arrive during the day by local handlers. Lack of aggressive export demand is still a factor in the market, and sales for the day were estimated at 300,000 bu in all positions, while the basis on hard winter at the gulf was easier at 1½@2c under Chicago September.

Scattered showers over the corn belt with the forecast for more moisture and lower temperatures, took the life out of the market, and prices dropped around 1c from Thursday's finish, with commission houses and local operators on the selling side of the market. Cash houses sold July, which finished 2c lower at 59¼c, to while the deferred deliveries cost of 1¼@1⅝c and December, 46⅝@46¾c.

Reports of Damage.

A few complaints of deterioration of the corn crop were received during the day from parts of South Dakota and Illinois, and damage over a considerable area is expected unless rains come immediately. With the crop rapidly approaching the critical period of growth the market is expected to be easily influenced by weather reports during the next few weeks. Purchase of 165,000 bu were made to arrive.

Oats declined early, but rallied toward the last and were ¼@⅝c lower for the day, with the July, 32c; September, 27¾@27¾c, and December, 30@30⅛c. Reports of yields as high as 80 bu per acre were received from parts of Indiana.

Notable interest in rye remains light and the market was easier with most closing ½c lower to ¼c higher than closing ½c lower to ¼c higher with September, 36⅝c, and December, [illegible]c.

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRM

Scattered advances occurred in butter and cut futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, trading proving quite dull. Continental buttilish storage [illegible] potatoes gained 2c, other deals holding unchanged. Storage of butter was 230,000 lbs less than a year ago as the weather reports indicated production was off. There was enough scattered new [illegible] and short covering to offset the [illegible] of trading. Egg trading was quiet. Heavy withdrawals again were recorded in the [illegible] for markets, the storage being 10,000 cars less than last year. Sales: Butter, 775 cars; eggs, 31 cars; potatoes, 17 cars. Receipts: Butter, 5 cars. Prices follow:
